

DUCK TRACKS

By GLENN GILLESPIE

Of eleven games predicted last Saturday, eight turned out right, two went the wrong way, and one thriller ended in a tie, bringing our season's total to 50 right, 13 wrong, and two tied, a .793 accuracy percentage.

That's only a one-point rise from the .792 percentage last week, but if things keep up, we'll hit .800 yet.

Last week's ball games certainly included a good collection of startling upsets, and Santa Clara's 14-0 surprise over the Nevada Wolfpack was one of the biggest. Many people maintained that Nevada was overdue for a defeat, but the forecasters who picked Santa Clara were in the minority.

That game was one we missed, and it was an upset. The other one was all our fault, and we should've known better. The college of Pacific Tigers defeated Montana 32-12 as expected, since the Grizzlies were rated as underdogs all the time.

The tie was Oregon State's 26-all dealock with the Washington State Cougars, which didn't surprise too many people. According to newspaper accounts, it was a thrilling struggle, with both teams marching up and down field to rack up touchdowns almost at will.

That's how the wrong ones turned out, and as for the right ones we'll talk about the Oregon-Washington game in Seattle.

Duck-Husky Contest Satisfying

We called the Webfoots by 20, and they won by six. The 13-7 Duck victory was quite satisfying, nevertheless. The 33,000 Oregon and Washington fans packed into Washington stadium saw two good football teams play a clean hard football game. One team, the Huskies, played the best game of their season, while the Webfoots turned an average, good-enough-to-win performance.

Both squads had outstanding performers on the field Saturday. For Jim Aiken's team, Norm Van Brocklin, Bob Sanders, Woodley Lewis, George Bell, Dick Wilkins, Dan Garza, DeWayne Johnson, Jim Berwick and Brad Ecklund played inspired ball.

Sanders played a driving game at fullback, for one of his best performances in an Oregon suit. The blond junior carried the ball 14 times, gaining 78 yards for a 5.5 per-try average. Bell carried nine times for 46 yards and an even five per-carry, while Lewis tried 13 times and gained 65 yards, a 4.4 average.

Van Brocklin handled his team with skill, completed six of 18 passes, and kept the Huskies bottled up with corner kicks.

Johnson, Berwick, Ecklund 'Bears' on Defense

Johnson, Berwick, and Ecklund all played a steel-hard defensive game, making countless tackles behind the line and in the secondary. Wilkins and Garza performed well on the receiving end of Van Brocklin's aeriels, each scoring an Oregon touchdown.

For the Purple and Gold, the whole Washington team was keyed and ready to go, with Coach Howie Odell on the bench for the first time this season. Anse McCullough's quarterbacking was impressive.

Washington's unit of swift, hard-running backs, including Brooks Biddle, Marsh Dallas, Jack Seth, Roland Kirkby, and Gordy Hungar, all put on a good show which produced yardage when it was needed.

The many Duck fans who traveled to the Seattle game, and the others who stayed home for a radio version can be proud of their team, and the Washington rooters can be equally as proud of their footballers.

That Washington campus was really impressive, and has undergone many changes brought on by an immense building program. The class buildings are located quite a ways from the houses, and Husky trackmen probably keep in shape by running to eight o'clocks. The students were friendly to invading 'furriners', and were courteous with directions. Seattle is a huge place, and cryptic highway signs didn't help any.

No Roof on Washington Stadium

Washington stadium seats more people than any structure Oregon has to offer, but that's about all we can say for it. It's a huge, horseshoe affair, concrete throughout, with temporary bleachers at the open end.

Number one drawback is the lack of anything that resembles a roof, and players and spectators alike were lucky it didn't rain. Everyone nearly froze to death though, but it was worth it to see a ball game in the cold sunshine. It was open-air football, and be sure to bring a blanket next time.

UO Cagers Drill Hard For 'Cat Tilt

Two fifteen minute scrimmages were in order for varsity basketball aspirants yesterday afternoon, as Coach John Warren sent his squad through intensive drills, preparing for the opening game with Willamette University December 1.

With several players having dropped after the original turnout, and a few others on the injured list, the team is down to around 25 members, most of whom took part in the Monday drill.

Top point-maker for the day was 6-foot Paul Sowers, Vanport transfer, who is making a strong bid for a starting forward spot. In the second scrimmage Sowers dunked in 12 points while leading his mates to a 28-6 win. He hit on 6 out of 11 shots at the basket.

High Scoring

The first contest went to Bob Don, Lynn Hamilton, Roger Wiley, Ken Seeborg, Bob Lavey and Dale Warberg over Jim Bocchi, Jerry Switzer, Rod Slade, Don Peterson and Leroy Coleman by a 26-14 margin.

Big Wiley was the key man in this contest, dominating both boards and scoring six points. High point honors went to Lavey, a two-year letterman guard, who accounted for eight tallies.

Peterson paced the losers, setting up plays and leading their scoring with six counters.

Sowers Impressive

With Sowers pacing them into an 8-0 lead, the victors had little worry in the second game, winding up 22-points ahead of their opponents.

The blond ex-Vanport ace was also looking good with his ball-handling and work on the fast break. His teammates were Will Urban, who starred on both backboards, Bom Amacher and Johnny Neeley, both scored six points, Dick Unis and Darrell Hawes.

The losers were paced by Art Milne with four out of their six points, Jack Keller getting the other two. Other members of the team were Paul Cooper, Roger Mockford, and Bill Hutchinson.

Willamette First

The first game of the year will be with Willamette at Salem on December 1, against a team that upset the Webfoots early last season.

The majority of the same team will be back, including the Johnson brothers, Bob at forward and Jim at center. Also returning will be Ted Johnson, no relation to the other two, who stars at guard. The Bearcats have also picked up several outstanding players from Clark Junior College, where the Johnson brothers came from.

WAA V-Ball Games

Another week of WAA intramural volleyball opened Monday, with Rebec house defeating Delta Delta Delta 38-4, Hendricks hall winning over Alpha Chi Omega 34-10, and Sigma Kappa beating Zeta Tau Alpha 36-8.

Victors in last Thursday's games were Gamma hall over Zeta hall, Highland house over Kappa Alpha Theta, and Alpha Gamma Delta on a default when Gamma Phi Beta failed to appear.

In the fourth week of competition, Highland house is leading league one with three wins and one loss. In league two, Susan Campbell hall leads with four wins, closely followed by University house with three wins.

I-M Volley Ball Teams Advance in Net Action

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

- 3:50
Delts vs. Tekes
Cherney vs. SAE
- 4:35
Legal Eagles vs. Hunter
Fizzeds vs. ATO
- 5:15
Wesley vs. Kappa Sig
Pi Kappa Phi vs. Merrick

Action in IM volleyball leagues was evenly divided yesterday, with three games apiece.

In "B" league play, Beta Theta Pi knocked off Theta Chi, SAE blasted Stan Ray hall, and Phi Kappa Psi edged out Campbell club.

"A" league victories were the Sig Eps over Pi Kappa Alpha, Beta Theta Pi over the Yeomen by a default, and Lambda Chi Alpha over Sherry Ross.

Beta Over Theta Chi

With a consistent driving attack, Beta Theta Pi defeated a slow-starting Theta Chi squad 15-4, and 15-10. The Betas showed an organized, point-making machine which never was endangered by the Hilltoppers.

SAE Wins

Sigma Alpha Epsilon combined its height and numerical advantage to flatten rugged Stan Ray hall easily, 15-4 and 15-6. The smaller vets dorm lads could only find five men at game time.

Clubbers Lose Two

Although it started with but two men and added a player here and there until its roster was filled, Phi Kappa Psi squeezed by a tough Campbell club sextet 15-12 and 17-15.

The last round of this event was a battle royal, with Campbell club coming back to tie the count at 14-all, then move into the lead with another point. However, the clothes line serves of Marion Rappe proved too difficult for the Co-op team to handle as the Phi Psis moved on in to win.

Sig Eps Victors

After spotting Pi Kappa Alpha sizeable leads in both rounds, Sigma Phi Epsilon opened determined point producing drives and annexed both by a 15-12 margin. In the opener, the Sig Eps allowed their opponent an 11-6 advantage before coming to life, then almost duplicated this in the finale by letting the Pi Kaps move to a 9-4 bulge before they were overhauled at 12-all.

Sherry Ross Down

Lambda Chi, with the able assistance of Tom Patton's hard drives, rolled over Sherry Ross 15-6 and 15-12. After tucking away the initial fray, Lambda Chi permitted the hallmen to build up a 9-point edge before they marked the score column. Then brilliant setup plays which Patton shot through the Sherry Ross defense took their toll.

In the other game which was scheduled yesterday, the Yeomen handed Beta Theta Pi the game when they failed to floor a team at game-time.
