

Out for a Bruin

BIG SAM NEVILLS, defensive standout at tackle for Jim Aiken's Oregon Ducks, will see action this Friday night, when the Webfoots tangle with the UCLA Bruins at Los Angeles.

Cal Turns Down Post Season Tilt

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 10—(AP)—California's undefeated Bears will try to play themselves into the Rose Bowl but will play no other post-season game.

Athletic Director Brutus Hamilton yesterday ruled out any prospects of a charity clash with Army after the regular season ends. West Point officials also said any such bid would be turned down. Reports had Hollywood film interests trying to arrange a California-Army game at Los Angeles.

The big worry for the Bears right now is Washington State—their opponent for Saturday.

Wildcats After Saturday Win On Notre Dame

CHICAGO, Nov. 10—(AP)—Will the Rose Bowl distract Northwestern's once-beaten Wildcats against undefeated Notre Dame Saturday?

The Irish better not figure it that way. Because from the opening whistle, the Wildcats will be swinging their Sunday punch in the nation's top football game at South Bend, Indiana.

Bob Voights, 32-year-old Northwestern coach, said today he has been swamped with letters from Wildcat fans, telling him how to play against Notre Dame and still be ready to whip Illinois and clinch a bowl trip the following Saturday.

Game at Time

"But we're following our season-long policy of playing one game at a time," Voights told a Chicago football writers' meeting.

"We're concentrating on Notre Dame. We're thinking about Notre Dame. We're going to try to beat Notre Dame."

Star Wildcat Center Alex Sarkisian, Voights disclosed, said one well-meaning fan "assumed" he would be held out of the Notre Dame game to be in good health for the bowl payoff clash with Illinois.

Voights said Sarkisian retorted: "If that happens, I'll turn in my suit for the season."

Cats to Try

"That's the spirit of the whole squad," said Voights, "They want to beat Notre Dame first, and then think about the Rose Bowl. I don't know if we can whip Notre Dame, but my kids will go all out trying."

The fur always flew in this ancient rivalry, despite its one-sidedness in the record books (Notre Dame leads 22 to 2 with two ties).

But Saturday's scrap before a capacity 59,000 should be a real wing-dinger. First of all, it will be the last meeting between the two schools after 23 straight years of feuding.

20 Straight Wins

For the Irish, there is not only the matter of shooting to match two all-time Notre Dame records, 20 straight wins and 26 games without defeat, but also to sprinkle a little salt on the Big Nine's tail. That conference's top teams, Michigan, Ohio State, Minnesota, Illinois and now Northwestern, have given Notre Dame the Brush-off.

This year's Notre Dame football team is running away from records set by the great Irish elevens of 1946 and 1947.

Ground Attack

That can be taken literally. The 1948 Irish are doing on the ground what they used to do on the air. In beating seven opponents they have gained 2,319 yards running and (Please turn to page 7)

Warren Works Team In Long Scrimmage

More long scrimmages were in order for varsity hoop candidates yesterday, as John Warren sent his charges through an extended drill.

Three practice games, all lasting around fifteen minutes, were the high spots of the afternoon. Several players looked good at one time or another during the session, but no one was outstanding.

Warren followed the same procedure all through the drill, starting five men on each team and putting in constant substitutes and occasionally having the players change teams.

Overtime Game

The first scrimmage went into overtime after ending 12-12. With Bob Lavey hitting for two and Roger Wiley one basket, the "skins" went on to win 18-14. Lavey was high for the game with 10 counters. Wiley and Kenny Seeborg counting four each.

The losers put up a good scrap and were leading for the most of the game. Will Urban, who was tremendous on the boards all afternoon, and Paul Sowers each had four points for top honors.

Wiley Hits 12

The second game was a runaway for the winners, with Wiley scoring 12 points in pacing a 24-12 win. "Hot Dog" was also a demon on the boards, constantly gathering in rebounds at both ends of the floor.

Forward Jim Bocchi and guard Leroy Coleman, with four and six tallies apiece, paced the losing five. Rod Slade took several rebounds away from the taller Wiley, but couldn't hold down the veterans scoring punch.

The final session wound up with a score of 24-14, though at one time it was tide at 10-all. Pacing the winners was Johnny Neeley with eight, Bob Amacher with six, and Dick Unis with four. Urban's work under the boards was a key factor in the win.

Bocchi, Coleman Pace

The losers were paced by two former flashes from Klamath Falls, Bocchi and Coleman, who both dropped in six points on long arching shots. Amacher and Urban were effective in gathering rebounds for many close-in shots.

Urban, a Frosh star last year, showed great promise during the afternoon with his constant scrapping and heads-up play. He had little luck with his shots yesterday, but if he finds scoring punch he might well see a lot of action.

Bob Lavey looked good with his shooting, being one of the high spots of the drill. Johnny Neeley, another little guard, also sparkled.

DUCK TRACKS

By GLENN GILLESPIE

Most significant jump in the statistics released by the Athletic News Bureau was made by Oregon End Dick Wilkins, rookie pass-receiving sensation. The all-around athlete caught five passes in the Washington game, bringing his total to 22 passes for 462 yards in eight games. Wilkins has scored five touchdowns, ranking behind Johnny McKay in the scoring department.

Wilkins' yardage total sets a new Pacific Coast Conference pass-receiving yardage mark, the old record of 404 yards set by Oregon State's Don Mast. That represents quite an achievement for a first-year man in college football.

McKay continues to hold his lead in the rushing column, despite the fact he carried the ball only once against Washington. The speedy little lefthand has carried 65 times for a net gain of 444 yards, a 6.8 per-try average.

Righthalf George Bell, backfield workhorse with 109 carries, is in second place with a larger net of 467 yards, a 4.2 per-carry average. Woodley Lewis follows with 359 net yards in 69 tries, a 5.2 mark. Blasting Bob Saunders, who played a great running game Saturday, stays in fourth place with 316 yards in 77 tries, a 4.1 average.

McKay continues to lead scoring with seven TDs and 42 points, followed by Wilkins with 30. Keith DeCourcay has 3 for 18, Dan Garza and Sanders have two each, and a host of Ducks have scored one touchdown.

As a team, Oregon's 1948 edition has piled up 1802 net yards from rushing, compared to 1223 for the opposition. A net of 913 from passing gives the Webfoots a net yardage total of 2715, compared to 1956 for the other eight teams.

The Ducks have attempted 126 passes, the same number their opponents have tried. Oregon quarterbacks have completed 60, while only 49 have been completed against the Webfoots.

Total first downs favor the Ducks 123 to 114. Oregon has punted 42 times for a 35.6 per-kick average, while the opposition has kicked 40 times for a 34.8 average.

Four men, McKay, Lewis, Bell, and Sanders, continue to carry the bulk of Oregon's running offense. Of the 1802 net yards gained from rushing, these four men have gained 1586.

By positions, the left halfbacks get the most work, with 159 carries for 935 yards. Righthalf follows with 150 tries for 559 yards, and the fullbacks have carried 84 times for 356 yards.

Norm Van Brocklin's completion percentage dropped a few points this week, but his yardage total continued to climb, with 130 gained in the Washington game. Norm hit six of 18 against the Huskies, bringing his total to 57 completions in 117 attempts for 889 yards, a .487 percentage. The Duck quarterback has averaged more than 15 yards per-completed pass this year.
