Allen Picks Millrace Committee

ASUO President Bob Allen has appointed a student committee, headed by Druid President Warren Davis, to work in conjunction with the drive for restoration of the millrace.

Allen said yesterday that Carl Reusser, past president of Alpha Tau Omega, and Ed Allen, senior in law, will work with Davis. The committee's chief purpose will be to retain student interest in the restoration of the millrace.

Prexy Needs Help

Speaking of keeping students interested in the project, Allen said that he himself would work toward that end, but felt the need of a committee to do some of the work which he would not be able to do.

"The committee will work to some degree with the Millrace Park association," Allen declared, "since the aims of the association and those of the committee are, of course, the same."

Aids Race Association

In the past, the Millrace association has carried most of the load in the attempt to obtain easements and funds for the restoration of Eugene's historic millrace. With the formation of the new student committee, it is hoped that student energies will be directed to bringing restoration about in the near future.

TIERRA DE LA PAZ—(Special 'to the Emerald)—A most hideous monster, heretofore unheard of, was reported seen near this tiny island yesterday.

Natives (both of them) declared the monster was green, red and purple. They promptly named it. "Muera y Caigase," which means "drop dead."

The horrible monster was seen traveling north with the prevailing trade winds. If he continues this route he should end his journey somewhere in the neighborhood of Santa Halfwit which is close to the island of Cruxa Del Norte which is south of the North Pole.

A sailing vessel just off the tiny isle of Piaces Blazes reported the animal was some 100 feet long and had yellow eyes and was most uncouth in manner.

This announcement followed a report which said fifty-five fierce fighters fought fearlessly fighting forty-four ferocious foes.

And then the rains came and the little island of Ceilla-Ceilla disappeared.

I say old fellow, did anyone tell you it was April Fool's day?

Increasing cloudiness Friday—partly cloudy with few light showers Saturday. High 55.

Strike May Delay Oregana Publication Until Summer

Distribution and publication of the Oregana may be delayed by a pending strike of the CIO lithographers in Portland, according to Larry Davidson, managing editor of the yearbook. The union voted March 26 to go on strike tomorrow, April 2.

The annual could still be distributed spring term if the strike is terminated within three weeks, however, if the strike is called, and it lasts more than three weeks, the Oregana would have to be mailed to students during the summer.

Nearly two-thirds of the book will be completed by April 2, strike day, leaving about 100 pages to be run off. Two Portland firms—Irwin-Hodson, in charge of lithography, and Bushong's, which has the contract for color insert and cover—each have approximately 10 days work on hand.

Distribution of the Oregana has been planned for some time shortly following Junior Weekend, if no strike is called.

Dick Williams, educational activities manager, will travel to Portland this afternoon to talk over the situation with officials of the two printing firms.

Best Vaudeville Actor To Get Trip to Reno

A free trip to Reno and a chance to appear on a nationwide radio hookup will be awarded to the best individual performer in the benefit All-Campus Vaudeville show April 15, announced Chairman Art Johnson yesterday.

The outstanding performer, either as a member of a group or in a solo act, will be selected by a group of five judges chosen from students, faculty members, and townspeople and will be given the trip opportunity by the courtesy of the University of Nevada, which is putting on the radio show.

Grand prize of the show, proceeds of which will go to the World Student Service Fund, will be a large trophy awarded to the living or church organization presenting the best act. The individual award is a separate prize and does not affect the trophy award.

Eliminations Scheduled

Eliminations to determine which acts will actually appear in the Friday night show were set yesterday for Monday and Tuesday, April 11, and 12, in Gerlinger Annex.

"The number of acts which reach the finals will depend on their quality. (Please turn to page 2)

Emerald Stumbles Over False News

The Emerald's unpredictable news sources kicked the lid off April Fools day a little early this season.

With the AP teletype machine shut down, the sports staff obtained the news that the "unpredictable Portland Beavers" lambasted San Francisco 12-0 from a now dubious source.

The source also said Portland's starting pitcher went the entire game.

San Francisco won 7-6.

Portland's starter was taken out in the third inning.

No runs, no hits, two errors.

UO Motorists Join Pool to Cut Down Expenses on Cars

The Co-operative Automobile Club, more familiar to Oregon students as CAC, has arrived on the campus under the management of Lewis C. Nickerson, junior law student.

CAC is a non-profit automobile maintenance and service organization which will save money for student motorists. A "district" is already operating at Stanford university, where the idea was originated last fall by Gordon L. Ness, 22-year-old senior in journalism.

Here at Oregon, a similar plan was put in operation by Nickerson last term. Starting with three fraternities and the Yeomen, this early version of CAC worked well enough to grow into an informal organization which brought savings to members of four more fraternities and Sherry Ross hall.

Owners Get Discounts

An agreement was reached with Elmer Wick, independent owner of the Richfield service station at Eleventh and Pearl streets, to give discounts in return for volume business. House membership cards served to identify these charter members of the co-operative.

Membership fee is $2.00 annually, and entitles the holder to discounts at any CAC service station or garage. Discounts range from 20 percent on all parts, for a new motor or a windshield wiper, to 10 percent on all labor charges at the garages.

At the service station, CAC members can get gas at two cents per gallon reduction, oil is five cents cheaper per quart, and lubrication jobs on all automobiles are $1.00, regardless of make, model, or year. In addition, service stations give a 15 percent reduction on tires and seat covers, and install them free.

French Play Hits Boards 8:00 Tonite

"Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," a seventeenth century French comedy by Moliere, directed by Dick Rayburn, with a cast of students from the French department, will be presented tonight beginning at 8 p. m.

The play will run three-nights in Johnson hall's Guild theater, April 1, 2, and 4, and will be presented on April 6 in Portland. The cast includes Ed VanNatta, Coralie Nelson, Bill Wallace, Beverly Ronner, Glenn Morgan, Nancy Moran, Jim Eakin, Ann Thompson, Julian Hoffman, Jo Anne Jarvis, Jim Blue, William Johnson, and Phyllis Higginbotham. Dancers are Glenna Hurst and Edmund Savoy. A prologue to the play will be given in English by Robert D. Horn, professor of English.

A feature of the production will be the original seventeenth century music by Lulli, which will be played for the minuets by a small orchestra composed of students from the school of music. The dancers, coached by Mrs. Margaret Logan, instructor in physical education, will perform the minuets in between acts and at the end of the play. To maintain a French atmosphere in the theater, the ouvreuses and the vendeur des programmes will speak French. Pictures of the cast will be sold through the audience before the performance begins and during intermission.

Tickets may be obtained at the box office in Johnson hall for 60 cents. Some of the profits will go into a scholarship sponsored by Pi Delta Phi, French honorary organization.
