

Let's Go Shopping

By Alicia Peters

Spring at the U.—or spring any place—means picnic time, and one of the best things about going on picnics is the freedom of being able to wear comfortable clothes in the style of one's choice. This usually means jeans or shorts, a shirt of some kind—Hawaiian print, T-shirt, or sweat shirt—an old rain hat and a swimming suit. However, there is fashion's idea of style under the sun, too, as witness a few items selling in just one downtown department store:

In bathing suits—and one particularly—a two-piece Jantzen in pink, elastized stitching making the trim—and more space exposed to sun. Price: $14.95.

"Stunners" by Cole are considered the new thing. This is a two-piece terry cloth sun suit, with string straps, $3.95. It can't be excelled for sun bathing but is not suitable for wear in the water.

Two old standbys for many seasons and for many more to come are the Jantzen corduroy pedal-pushers and shorts. $3.95 for the pushers, $5.95 for the shorts. The pedal-pushers have a placket in front, and come in green, three shades of blue, maroon, red, beige; the shorts, lemon, coral, blue, green, beige. Add a wide-striped Jantzen T-shirt ($2.95) to a pair of these and you have an outfit.

Thedenim play clothes under the label of Sailing Blues are worth special mention. Originally this line made only a sailor dress with a wide lay-back collar, inset belt and insignia pocket. While they still make this dress, they have added to their line two other sun dresses, a golf shirt, slacks, shorts, vest, halter and knockabout jacket.

Because these clothes are made of denim, they will stand a lot of wear, sunshine and tubbing. The knockabout jacket ($7.95) with its white buttons and stitching, button cuffs and two big pockets is practically a picnic indispensable.

Neptune Reigns Supreme In Dance Theme Popularity

Last Saturday's house dances presented a variety of themes and costumes. However, sea themes prevailed with three out of the nine dances displaying marine decor.

Imitation "Scarfaces" and gun molls reigned at "Lambda Chi Alphanatraz." Guests were summoned to come to trials, which were held in an atmosphere of bars and drab cell blocks. In front of the house there was a searchlight and a scaffolding and noose, guarded by the prison gates.

From a gangplank through a window into a dark, eerie maze, guests were led into the midst of Sigma Alpha Mu's "Deep Sea Drag." Downsairs in "Davy Jones' Locker" costumes could be seen which included old-fashioned bathing suits, divers' outfits, and pirates' garb. The outstanding feature of the decorations was a miniature waterfall, hidden in evergreens, which fell into the tiny pool. The display was made effective by the use of lights which gave the pool a clear blue hue, and dry ice which caused a mist to form around the fall.

"Pig Alle" attracted Apache dancers and French dolls to the Sigma Chi house last weekend. A hot jazz band accompanied the couples who, by means of a slide into the basement, reached the main part of the house to receive their favors, lace garters. An all-red dining room represented a French cafe, and the den, a hotel. Surrounded by murals of Parisian streets was a boat attached to an imitation wharf.

Sherry Ross hall depicted the last ten years in music at "The Hit Parade." Oversized music sheets illustrated popular band leaders, vocalists, and such songs as "White Christmas" and "I'll Be Seeing You." Hal Hardin and orchestra felt at home among the huge treble clefs on the bandstand. Guests were presented with long-stemmed carnations at the informal dance.

A variety of sea foods were served at "Beachcomber's Ball" at the Delta Upsilon house. Outside were fish nets, a rowboat, and a scene with fish, coral, and logs dominated the inside of the house. The decorations were set off by black crepe paper which covered all the walls.

E. Z. Zarones supplied music for Pi Kappa Alpha's formal "Spring Fever." White gates, picket fences and ivy trellises surrounded the lovely lilac gardens.

Clowns, Raggedy Anns and Andys, and representatives of the young set ran amuck at Fiji's "Fun House." Guests were entertained by sliding, crawling, and climbing through series of mazes. Balloons and fun house scenes decorated the walls.

Floors of the Alpha Tau Omega house were littered with seaweed, logs, and fish nets at "Cannibal Isle." Various animals, among them an immense hippopotamus, were depicted on the wallpaper. Spotted in the crowd were saronged girls, shipwrecked sailors, beachcombers, and even a pair of monkeys.

Norman Lamb Wins KEX Scholarship

Norman Lamb, senior in speech and radio was recently awarded the annual KEX radio scholarship. The award gives Lamb the opportunity to work for two months at the Portland radio station. Applications for the scholarship were submitted by students from many schools in the northwest area. Lamb is a member of Kappa Rho Omicron, radio honorary, and Sigma Chi fraternity.

Frosh To Get Instructions

All women who petitioned to be Duckling counselors are expected to attend one of three training meetings beginning next Monday, May 2, at 4 p.m. in the YWCA bungalow.

Other meetings are scheduled for Tuesday, May 10, and Wednesday, May 11. Prospective counselors may attend any one of the three meetings which they find most convenient.

Counseling program Chairman Ann Darby, Davida Riddell, Lois Williams, and others will explain the counseling system and duties of counselors.

"Several house representatives have not yet turned in petitions from their organizations," Lois Greenwood, Y executive secretary, said yesterday.

Coed Frydenlund Claims Life Holds Little of Excitement

By Jo Anne Hewitt

"How could my life be exciting," asked Joanne Frydenlund, "when all of it has been spent in Eugene?"

Since her arrival on the U. of O. campus from her crosstown high school, her days have indeed been active ones. At present she is president of her sorority, Alpha Phi, chairman of judges for the All-Campus Sing, second vice-president of Panhellenic, vice-president of Phi Theta, and a member of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary.

As to the future, her one desire is to seek employment elsewhere than Eugene, preferably California, or any place where she can secure a foothold in the magazine world. From this it is easily seen that she is a journalism major, and past work on the Emerald bears this out.

If all else fails, her work in the Co-op qualifies her as a bookkeeper. There is nothing duller, in her opinion, than the U. of O. Co-op in summer, especially when not even summer school is in session. Summer plans this year include a trip to Cal at Berkeley and Redlands.

Unlike most Oregon co-eds, Freddie does not knit. She prefers to play double solitaire with her roommates or play blackjack poker.

With the arrival of spring term, the popular game of croquet also returns, and she is an ardent fan of this sport. In parting, Freddie would like to give this brief thought for the day: "There should be more spring terms during the school year. Students could then throw off the feelings of guilt they have over not studying fall and winter terms, and frankly admit where the time goes as they do in the spring."

Business Honorary Pledges 13 Women

Phi Chi Theta, national business women's fraternity, pledged thirteen new members Thursday night in the men's lounge of alumni hall.

New pledges are: Mildred Chetty, Bonnie Gienger, Betty Horand, Marguerite Johns, Maxine Landron, Pat McGinty, Suzanne Michell, Phillis Morgan, Mary Myers, Dorothy Orr, Dorothy Thompson, and Mary Vranizan.

For membership in the honorary, pledges must meet a required grade point average and show leadership in the field of business.
