

Introducing...

Maggie, Head Of Phi Theta

By AILEEN BETSCHART
Phi Theta prexy Marguerite Johns, better known as Maggie, developed an interest in activities while she was at Grant high school in Portland. In her freshman year at Oregon she was active in the YWCA and AWS, and was a member of the Frosh Glee committee.

Besides being a Kwama she collected money for the Red Cross and WSSF drives last year, and was chairman of committees for the International Festival and the AWS tea.

"Maggie" is now a junior adviser, in the YWCA, and head of promotions for WSSF. She is rushing chairman for her sorority, Delta Gamma, and has been president of her class since she was a pledge.

Tall, dark Maggie was born in the Philippine islands and has two other sisters, "Ellie," a Kwama, and Barbara, who was a Mortar Board member and president of AWS before she graduated last June.

A BA major, Maggie is extremely interested in merchandising and her future plans include becoming a buyer and doing some traveling. She received some experience for merchandising as a model for Meier and Frank company during the summer. She usually occupies her summers by making her own clothes.

As an outlet of her emotions she plays "slap," which she prefers to bridge. She enjoys all kinds of music, and likes to swim and play garden golf. Watching football games is also one of her favorite pastimes.

"I like people more than anything," says Maggie. She can't find anything wrong with Oregon; she likes everybody and everything about the school. The only thing she dislikes is disorganization, "but I do like surprises and the unexpected," she added.

South American Coed Finds Oregon Like Home in Chile

By DONNA KLETZING
A bright, excited, red-headed girl, Maria Teresa Montenegro is from Chile and is taking graduate work in the University on a scholarship.

Maria, who is taking courses in speech defects, remedial reading, and education, explained that she will return to Chile in June when she hopes to receive her master's degree. In Chile, she was a student at the University of Concepcion and graduated from the University of Chile in Santiago. "I will teach maybe in a University in Chile and use what I am learning," she said.

"My city is very similar to here," Maria said, adding that it is maybe greener here, "but we have pine trees, mountains with snow, lakes, and lots of rain too." Her city is Concepcion, which, she explained, was founded by a woman, and is now paid for through lotteries. The city is a college town and "has a tower in the very center with a clock on top. We go clear to the top and can see all of the city, the mountains, the University, and all from there."

Speaking of football games, Maria was enthusiastic. She made the trip to Portland two weeks ago, staying with an Oregon girl. "I went to the game wearing an Oregon mum," she said excitedly. "Afterward we went to a show and then had Chinese food." It was her first contact with Chinese food—and she loved it.

"A funny thing," she said, "is that I don't know if I'm gaining weight or not. You see, in Chile we measure it in kilos and here in pounds!"

The rosters lids were especially appealing to Maria. She bought one for herself and her friend after trying on the different sizes and said "I want to take one home with me!"

Her library experiences are varied. One incident she mentioned was that of a couple of days ago a fellow fell from his chair in the stacks—"He was just sitting there and pfoff! I just about died laughing," she said.

Maria received a scholarship from the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs through the Chilean-American Cultural institute. She stated that her name was chosen from ten others given to the Oregon group from a New York office.

Helen Luvaas, director of the Vesper Choir at Oregon in 1944-45, is beginning her second year as director of the second choir at St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minnesota.

Plays on Radio
She also teaches music and organ. Every Sunday morning, she plays the organ over the college radio station and in addition, this talented and youthful-looking blonde sings with the St. Olaf choir, giving nation-wide concerts.

When a freshman at the University, Helen received the mortar Board plaque. She belonged to Pi Delta Phi, French honorary, and was president of Mu Phi Epsilon. The winner of six scholarships, Helen was an excellent student and lived at Rebec house with her sister Jeanette.

After graduating in 1945, Helen attended the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y., for two years on a fellowship. She is still taking music lessons in Minneapolis.

The daughter of a Lutheran minister now in Kennewick, Wash., Helen started piano lessons at the age of 6, under the guidance of her mother, a music teacher and organist in Couer d'Alene, Idaho.
