Little Colonel to Be Announced at Dance

With music by Jerry Van Hoomissen and his 12-piece orchestra, the second annual all-campus Military ball, since the close of the war, will be held Saturday night at McArthur court.

Van Hoomissen, from Portland where he broadcasts over NBC, features a style which "tries to give the dancers moderately tempoed music, with not too many fast tunes or drags—just something in between."

The University dance is formal, but Scabbard and Blade President Carl Miller emphasized that flowers are not in order. Tickets for the event are $2.50 and may be purchased at the Co-op or from any member of Scabbard and Blade.

At the dance, the Little Colonel will be announced. Selection will be based upon votes, for the nine Little Captains, with all votes to be cast at the Co-op. The nine Little Captains are: Georgianne Balaam, Jo Ann Jarvis, Mary Sexton, Lois Ann Haegle, Marilee McFarland, Roberta Tussing, Gay Williams, Beverly Zamsky, and Pat Husband. Miller announced that men purchasing tickets should give the name of their living organization, and the men's organization purchasing the most tickets will be given a 5 per cent rebate on the net proceeds for the dance. Veterans and ROTC students are also encouraged to wear their uniforms to the dance, Miller said.

Van Hoomissen, having one of the few bands in the West which features a French horn and bassoon, features John Waitt, one of the leading musicians and French horn players in the country.

Rabbi Speaks On Tolerance, Brotherhood

The word "tolerance" should be obsolete, Rabbi Saul Appelbaum, of the Congregation Beth Israel, Portland, said in a University Assembly program last night.

The Portland rabbi spoke on "Are Men Brothers or Bothers?" in connection with National Brotherhood Week. He objects to the word tolerance because he feels it is outmoded in our thinking.

Tolerance implies "a lordly gift and a humble receiver," Appelbaum said. "It implies condensation and we do not need condensation in our world. We need all our strength to unite to succeed."

"I am not interested in tolerance per se," he said. "The kind of world in which we live demands a feeling of oneness of man."

The rabbi warned that the greatest enemy of ours in Europe today is the gap between what we profess and what we do. He believes that this is the time for Americans to take action.

Three-Member Court Will Have Faculty Adviser

Establishment of a student traffic court was proposed by the ASUO executive council in its meeting last night.

The council unanimously adopted the report of a three-man committee which has been studying campus traffic problems and their probable solutions.

The three members will select a faculty member to serve as a non-voting advisor.

At the meeting ASUO President Bob Allen pointed out that this court could be one of the first steps in proving the students capable of self-government.

The court will have power to act on all cases occurring on University property, those referred to it by municipal authorities, and those

Schumacher Sets Plans For Essay Contest

The Philo Sherman Bennett prize of $35 is being offered this year for the best student essay on the principles of free government, Waldo Schumacher, professor in political science, and chairman of the essay contest committee, announced Monday.

"Any interested undergraduate is invited to participate to matter in which school he may be majoring," Dr. Schumacher said. "Any person who is interested in essay writing and in government would find it profitable to participate because he might win $5, but more important, he could put his thoughts down on writing and thus proceed to educate himself."

Essay subjects which University students may use are, "Academic Freedom and Democracy" and "Civil Rights in Oregon." Contest rules specify a length of 6,000 words or less, while standard documentation practices are to be observed. Essays are due by May 21, 1949, while the committee adds that it reserves the right to withhold the award.

Papers may be turned in to Dr. Schumacher, who added that the contest expiration date has been set for May 21 so that the winner's name may be placed on the commencement calendar.

Other members of the contest committee are P. L. Kleinsorge, assistant professor of history. Additional information on the contest may be secured from Dr. Schumacher or other members of the committee.
