

1939 Little All-American Calls Signals for Ducks

Some guys just go on being quarterbacks all their lives.

Frank Zazula is still calling the signals but in a different capacity than in 1934 when he engineered McKinley high to the Ohio state championship. He called signals at Akron University in 1939 and was selected on many little All-American teams as an outstanding quarterback. Now, as backfield coach at the University of Oregon, he is still calling the plays.

"Zaz" is Oregon's quarterback behind the scenes. He is the head scout who comes back with the opponents' probable plays. With the tricky scout calling the opposition's signals Oregon is able to set up effective defenses against them.

He sometimes runs the plays in practice and his "stutter" style has caused many a would be tackler to dive into space and come up with—nothing.

The 32-year-old backfield coach took his coaching job at Oregon at the request of Head Coach Aiken in 1946.

Away from football, Zaz is a family man having two daughters, Susan Jo, 5, Sally Jane, 4, and a son Frank Allan, 5 months.

Re-Ballot On Bowl 'Maybe'

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18—(AP) There may be many anxious hours of waiting next Monday before the Rose Bowl vote of the Pacific Coast Conference is announced.

"Anytime after 9 o'clock Monday morning (Pacific daylight time)," said the conference commissioner's office here today.

Conference faculty representatives of the 10 universities have been instructed to telegraph their vote to the commissioner's office by noon Monday, or anytime after the conference football battles wind up last Saturday.

H. D. Thoreau, executive assistant to Commissioner Victor O. Schmidt, said the vote will not be announced before 9 a. m., and if some of the members are late wiring, or their messages are delayed the result might not be released until mid or late afternoon.

The race hinges, of course, on California's final game against Stanford at Berkeley, and Oregon's battle with Oregon State at Corvallis.

As previously explained, if the two teams wind up in a tie, and the conference vote results in a five-five deadlock which cannot be altered after successive balloting (another time consumer, incidentally), then the team longest away from the Rose Bowl would draw the honor.

Oregon would be the team, in this event. The Webfoots last played in the Pasadena classic in 1920, but California appeared in 1938.
