Libraries Due On Thursday

Students' personal libraries may be entered in the Library Day prize contest up to 6 p.m. today. Each of the contest's three categories — undergraduate's general library, undergraduate's specialized library, and graduate student's library—offers prizes of $25, $15, and $10 in books to be purchased at the Co-op.

Entries must be arranged by 10 o'clock Saturday morning, in the reserve book reading room, where they will be displayed until 6 p.m., Sunday. Judging, by members of the faculty and others chosen from various fields, will take place at 2 p.m., Saturday, and prizes will be awarded at 4 o'clock that afternoon in the browsing room.

Miss Bernice Rise, head of the circulation department, may be contacted for any information concerning the contest.

Physical Plant Ponders Error

T-squares and slide rules rattled angrily at the physical plant yesterday after the office received its copies of the Emerald. Kirk Braun's column about the physical plant's violation of their own "No Parking" ordinance had everyone looking daggers and muttering deep dark threats.

Harry D. Jacoby, assistant superintendent, had no comment, referring the matter to Irwin I. Wright, superintendent of the physical plant. Wright, he said, had seen the article, and had expressed his desire to offer some comment thereon.

Unfortunately, Wright was involved in an important afternoon-long business meeting, and could not be reached immediately for comment. He did leave word however, that he would save his ammunition till tomorrow.

Braun's article disclosed the fact that although parking in alleys close to the architecture school was forbidden to students and faculty, because of fire hazard, physical plant trucks were violating the ordinance. A photo of the crime accompanied the column.

after the first six months to $2880 annually, and later to $3240.

Successful applicants for the United Nations program will be provided living expenses during their internship, at the rate of $37.50 per week. Available funds, contributed by Rotary International and the United Nations, are sufficient for 35 interns. No provision will be made for traveling expenses.

It is expected that the group of interns will live together in a school or university residence near Lake Success. The living expenses allowance will cover meals and residence, laundry, medical and hospital insurance, and minor incidental expenses.

Purpose of the United Nations program is to provide students interested in the field of international affairs with a working study of the organization of the United Nations and its specialized agencies, besides giving a practical insight into the working problems and organization of the U. N. Secretariat.

The department of State program, also expected to begin in July, is designed for a limited number of college students who are interested in a career in the department. Special assignments on professional or administrative work in one of the areas of the department, specialized instruction at the department's foreign service institute, rotational and observational assignments, and periodic group discussions will be arranged for the successful candidates.
