Concert Pianist Tickets on Sale At Co-op Today

Tickets for Thursday's Bernhard Abramowitsch piano concert will be placed on sale today at the University Co-op, according to Al Kirk, ticket chairman for the sponsoring Chamber Concert series.

Orders will be filled from 11-1 and -5 Tuesday through Thursday. Abramowitsch, termed one of the musical greats on the Pacific coast, will be presented in concert Thursday at 8:15 p.m. at the school of music auditorium.

The Portland musician will be making his first appearance in Eugene following past performances with the Portland and San Francisco symphony orchestras and other west coast music groups.

This is the second of three concerts to be offered by the Chamber Concert series during the school year. The series is sponsored jointly by the three professional music groups on the campus—Phi Beta, women's music and drama professional, and Mu Phi Epsilon and Phi Mu Alpha, women's and men's national professional music fraternities. The Chamber Concert series is designed to supplement the regular offerings of the Civis Music association.

In addition to the ticket sales at the Co-op, tickets may be purchased from individual members of the three music organizations and at the music school auditorium door Thursday night. Season ticket holders will be admitted upon presentation of their cards.

Rabbi Speaks

(Continued from page one) er institutions with the prejudices of the ages. We should know that there is no such thing as inherited prejudice; there is only acquired prejudice and taught prejudice," the rabbi said.

"Brotherhood Week," sponsored annually by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, was started about two years ago on the suggestion of a Protestant minister.

Idea Began in 1928
The idea was born as a result of the smear of Catholic Al Smith in the 1928 presidential campaign. The week which is February 20-27 this year is appropriately designated between the birthdays of Lincoln and Washington, "both enshrined in American history," the rabbi said.

Rabbi Appelbaum appeared recently on the University of Washington as a Religious Emphasis week speaker. For several years he was program director of "The Message of Israel" over NBC.

The lecture was sponsored under the joint auspices of the University Lectures committee and the University Religious Council.

The Ethel R. Sawyer Browsing Room Hour will present two one-act plays by the drama department this afternoon from 4 until 5, according to Miss Bernice Rise, head of circulation and readers' consultant.

Nourse to Speak Before BA Group

Chairman of President Truman's council of economic advisers, Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, will arrive on the Oregon campus Tuesday, March 8, to confer with business administration students and faculty members.

Nourse, who has been prominent in current controversies over price declines and federal controls over business, will speak under the auspices of the business school. His Eugene appearance is his only scheduled stop in the state. Nourse will speak before a dinner to which key business leaders will be invited.

Often disagreeing with other members of the president's economic council, Nourse has tagged the present price decline as "healthy disinflation"—stressing the value of eluding business "jitters."

Reporting this month on the nation's economy, he said that the slump in employment and food prices would not develop into a trend. According to his report, there are in excess of 57 million persons now unemployed, and lower food prices may well be the natural result of last year's bumper crops.

Nourse had become nationally prominent as an economist before becoming economic adviser to the president. He was vice-president of Brookings institution and its director of the institute of economics; he is a past president of the American Economic association, and served as US delegate to the international institute of agriculture in 1924 and in 1936. After graduating from Cornell, Nourse received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1915.

The economist is being brought to the University as a part of the education program of the school of business administration. He will leave Wednesday for Seattle, where he will speak before a University of Washington audience.

First Baby Floors Father-Mother OK

CAMBRIDGE, O., Feb. 21 (AP) If you think an expectant mother has it tough, you should talk with Wilbur Archer—a new father.

The 34-year-old World War II veteran of Summerfield today displayed 17 stitches in his face and chin to prove his point.

His wife presented him with a six pound, six ounce baby boy Saturday at St. Francis hospital here.

When a nurse showed the baby to him, Archer fainted. His head struck the floor.

The mother and baby were "doing well" today. The father? well, "fairly good," the hospital said.
