

Cold Wave Seen; State Gets Snow

Colder temperatures were forecast for Oregon today in the wake of a snowfall that blanketed many cities and made highway travel hazardous.

Snow fell yesterday through much of the Willamette valley, in Portland, and at Baker.

Minor traffic accidents occurred throughout the state, and a woman rushing to her aged mother's bedside was critically injured in a wreck near Klamath Falls.

The Columbia river remained clogged with ice floes. Fishermen thought smelt were probably running in the Columbia—but they can't be caught through the ice. Gillnetters gave up fishing until a thaw; at present, their nets freeze.

One rumored fear was called unfounded. The army engineers said the break-up of Columbia river ice will not harm Bonneville dam. Twice since the dam's construction the Columbia has had as much ice as now.

The Columbia river stream flow increased to 86,000 second feet at Bonneville, boosting power output to some 370,000 Kilowatts. Power officials warned that continued electricity-saving was necessary, however.

Several sawmills in Lane county which resumed operations Tuesday were threatened with closure again. The snow and cold weather made it difficult to continue logging.

Machines, Teachers Here For BA Short Course

By Kay Johnson

The school of business administration has visitors. Not the common garden variety of visitors, mind you, but special representatives of the National Cash Register company of Dayton, Ohio, Robert D. Hughes and his assistants Stanley Hager and Robert Torgesen, both of the Portland branch of the company.

They arrived replete with a bit more than the usual baggage. More specifically, two tons of the most modern accounting equipment. This they are employing to teach courses in machine accounting to interested persons of the University. Monday, the first day of the course, saw seven classes, a high student interest and a total of 267 present to hear the lectures and see the demonstrations.

These classes are brought to the University through special arrangement with Dean V. P. Morris, of the school of business administration and will be held in 206 Commerce from 8 to 3 through Friday of this week.

A special class on bank applications will be given Saturday morning. A wide range of valuable subjects is offered, including: accounts receivable and payable, window posting, labor distribution, and cost and payroll records.

Starting from Ohio, Mr. Hughes has worked west across the country and has thus far visited Nebraska, Utah and Washington colleges before his arrival to Oregon. He plans to go on to California after his stay here. His assigned area is half of the United States, one of the four divisions covered by representatives of his company. He expressed his hopes that the courses prove successful enough to warrant their permanent establishment on an annual basis.

Student comment seems to indicate that this is a valuable supplement to their regular courses and brings them to more fully realize some of the hitherto unknown possibilities and applications of accounting. From this interest shown, indications are that Mr. Hughes' wish shall be fulfilled.

You can help lock the door against cancer

Here is the story about a door that can be built to repel cancer, the deadly killer. The door locks only if two keys are turned. Science holds one key — your money can provide the other.

Your dollars support: cancer research which some day may find the causes and cure of the disease; an education program that teaches men and women how to recognize cancer in its early stages, when immediate treatment can save their lives.

Won't you help us lock the door? Give as generously as you can. Give more than before to guard those you love.
