

Texas, Georgia In Orange Bowl New Year's Day

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 30 (AP)—It's Georgia vs. Texas in the Orange Bowl.

The University of Texas Longhorns' faculty and team voted unanimously yesterday to accept the Orange Bowl invitation to face Coach Wally Butts' University of Georgia Bulldogs, which accepted Saturday night.

It will be the runners-up of the Southwest conference against the champions of the Southeastern conference.

Both teams will receive approximately $75,000 for their part in the colorful 15th annual New Year's Day spectacle.

R. D. Freeman, Orange Bowl committeeman, said negotiations had been underway with Texas since Saturday night. He said Texas Athletic Director Dana X. Bible and Head Coach Blair Cherry "were very pleased to receive an invitation."

Acceptance was held up, Freeman said, until team members home for the Thanksgiving holi-

Air Corps Chance For College Men

An opportunity for pilot training and a career as an officer in the United States Air Force is being offered UO men.

Unmarried men, 20 to 26 years of age, physically fit, with two or more years of college, will have the opportunity to qualify for flight training in the near future. An interviewing team is expected on the campus to accept applications, according to information released by the ROTC offices.

days returned to school and could get in on the vote. When the vote was made, it was unanimous, he said.

The announcement in mid-afternoon that Texas was Georgia's opponent came as no surprise to Mi-iamians who have known that something was in the wind since Saturday night despite the committee's obvious attempt to soft-pedal negotiations.

Georgia was established as an almost immediate favorite. The Bulldogs lost only to powerful North Carolina during their 10-game season, and rolled up 278 points to their opponents' 100 points.

Exhibit Shown At Art Gallery

Watercolors of the western hemisphere will be on exhibition December 2-16 in the little art gallery, according to a release by the school of architecture and allied arts.

The display will be drawn from the collections of international business machines corporation, and includes contemporary works from many North and South American countries.

Included are paintings from Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, Canada, and the United States. The gallery will be open from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily.

Readings for Play Set for Afternoon

Readings for the University theater's third production, "The Glass Menagerie," will be held this afternoon at 4 in room 1, Johnson hall. Any student interested may attend, regardless of year in school or previous experience in the theater.

Those persons who will be unable to attend this afternoon's reading are requested by Director Horace W. Robinson to contact him in the drama studio for an appointment for a private reading.

an immense stage with bad lighting, and the next night on a two-by-four area smaller than Guild hall, with no lights."

Playing comedy is a challenge, according to Sas, since audience reaction must definitely be taken into consideration. Especially in the case of laughs, "don't worry, I'm expecting them, if I have to run down to the footlights and lead the paying customers in the laughter," when the actor must time his speeches so as not to over-run.

"There have been times," Sas admits, "when I thought the only people laughing were those on the stage. However, it was heartening during rehearsals to have other members of the cast sit in the audience and to hear them laugh at the action on stage in which they did not appear. To reciprocate, I sat out front and laughed at the right times for them. This acting," she muttered with a shake of the head, "is hard business."

Sas can be seen at work Friday and Saturday of this week, and Monday through Thursday of next week.

"Buy your tickets early, kiddies," she warns, "and avoid the last minute rush. Only nine more buying days before closing."

SALESMEN $10,000

This firm has just spent $10,000 to have a group of leading psychologists develop a testing program, the purpose of which is to tell whether an individual has the psychological characteristics to sell life insurance. Many of our men earn incomes running into five figures. If you would like to know whether or not your talents lie in the sales field, we will be glad to have you take these tests at no expense to you. Should you qualify, we have a permanent lifetime position waiting for you.

Many Directories As Yet Unclaimed

Several hundred students who placed their orders in September have not yet picked up their copies of the Pigger's Guide, according to Dick Williams, head of the educational activities office. The booklets are available in McArthur court.

Williams also states that a number of the student directories are still on sale in the Co-op for those who did not place their orders in September.

Rally - Bowl Fever Hits Most Students

Belated Cotton Bowl celebrations took form in a Snow ball rally last night. Led by Yell Duke George Watkins, the rally began on the campus and wound down town with cries of bowl victory.

Students were picked up in front of living organizations, in the library, and from homes nearer the downtown area. After parading through the Eugene shopping district, the rally proceeded back to the campus
