UWF Will Mull Atomic Energy Control Tonight

"Where Will You Hide," a film on the importance of the atom bomb, and showing actual atomic explosions, will be shown at the joint meeting of the United World Federalists and the International relations Club 7:30 tonight in 207 Chapman hall.

E. S. Wengert, head of the political science department, and R. T. Ellickson, associate dean of the graduate school, both of whom have worked on the atomic energy project, will speak.

Dr. Wengert will discuss "Progress of Control of Atomic Energy," stressing both the U.S. policy on atomic energy, and the international side of the control program, especially as to who has charge of developing atomic energy. Wengert worked on the atomic energy commission, aiding in the change-over from military to civilian.

"Potentialities of Atomic Energy and Progress of Development of Atomic Energy" is to be the subject of Mr. Ellickson's talk. Ellickson was an Oakridge physicist during the top-secret days of the A-bomb.

The IRC is sponsoring the movie and discussion because they feel atomic energy will play an important part in the world's future. The UN stopped discussing atomic energy sometime ago, and the IRC feels that such a move was dangerous. The meeting is open to the public.
