'Vandalism Agreement Remains in Effect' Say UO, OSC Deans

"Last year's "school spirit" agreement regarding vandalism on UO-OCS campuses, issued by Vergil S. Fogdall, director of men's affairs, and Dan Poling, OSC dean of men, will continue in effect this year. With the annual "civil war" tilt coming up Saturday, the agreement is again called to the attention of Oregon students.

Registration To Continue Until Saturday

Students who have not yet obtained their registration material may pick it up at the registrar's office in Emerald hall until Saturday, November 20, according to James Kline, as-registration by Monday night, according to Kline, but by all indications the registration system is running smoothly.

Over 4000 students picked up their registration material in McArthur court Saturday.

Kline stressed the necessity of students' registration and class cards correlating with the adviser's certification. Any alteration or omission or discrepancy will require that the student be sent back to the adviser.

Advisers certification and department stamp on class cards may be obtained until November 20. Further registration steps may be completed until noon, December 4.

"We approve of school spirit. We believe that it adds not only to the interest in, but also to the values to be derived from Oregon-Oregon State athletic competition.

"But we believe that it is best expressed on the playing field and in the cheering sections, and by justifiable pride in our institutions, and not by destruction and vandalism.

"Therefore, we urge our students not to participate in raids or other activities likely to result in property damage or personal injury, and as a further deterrent, we agree that:

"1. Our students, individually and collectively, shall be liable for the costs of repairing damage at the other institution.

"2. We will suspend any of our students apprehended in such activities."

Inter-Varsity to Meet

Inter-Varsity Christian fellowship will meet tonight to hear Lloyd Long, West Coast staff leader for IVCF.

Long will speak at 7 p.m. in the dining room of John Straub hall. His talk here is a part of his tour of west coast campuses.

An Editorial

Oh...

Brutus Hamilton, director of athletics at the University of California, was asked Monday about a post-season playoff game against Oregon.

"I'm opposed to such a game for purely academic reasons," he said. "Our academic pace is very fast and our boys need time to devote to their studies. The kids would like to meet Oregon but it's purely a matter of getting the proper amount of studying done."

DuShane, Richey Differ On Frosh Housing Plan

Donald M. DuShane, director of student affairs, and Warren Richey, Interfraternity council president, presented opposing viewpoints on the freshman housing plan over KORE's Pacific Coast Roundup newscast yesterday evening.

The fifteen-minute program featured telephone interviews. DuShane spoke for the policy, stating that he is confident that the student body as a whole would benefit substantially from the plan, which would enable all freshmen, Greeks and independents, to live together for a year, with a common University experience, an opportunity for better acquaintance and the development of mutual respect.

"We are proud of our fraternities and sororities," he continued. "We are convinced that this proposal will improve and strengthen them, and not only will not impair the best interests of the dormitories but will lead to a better understanding between Greeks and independents, and a definite improvement in University spirit and morale."

"For example," Richey said, "how can the problems of the freshmen be reduced when he is living in two places? One of the strongest objections to the plan is that it will increase the freshman's living costs $7 to $8 monthly—no small item to a college student. He must not only speaking in behalf of fraternities and sororities, Warren Richey stated that Greek organizations agree with the administration on the desired results, but can't see how the present plan will bring those results.

December 1 'Oregon Day' at Museum

Oregon students will have the opportunity to see a historical collection of world famous paintings from the Kaiser Friederich museum in Berlin Wednesday December 1, when the exhibition will be in Portland.

Bus tickets will be sold at the Co-op Monday through Thursday of this week by Kwama, sophomore women's honorary, at the price of $3.30 round trip on chartered buses. The buses will leave at 7 a.m. from the Greyhound depot and will return around 5 that evening. Students attending the exhibit will be excused from classes. Excuses will be given out at the Portland Art museum.

The collection is composed of 95 paintings from the two largest pre-war Berlin museums, the Kaiser Friederich museum and the German national gallery. The pictures are representative of the works of 59 old masters—including Austrian Dutch, Flemish, French, German, Italian, and Spanish painters.

Part of a collection of over 200 paintings were brought to this country during the war; they are in federal custody. They were hidden in salt mines in Germany for safe-keeping during the war and were found by American soldiers of General Patton's third army. Guarded by army military police, the masterpieces will remain on display in Portland for eight days.

The exhibit, which contains pictures by such masters as Rembrandt, Titian, and Frans Hals, is insured for $80,000,000. Through the influence of Senator Wayne L. Morse, Portland was designated as the only city in the Northwest where the paintings will be shown.

An admission fee of 30 cents will be charged each person, all of the proceeds going to the relief of German children.

Additional information about the collection and the trip can be secured from Gordon Schoewe, chairman of the drive, or Ardetta Daniels, secretary.

"A SINGING BOY WITH FLUTE" by Frans Hals, an early 17th century Dutch painter. This is one of the many world famous paintings from the Kaiser Friederich museum in Berlin. Ninety-five paintings will be exhibited in Portland, December 1.

Spotlight On Games This Week

By Glenn Gillespie

The Rose Bowl picture is still muddled, everyone except University of California backers favor an Oregon-California playoff game, and all eyes will be turned toward Corvallis and Berkeley Saturday, November 20.

This was the situation in the playoff controversy yesterday. After a straight decline from California Athletic Director Brutus Hamilton and a "no comment" from Cal Coach Lynn Waldorf, Oregon's challenge to meet the California Bears in a post-season playoff game still stands, and University officials await further developments.

Oregon Athletic Director Leo Harris issued a statement yesterday, accusing California of dodging the playoff, which would determine the Pacific Coast Conference Rose Bowl representative. Harris said California rejected a private challenge last week, but added that he had not given up hope.

Hamilton declined the Webfoot proposal for what he termed "academic reasons." Harris said he was re-issuing the challenge publicly because "everyone interested in intercollegiate football and the Rose Bowl would prefer to have the selection of the Conference representative in the 1949 Rose Bowl game depend on the result of a game between the two schools."

Howard Lemons, Oregon Athletic Business Manager, indicated that Oregon "made every concession" in attempting to arrange the playoff contest, giving California the choice of time and place.

Although the two schools are not scheduled to meet this year, Oregon officials attempted to arrange a game with California when the 1948 PCC schedule was drawn up last year.

Harris said he first made the challenge to California in a telephone call last Thursday, after talking it over with Oregon officials. California athletic officials declined then, waiting to depend on a Conference vote if the two schools finish the season in their present tie.

"Oregon has done everything possible to arrange a playoff game with California, without success," Harris stated, adding that he had offered to play on California's home field at Berkeley and give California the choice of the only two possible dates.

Under conference rulings, those were November 27 and December 4, the latter date the PCC deadline on games between member schools.

The proposed playoff naturally depends on the outcome of two games this Saturday. Both teams remain undefeated in Conference play this season, but have one game left on the 1948 schedule.
