Snowfall Biggest Since January '43

Returning Webfoot students were surprised to find a blanket of fresh snow covering the campus for the resumption of classes Monday.

The snow, as reported by the weather bureau, fell January 1. An inch fell during the early morning hours, and two additional inches fell late the same day.

It was the first considerable snowfall in Eugene since January 25, 1943, when 14 inches fell and remained on the ground for several days.

The forecast gives little hope for relief from cold weather. Clouds and a somewhat higher temperature are expected today, but no rain is in sight for some time.

Nebraska Officials SANDWICHES Becon Lon Stiner

-The Oregonian said last night that the University of Nebraska hopes to hire Lon Stiner of Oregon State college as football coach.

The newspaper said "an unimpeachable source" close to Oregon State athletic affairs disclosed Stiner was first approached by George "Potsy" Clark, Nebraska athletic director, before the Oregon State-Nebraska game here November 27.

It added they talked several hours after the game and that the Nebraska board since has been in communication with Stiner.

Stiner, a graduate of Nebraska, where he starred as a tackle, has been at Oregon State 16 years.

Oregon State officials at Corvallis had no comment. Stiner is at Palm Springs, Calif., for a coast conference meeting.
