Bigger They Come The Larger the Haul

TOKYO, Jan. 18—(AP)—It is too much trouble, union bank workers said in effect today, to count 100 yen notes.

To cut down on their work, they asked that 1,000 yen notes be issued.

The 100 yen notes are the largest in circulation now.

Plan Completed Union By Winter Term, 1950

The blueprints for Oregon's student union are all drawn and the building itself should stand completed by winter term, 1950, according to Dick Williams, director of the union.

Covering 105,000 square feet of space and extending 335 feet from north to south plus a 78-foot service entrance, the union will have a basement, a mezzanine, and three floors which will include almost everything from a formal ballroom to snack kitchens.

In the basement there will be eight bowling alleys, ten tables for pool, billiards and snooker, six ping-pong tables, and a four-chair barber shop.

The main desk and lobby and a leather lounge occupy positions on the first floor along with a U.S. postoffice and a classified station which will handle everything that goes through a regular branch office. In addition to this, there will be a University post-office to take care of campus mail.

A combination soda fountain-cafeteria will seat 375 persons at one time. Continuous short-order service is planned, and cafeteria lunches will be served at meal hours.

Also on the first floor will be a sack lunch room, containing 80 lockers, expressly for the use of students who commute to and from the University daily.

Five rooms will be available for various gatherings, including small lunch and dinner meetings. These rooms, each one accommodating 24 persons, may be opened into one large area by means of folding walls.

On the mezzanine will be union administrative offices, alumni and Old Oregon offices, and lockers for the employes.

The second floor will hold two music listening rooms in which records may be played, and a piano practice room which may be used for composing and rehearsal of skits.

An art gallery will furnish continual exhibits, including both student work and traveling art exhibitions. A lounge browsing library, a salon for such functions as teas, three additional meeting rooms with dining service, and a ballroom complete the second floor.

The ballroom will be divided into several sections which would hold from 400 to 500 couples. Electrically controlled folding walls enable it to be opened into one large room in which 1000 couples could dance. This area will be used also for banquets seating up to 650, assemblies for as many as 750, small concerts, and movies.

Student offices, Oregon offices, and a room to be used for important student union board meetings will be located on the third floor which will hold also four more meeting rooms, a projection booth, and an area to be used for making posters and various decorations. Two of these meeting rooms will have kitchenettes which will be available for concocting snacks. The projection booth will show movies in the ballroom on the second floor.

Among the services provided in the student union will be a lost and found department, a desk where checks may be cashed, and Western Union service.

Of Oregon' student union services, Dick Williams boasts, "Name it—we've got it. If we haven't, we'll get it;"
