

Columnist Tells State

galleries this is what usually happens:
At 10 o'clock the meeting is convened, roll is called and someone asks for announcements—this is the fatal mistake. Everyone seems to have an announcement about some social affair that afternoon, night or week. This vital business over . . . the meeting is adjourned until two o'clock that afternoon. Such "goings on" leave many a visitor in a state of confusion when he tries to figure out how anything is ever accomplished by the legislature.
Of course, the answer is simple. Most of it is done in committee meetings, in hotel rooms and of course at the inevitable dinners, receptions, and cocktail parties to which the public is, of course, not invited.

Blood Condition Lecture Given

A large number of persons turned out Tuesday night to hear Dr. K. D. McMilan, local pathologist, speak on "The Rh Factor in Blood."
Dr. McMilan described the findings of a recent conference at Stanford university, as well as noting the general medical significance of the Rh factor.
According to Dr. McMilan, Rh factor, which was discovered in 1940, is of use in obstetrics and transfusions. It is a frequent cause of still birth, and can prove fatal if a person with Rh negative blood is given transfusions of Rh positive blood more than once.
A corrected fault is a profitable gain.

Vocalist to Give Recital Tonight

Claire Lewis, senior in music, will present a recital this evening, at 8 o'clock in the music school auditorium.
Accompanied by Margaret Adkins, Miss Lewis will be heard in a four group program including numbers by Massenet, Rossini, Strauss, and Ravel.
Miss Lewis is well known on the Oregon campus, having appeared as soloist with the University concert band and on many radio broadcasts. She was heard in the music school's production of "The Beggar's Opera" last year and is at present preparing for the lead in "The Telephone," a contemporary one-act opera to be given this spring.

IN THE STILL OF THE NIGHT
A MAN DIED -

He had worked late—he was tired—thoughtlessly he walked to the right along the darkened highway. Beyond the turn of the road were the lights of home.

Speeding through the early darkness, a driver urged his car along, hugging the edge of the road. A dim shape, a sudden sickening jolt—and the terrorized driver, his car careening, sped on—around the curve, past the lighted cottage beside the road. And in the still of the night, a man died.

These are the ingredients of accidents and death at night. Often the victim contributes to his own death by not walking to the left, facing traffic. But far too many pay with their lives for the reckless driving of the hit-and-run car coward. To him self-preservation is more urgent than the saving of a life.

To his kind let this be a warning. Of all highway and traffic violators, the hit-and-run driver fares worst. Sooner or later, his crime leads to prison and disgrace.

The highways shall be cleared of these auto highwaymen.
