

UO Placement Service Has Job Opportunities

UO graduate placement service has on file a number of vocational opportunities for students recently graduated from the University.

Seattle Civil service is on the look-out for a personnel technician, preferably a man with a background of industrial experience. Another qualification is that applicants be graduates in psychology with some background in testing.

Also looking for a personnel technician is the Portland Civil Service, which gives a deadline November 20, at which time an examination will be given in Portland.

A lumber company in Lebanon, Oregon, is now interviewing men for training for the business side of the plywood industry. There is also an opening for an accountant in a Portland firm.

Two other openings include a job as printing material salesman at the Valley Printing company, and a position with a Portland insurance firm for a man well-versed in that business. A Seattle insurance company will hire men from 22 to 26 years of age.

Merchandising positions are open in Portland, Los Angeles, San Francisco and elsewhere, according to the graduate service.

Those interested in becoming salesmen for the Coca Cola company should inquire at room 216 Emerald hall. A representative of the Coca Cola company will be on the campus soon.

An opening for a reference librarian will be made in Portland in the near future.

Announcer's Error Glued for Posterity

Most people paste pictures and clippings in their scrap books, but Paul Ryman, of the University radio studios, has his voice glued to one of the pages.

Ryman, who was the announcer on last night's "Webfoot Huddle Time" said on the tape recording that Oregon's next football game would be "next Saturday" instead of Friday night.

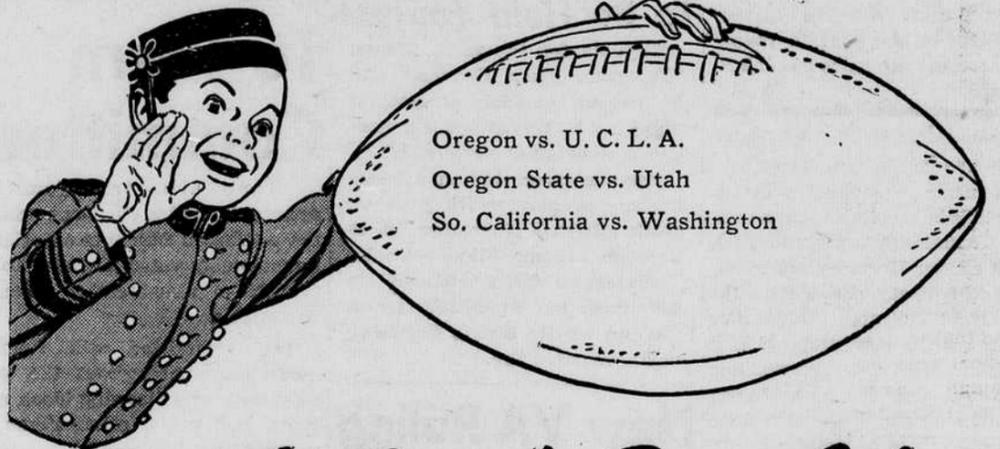

Discovering his mistake he had Don Hunter, of the studio visual department clip out the two bad words and record a small section of tape with the words "Friday night." This he spliced on to the recording with the aid of cellulose tape.

That left Ryman with a two-inch strip of tape with the faulty words which he will keep in his scrap book.
