orchards-and liked them so well they wouldn't touch the haystacks set out by the game commission.

But another "Haylift" began on the Columbia river near Astoria. The coast guard cutter Mallow took a load of hay to horses on Ferrell's island about Pillar rock.

The cutter Papaw delivered groceries to a middle-aged couple marooned by ice floes at Kaboth Sands in the Columbia river. A fishing boat, the W. B. Starr, delivered the first groceries in a week to several communities on the Columbia's north shore.

Every town in Oregon registered a below-freezing minimum: ranging from Baker's 13 below zero to Brookings' 31 above zero. Ontario had 4 below; Redmond 3 above; Lakeview 10; Pendleton 15; Grants Pass 24; Portland 28; Roseburg 29, Salem 28; Newport 30; Medford 21; La Grande 13.

stater with the Bremertan basketball team. Himself a "big man," Rog is adverse to the eccentric Phog Allen's equally eccentric idea of raising the board two feet. Allen, long time University of Kansas cage mentor, advanced his "12 foot plan" as a device to prevent basketball from turning into a game of Rog reasoned that raising the boards would make it all the tougher on men of average height. The Oregon skyscraper added his weight to the rising sentiment against stalling at the end of a game. He favors the oftmentioned "three minute" plan, by which the offensive team must take its foul shots in the last three minutes of play, and not be permitted to take the ball out.

Rog, who has been leading up to his big finale against the Huskies for a quarter of a century, believes that the Eastern style of ball develops better ball handlers, even when the Easterners themselves resort to the fast break. He does prefer the "Warrenized break" however, and believes that the Web-Nancy Brockway, hospitality; and foots were the fastest team on the court during the LIU series.

In his days as a Duck, "Hot Dog" has journeyed to Madison Square Garden twice. He participated in a two point loss to Long Island, fast becoming an Oregon tradition, and in a resounding victory over New York University. The hardest game Rog has ever played though, was the final game os last season when the Webfoots notched an 18 point win over OSC, thereby throwing the Beavers into a tie for the ND

Wiley, who will have earned four letters with U of O after this season, made just one statement concerning his basketball career after graduation-"I haven't considered professional ball."

Probably one fourth of the Washington squad, according to Wiley, is made up of ex-Bremerton boys. That is one of the underlying reasons for the Husky jinx, he believes. A brother, Lowell Riley, 24, is presently attending the Seattle institution.

Coach John Warren calls Wiley "a sincere kid, who really likes to work," Warren added that Rog was easy to coach, and is a good allaround man-whether it comes to scholastic achievement. (Rog is a Physical Education major), plunking in hook shots, of forming vocal quarters in the shower room. The Oregon cage boss commented that Rog was "tops," and rated him as good a basketball player he has ever coached-that means Rog is keeping company with all-Americans Slim Wintermute and Laddid Gale in the Warren mental file.

Cancer kills more mothers of school age children than any other disease

• Once, not too long ago-Mom heard her prayers at night, dressed her in the morning and got her off to school. . . . But Mom went away and didn't come back.

No home is safe from cancer. Last year cancer killed more mothers of growing families than any other disease. Tragic-but even more tragic is the fact that many of these deaths need never have happened.

Many of the mothers who now die could be cured-IF they learned to recognize cancer's symptoms and seek medical advice immediately -IF sufficient money can be found for the cancer research needed to discover the causes of the disease, to perfect its treatment.

The American Cancer Society, through its program of public education and medical research, is dedicated to the conquest of cancer. Will you help?
