

Petitions Due For ISA Posts

Bob Henderson, ISA president, yesterday announced that all petitions for ISA offices must be turned in by 6 p.m. Thursday, April 28, to Eileen Lemley, Zeta hall, or John Day, Minturn hall.

Petitions must be accompanied by signatures of 20 independent students and an eligibility slip from the office of student affairs, he stressed. Petitioners must attend the regular ISA senate meeting set for 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Offices open include: president, vice president, treasurer, secretary, senior representatives, junior representatives, and sophomore representatives.

beginning of the current school year.

Campus News

"We plan to emphasize campus news next year," said Smith. "We will try to cut national news down to a minimum, printing only that which is of interest to the student body."

Smith began his journalistic career in high school, as editor of the school paper. At Oregon he has not only been active on the Emerald, but has also served as treasurer of the sophomore class, a member of Skull and Dagger, and has been cast in several Guild theater productions.

Joan Mimnaugh, who will be next year's Emerald business manager, is at present finishing a year as assistant business manager. Miss Mimnaugh, a junior, will enter her last year in journalism school next fall.

Inherit 'Ad Side'

Miss Mimnaugh will inherit the bedlam of scissors, paste, and phone calls that is the Emerald's "ad side."

Oregana Editor Larry Davidson faces the coming year without a managing editor.

"I am on the lookout for a junior who is good at writing," declared Davidson. Most of the remainder of his staff has been chosen—becoming official appointments at the beginning of next year.

Edited High School Paper

Davidson, like Smith, was editor of this high school paper. He followed this with an up-the-ladder attack on the Oregana—layout staff during his first year, associate editor of schools as a sophomore, and managing editor of the 1949 Oregana.

"I hope to have more pages next year," speculated Davidson. However, I won't know until the proposed budget has passed the educational activities board.

Planning for '50

Davidson will spend the summer making work schedules for next fall. He has already begun to work on color inserts for the 1950 "book."

Business Manager Jim Sanders has worked during the past year in the business office of the Oregana. He will take the place of Olga Yevitch, manager of the 1949 edition.

All that time is lost which might be better employed.

Sixth Army Inspectors "Pleased" With Performance Cadets

Sixth Army ROTC inspectors returned a "highly pleased" judgment of the local corps, according to Col. F. R. Maerdian, local military science head. The inspecting officers are on a tour of Northwestern schools.

"Morale and general results were highly satisfactory," the colonel stated after visits to many military science classes to quiz the cadets. Despite the inclement weather a formal review was held for he visitors during their stay from April 21 to 25.

Since this was the first unit inspected no comparable results with other schools was obtained, but an overall report will be sent to the local corps the end of May.

Duck Counselor Petitions Due This Thursday

Meeting a Duckling Counselor kept at least one homesick Oregon freshman woman from packing her bags and going home this year.

This is but one of the many stories which have come out of the Counseling program, according to Miss Lois Greenwood, YWCA director.

Petitions are due Thursday for some 200 Oregon women to act as Duckling counselors next fall. These counselors will contact prospective newcomers during the summer by letter, and arrange to meet them on the campus during Freshman Week.

"One girl last fall hadn't met her Duckling Counselor by the time of the Y-AWS mix," Miss Greenwood said yesterday. "Another Counselor picked her up just at the moment when she was all ready to leave for home."

"The friendship which grew up between the freshman and her counselor kept her from leaving, and she is now pursuing a completely satisfactory University career."

The Y sophomore cabinet, which is in charge of the counseling program, hopes this year to avoid situations in which the original counselor and the Duckling do not get together. For this purpose they are dividing the counselors into smaller groups, each with a chairman responsible. This chairman will contact the counselors and see that they get in touch with their Ducklings.
