Professors Protest Dismissals

'Repudiation of Policy Aim of Eight Faculty Members at Seattle

Bulletin

SEATTLE, Jan. 28—(AP) More than 400 University of Washington students and faculty members heard protests today over dismissal of three professors for alleged past or present Communist party affiliation.

The off-campus gathering was conducted at the University Unitarian church. Attendance was about 3 per cent of the student body of more than 16,000.

Speakers at today's rally termed the dismissals a violation of academic freedom.

Meantime the organization's assembly, representing all major student groups, announced it would take a confidential poll of student opinion and "adopt a course of action indicated by the poll."

The university administration, which has withheld comment on the protest activities, announced that Phillips had requested and been granted permission to address a general assembly of students at 4 p.m. Monday.

SEATTLE, Jan. 28 (AP)—

Declaring the action has damaged the University of Washington, eight university physics professors issued a statement yesterday protesting the dismissal of three of their associates and calling for "repudiation of this policy."

The board of regents discharged Joseph Butterworth, Ralph Gundlach and Herbert J. Phillips last week following accusations of past or present communist party membership.

The university announced two other professors, tired at the same time, have signed non-communist affidavits as directed by the regents. They are Dr. E. Harold Eby and Dr. Melville Jacobs. A third professor, Dr. Garland Ethel, also has indicated willingness to sign, the university said.

Yesterday's statement said: "We believe the people of Washington, the students and the faculty can, by their protests bring about a repudiation of this policy."

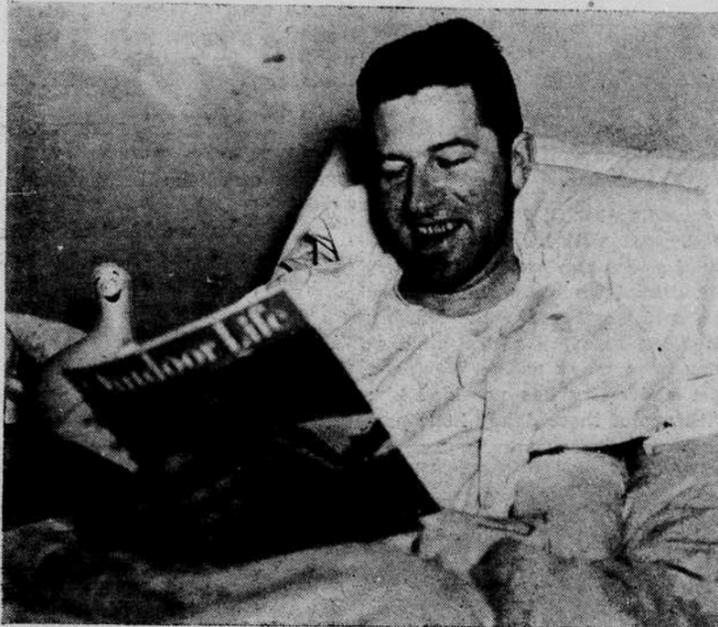

It was signed by Ronald Geballe, B. A. Jacobson, F. H. Schmidt, J. F. Streib, C. V. Cannon, K. C. Clark, all assistant professors; S. H. Neddermeyer, associate, and David H. Garber, instructor.

The university declined comment.

"Dimes" Called in

House representatives for the March of Dimes should turn in money they have collected to Joan Minnaugh, collections chairman, at the Pi Beta Phi house by noon Saturday.

What a Soft Life!

ASUO PRESIDENT Bob Allen seems quite happy where he is. Allen has been confined to the infirmary for more than a week with a shattered left elbow. Above, Allen catches up on his studies by reading a copy of "Outdoor Life." He expects to be released from the hospital today. (Photo by Hans Wold)

Lonely Hearts....

'Love Ad' Billboards Get German Clients

FRANKFURT, Germany., Jan. 28—(AP)—German girls out to get a man don't beat around the bush in a country where they outnumber men two to one.

They bluntly advertise "man wanted" on the big city billboards which fill the place here of American newspaper want ad sections.

Ads like this:

"Twenty-three year old girl, blond, medium-sized, blue-eyed, wants to spend weekends with wealthy businessman. Please forward offers to X."

Or like this one:

"I am alone. Good looking and well-shaped 25-year old girl wants to spend evenings with man not older than 30. Have own apartment."

The "love advertising" is a new idea but it's spreading like wild fire. As the samples quoted show, the ads are shockingly frank.

Mostly they make no mention of marriage.

Men use the billboards, too. One advertised:

"Fifty-one year old business man (looking much younger) travelling to Bavarian resort soon. Where is the good-looking girl, not older than 28, who wants to accompany me?"

Camel's Romance Now on Right Track

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28—(AP)—Hal (for Halitosis) and Sal are now very friendly.

This is the happy report emanating today from Griffith Park zoo, sponsor of a romance between Hal and a camel girl friend recently purchased for $1,500. The idea was to raise some little two-humpers to trade with other zoos.

But when the camel couple was first introduced, Hal lumbered off, with Sal in pursuit, and cowered in a corner of his fenced yard.

However, in his role of camel Cupid an appropriately named keeper, Melvin Love, and Sal's charms finally broke down Hal's resistance.

Portland Cops in Keystone Comedy

PORTLAND, Jan. 28—(AP)—Two young men were jailed today after a slapstick chase involving a lost cab, a lost police car, and a cabbie who couldn't find his fares.

It all sounded, said tired police, like a scene from a film comedy of the twenties.

Cabbie Harry Schaeffer got a call early this morning to an east side apartment house. When he arrived, somebody yelled, "We'll be right out—turn on the meter."

The meter ticked along to $2, and nobody came out Schaeffer called police to find his fares.

As the policemen accompanied Schaeffer into the apartment house, somebody drove off in the cab. A second later somebody drove off in the police car.

While more police were summoned, one of the officers arrested a suspicious by stander spotted his cab, four blocks away.

The arrested bystander, the police, and Schaeffer rushed down and got it. Then they came back and arrested another man, who was with a young girl.

The girl wandered away. Police started after her, and her companion made a dash to escape. The officers rushed back and recaptured him.

The two men—who, witnesses said, answered the description of the persons who had driven off in the cab and the police car—were finally taken to jail. The police car was found later, on the west side of the river.

Planes Thrown Against Weather In Western Areas

New Snows Whip Across Midwest; Truman Allots Another $500,000 for Relief

By The Associated Press

More planes and bulldozers were thrown into the battle of the Western blizzards Friday, but a new storm dealt rescue efforts a severe set-back in some areas.

The new snow, forerunner of another cold wave, whipped across Wyoming, Nebraska, Eastern Kansas and Southeast South Dakota and on into Southeastern Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

It intensified the suffering of snow-stranded livestock and humans in the stricken western areas.

President Truman allotted another $500,000 for blizzard relief during the day, boosting the amount of federal aid so far to $800,000.

In Nebraska, one of the hardest hit blizzard states, the storm virtually ice-locked the state. Twelve inches of snow fell in Omaha, with lesser amounts elsewhere. Scarcely a road in the state was open.

Brig. Gen. Guy N. Henninger, who is directing relief activities in Nebraska, said, "Human distress and misery are worse this morning than at any time since the storms began."

In northern Nebraska, where the relief work had scarcely scratched the surface, much of the blizzard busting work had to start anew. The new storm stalled a single coach train, the Omaha-Sioux-City train of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

The fifth army headquarters in Chicago shipped 30 more bulldozers to Nebraska to augment 57 army bulldozers and 29 half-track weasels already at work in the Nebraska storm area.

Ten more C-82 flying box cars joined the Nevada haylift, where feed has been dumped to stranded herds the last several days. Ranchers predicted that two more days of aerial feeding by air force crews would see them over the hump in the present emergency.

In Utah, the major "catastrophe area" where 1,200,000 sheep and cattle are snowbound, rising temperatures cheered ranchers.

Another sleet storm hit sections in the midcontinent, but colder

Veterans Must Exchange Old Certificates

Veterans who have old certificates of eligibility for G. I. Bill training are advised to exchange them immediately for a new-type certificate, if they are planning to enter school or job-training for the first time after January 1.

Mr. Donald C. Schworer, Veterans Administration representative at the University of Oregon, explained today that the out-dated certificates are all those issued before last September 1. Thousands of these which have never been used are in the hands of Oregon veterans.

Certificates may be exchanged in person or by mail. The exchange is necessary, Mr. Schworer said, because of a new registration method which the VA will employ after January 1.

The new form enables the agency to verify an ex-GI's educational entitlement before he starts training, thus allowing prompter service on tuition and subsistence payments after his training is begun.

Hostess Contest Deadline Nears

Now's the time for all veterans' wives to toss away that gingham apron and enter the contest for Dads' Day hostess. This the only chance for wives and mothers to get in the race with the campus queens and display their charms and talents to the campus.

Photos of candidates must be turned into the special box in the Emerald office by Tuesday, Feb. 1. All pictures will be returned to the owners if the name, address, and telephone number of the contestant is on the back of the print.

The name of the hostess will be announced in Thursday's Emerald. Mrs. Golda Wickham, dean of women; Mr. L. F. Beck, assistant professor; and Marvin Rasmussen, vice-president of the student body, are judges.
