A Democrat's View

3. Reapportionment of the legislature according to the constitution.
4. Increasing the basic school bill.
5. Stanly state rent controls.
6. Slum clearance in the cities and towns.
7. A State Constitutional convention.
8. Fair Employment Practices legislation to prevent discrimination in jobs.
9. Requirement of competent cruises and setting of fair valuation before state school timber land can be sold.
10. Repeal of the anti-labor bills of 1947.
11. Indorsement of CVA, the program begun by President Truman for orderly development of the Columbia River.

Is there any phase of this program which you regard as dangerous or unwise? Yet most of it was defeated. Fair Employment Practices passed, but in greatly modified form. Study of the New York Times indicates that the program offered by the Democrats in Oregon was considerably more conservative than that presented to the New York state legislature by Governor Thomas E. Dewey. Yet it was apparently too liberal for Oregon's Republican Party, which has ruled this state virtually since admission to the Union.

The people of the state will decide this issue in November of 1950.

study. Success of these will depend on the ability and integrity of the members named. If they return in 1951 with programs based on careful and non-partisan thought their efforts will probably be adopted in part if not in toto.

It was a good legislature, composed of men desirous of doing a good job (more to be desired than a fast job) and the young and the old worked together without rancor or bitterness.

It will be criticized by those who are critics by nature but its major work will stand any such attack. The state of Oregon will get along on its program for another two years and emerge with its bills paid, some money in the bank and its citizens' desires satisfied.

Bar Examiners Meet in Eugene

The nine members of the board of examiners of the Oregon State Bar will hold one of their regular meetings in Eugene today and Saturday, Orlando John Hollis, dean of the law school, announced yesterday.

Tonight at 6:30 they will hold a dinner meeting with the 36 members of the third-year law class to discuss matters of mutual interest regarding the bar examination. A luncheon meeting of the law school faculty and the board will be held Saturday.

Robert Leedy, Portland attorney and graduate of the Oregon law school, is chairman of the board of examiners.

All-Campus Sing Winners to be On Sunlight Serenade Program

Winners of the all-campus sing will be featured in the Junior Weekend Sunlight Serenade to be held from 3 to 5 p. m. Sunday in the open-aid auditorium behind the music school, Mary Stadelman, serenade chairman, announced.

Sing winners will be named Friday night after the performance in McArthur court. Twenty houses will compete.

Jim McMullen, who recently sang with the Portland symphony orchestra, will be on the serenade program. He will sing a solo and he and Claire Lewis will sing a duet.

Prospective Legal Eagles Please Note

All students who have not received an application form by mail and who desire to apply for admission to the school of law at the beginning of next fall should call at the office of the law school secretary at once and secure an application form, it has been announced by Orlando John Hollis, dean.

Law school application forms have already been mailed to all students whose names are carried on the school's list of pre-legal students academically eligible for admission to the law school at the beginning of the next academic year.

Applications for next fall term must be filed with the law school not later than Friday, May 13.

Anne Kafoury will play a violin solo. The Delta Gamma trio and Kappa Sigma quartette will sing several numbers. The program will be completed with a vocal number by Virginia Walker and a piano solo.

The queen and her court will be presented to close the weekend officially.

Committee members working with Miss Stadelman are Phil Green, program; Barbara Stevenson, assistant program chairman; Florence Hansen, contracts; Janice Kent, decorations; Ruth Landry, arrangements; Ruth Dexter, refreshments.
