Lack of Limp Bothers Actress

"Limping is not as easy as it looks," remarked Mary Esther Brock, who will play the part of Laura in the forthcoming University theater production of "The Glass Menagerie."

"I've put a bandage around my knee, I've bound up my foot, I've even put chalk and cough drops in my shoes," she went on ruefully, "and all I've got to show for it is a knee that goes out of joint."

Mary Esther has more than that to show for it—all her friends call her Limpy now.

"Although I'm hardly what you'd call an introvert," she continued, "I feel a little akin to Laura. She is terribly shy, and lives in her own little imaginary world."

Mary Esther was shy herself when she was very young, and it is probably due to that that she became interested in dramatics. "My grandfather used to make me recite to him," she said. "I guess I can say that I owe it all to him," she added laughing.

A transfer from Pomona last year, Mary Esther played a leading role in "Midsummer Night's Dream," and has been active in the University theater ever since.

She was in many plays before college days, too. "I always used to be Mary in the Christmas Story," she said, "because I had a baby doll that was perfect for Jesus."

At Pendleton high school—Pendleton is, by the way, "the biggest little town there is"—Mary Esther played in all the school productions.

"Exciting things were always happening to me," she recalls. "Once I had a quick change to make, and when I arrived on stage a little late as it was, both my stockings fell down."

The experience didn't seem to have much effect on ME's enthusiasm. She is very excited about the opening of "The Glass Menagerie" on February 4. "It is a beautiful play," she said. "Its simplicity and sincerity actually casts a spell."

Besides being president of Delta Gamma sorority, Mary Esther is secretary of the recently-organized radio honorary.

Varsity Baseball Managers Wanted

Freshmen and sophomore men who would like to become baseball managers should contact Don Kirsch, baseball coach, as soon as possible, so that a time can be set to meet with them regularly.

Those with baseball scoring experience are preferred, but it is not essential.
