Stars in "Hamlet"

this cinema version of Shakespeare's greatest play was filmed in black-and-white because, in the words of Oliver: "I see 'Hamlet' as an engraving rather than a painting." He has projected this idea into the film by use of depth-of-focus photography, where all characters on the screen, whether in the background or foreground, remain constantly in the sharpest focus.

Assisting Oliver in the $2,000,000 picture, which took eight months to film, are Jean Simmons as Ophelia, Felix Aylmer as Polonius, and two famed stage personalities from the Old Vic in London: Basil Sydney as Cladius, and Eileen Herlie as Gertrude. "Hamlet" is shown in this country under the sponsorship of New York's Theater Guild.

Oregon Poet to Speak In Browsing Room

Verne Bright, Oregon poet, will attend the Ethel R. Sawyer browsing room hour this afternoon at 4 p.m. After a lecture on his poem "Mountain Men" by R. V. Mill, assistant professor of English, Bright will read selections from his work and comment upon the lecture.

The Northwest author was graduated from Pacific university in 1925, and took graduate work in writing at the University of Oregon a few years later. He has worked on newspapers as reporter and editor. While doing this, he managed to continue his outside writing, and has had over twelve-hundred poems published in the United States and foreign countries.

Bright spent three years of intensive research on "Mountain Men," reading and studying over three-hundred books on history, Americana, and biography to obtain the background material.

This will be the fifth in this term's series of browsing room hours. The program has been devoted mainly of lectures on contemporary literature, said Miss Bernice Rise, head of circulation and readers' consultant. They will depart from the usual procedure next Tuesday, and present two one-act plays by the drama department.
