

Queen Candidate

PRETTY MARY MARGARET JONES is one of five finalists in the Junior Weekend queen competition. The dark-eyed princess is a graduate of Eugene high.

Mothers Won't Be Out in Cold, Says Housing Chairman Buckley

"Plenty of housing" is the word regarding the forthcoming Mother's weekend, according to Housing Chairman Bev Buckley.

She urged that students plan to have their mothers attend the weekend, run this year in conjunction with Junior weekend, adding that students who have not yet made arrangements for housing contact her at the Tri-Delt house.

Cartons of cigarettes will be awarded to the living organizations having the highest percentage of mothers here for the weekend.

A view of the end of the float parade will be possible after the Saturday afternoon tea. A special section in the balcony will be made available so mothers may watch the Junior prom; open houses in various campus departments, and other attractions are planned.

A special issue of the Emerald will be printed next Tuesday, explaining both Mothers' weekend and Junior weekend. Blank address stickers will be distributed to living organizations, addressed and returned to the Emerald so the edition may be mailed out.

Remembers Other Courts...

Princess Mary Enjoys New Role

"I saw the Junior weekend princesses when I was still in high school, but I never realized that I would be one myself," said Princess Mary Margaret Jones.

Mary received the news of her selection at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Jones, when a group of her sorority sisters interrupted a bridge game to bring her the announcement.

"Living in Eugene is fine," Mary stated, "but since we've just moved, my only complaint is that we have no phone."

The dark-eyed princess is a graduate of Eugene high, where, during her senior year, she was both May queen, and war bond queen. She was also selected as a Little Captain in her sophomore year at the University.

A biology major, Mary Margaret is a contradiction to the old saying, "beautiful, but dumb," for her cumulative GPA is well over 3 point.

One of her favorite pastimes is playing with Dinah, her dog. Dinah is a beagle, which, according to Mary Margaret, is the second most popular dog in the United States.

A member of Pi Beta Phi, Mary takes an active part in house activities, and although she doesn't live at the house, she spends a great deal of her time there.

Standing about 5 feet 5 inches, Mary Margaret's other interests include bridge and knitting, both of which she is very adept at doing.

After graduation, Mary hopes to go on working for her master's degree, or go into biological research work.

Faculty Member Dr. John Ganoe Dies in Portland

Dr. John Tilson Ganoe, professor of history in the University of Oregon since 1930, died Thursday, at the age of 49 years, in a Portland hospital following an illness of several months duration.

Memorial services for Professor Ganoe will be held at 1:30 Saturday at the Congregational church in Eugene.

Dr. Ganoe was born in Boone, Iowa, on December 8, 1900. He attempted the University as a student, receiving his bachelor of science and master's degrees in history from Oregon in 1923 and 1924,

Explanation Revealed for 'Caricatures'

The persons, members of the USA party, responsible for the "caricature" posters which appeared on the campus Wednesday, explained yesterday to the Emerald that the posters were not intended to cast a reflection on the AGS, or to humiliate any USA candidate.

The students responsible said they wished to express their apology to any candidates who may have suffered embarrassment because of the posters.

Millrace Meeting

Attention, all mermaids and mermen, lovers of the aquatic sports, canoeing enthusiasts, and sundry others—

Warren Davis, chairman of the campus drive for funds to restore the millrace, needs your help.

All students, male or female, interested in making the millrace wet again, are requested by Davis to meet with him at 10 a.m., Saturday, upstairs at the Side.

Junior Week'nd Means Return Of Traditions

With Junior weekend comes tradition week, and Order of O men will be on the watch for violators of campus traditions—especially freshmen, starting Monday.

Painting of the O on Skinner's butte, washing of the Oregon seal in front of Villard, and the cleaning of the trophies in Mac court will be performed by errant freshmen, according to Bob Sanders, president of Order of the O.

But there are a number of traditions which apply to every student, from freshman to graduate. In short, no student must:

Walk on any campus lawn;
Fail to say "hello" to everyone he sees on Hello Walk—which runs from 13th past Fenton and Deady and around Villard;

Smoke on the old campus;
Sit on the senior bench (unless he's a senior);

Walk on the Oregon seal.

Cigar-Smoking Beauty to Rule Law Weekend

By Marjorie Bush

Queen Avery I, she of the full red lips and soft, brown, receding hair, told last week how it felt to be chosen queen of Law School weekend.

"It's the greatest honor in seven years of college and since I first started to Oregon back in '33," she exclaimed. The queen, better known as Avery (age-before-beauty) Combs in the Stacks, asserted that her platform of Purity and Maturity will be maintained. As for the rest of her family, Queen Avery said her wife thought it was "not too bad" to be related to royalty and was planning on recording the event with pictures (possibly for blackmail).

Dual Personality

Described by her "friends" as the quiet and lurid type, Queen Avery is said to have a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde personality. During campaigning she was compared to a beautiful little schmoo. Five feet nine in height and 160 pounds (conservative estimate) describe her.

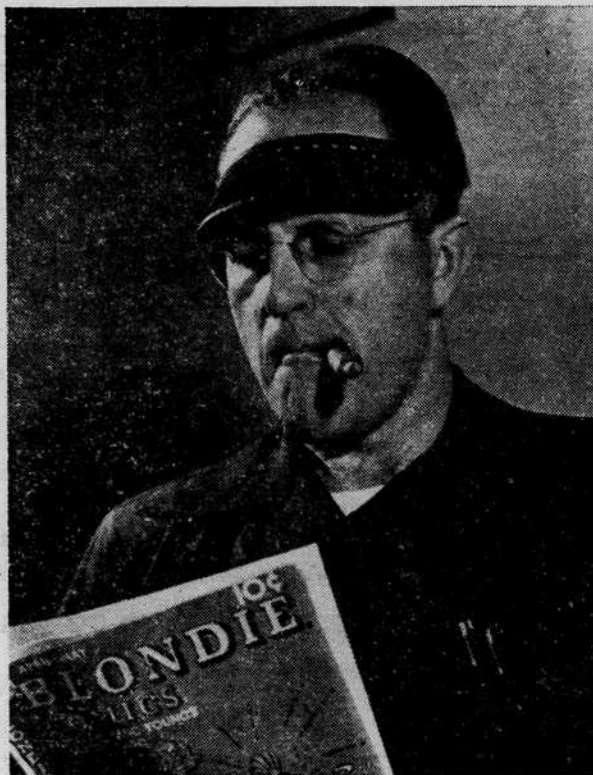

"I'm a perfect 36," Queen Avery blushing admitted—"36 bust, 36 waist, 36 hips and 36 shoulders." For her current hair-style, she has chosen an up-sweep from her high forehead, however, last fall the queen was sporting a new feather bob. Fishing is one of Her Majesty's pet diversions.

When the annual baseball game between the law school and EA school takes place next Saturday, Queen Avery will throw out the first pitch. "I have lots of experience from the American Legion team," she said. Queen Avery predicts an easy victory for the future lawyers, either on runs or technicalities, at least by 10.

QUEEN AVERY I (eyeshade and cigar) reflects in this pose her platform of "Purity and Maturity." Better known as Avery Combs, the law school queen will rule over festivities this weekend. Included in the right photo are Princess Bob Carney and flower girls Jack Jill and Wally Martin.

Completing the royal court are Princesses Robert and Richard Carney. Chosen unanimously and making history by being the first twins to achieve this honor, they ran on the platform, "Which twin has the phoni?" Because Richard (known as Dickie Boy at Susan Campbell) was unavailable for an interview, Robert spoke for both of them.

"We were overwhelmed," Princess Robert gasped, "simply overwhelmed!" (She also muttered "I was framed!") Friends say that one of the luscious red-haired twins is commonly believed to be Edgar Bergen and the other Charlie McCarthy.

Flower Girls

Flower girls for the gala affair will be Jack Hill, Wally Martin, and Bill Rooney. Hill is the precedent-shattering candidate who was chosen in spite of his third-year standing. Besides his many talents, he is also known as the law school's "best-dressed."

Wally Martin, second-year student, was acclaimed as one of the three people in the law school who doesn't shave—the other two are women. He serves also as assistant director of the Royal Loyal Coronation band. Petite Bill Rooney was awarded the junior position of first-year flower girl.
