

JW Princess

PRINCESS PHYLLIS MORGAN is last, but not least, in the group of five Junior weekend princesses presented in the Emerald this week. An enthusiastic skier, she has refrained from skiing the last couple weeks to keep herself in one piece for the weekend ceremonies.

Float Route, Order Given by Patterson

Floats for the Junior Weekend parade will assemble at 4th and Charnelton, and on back up Charnelton, at 3 tomorrow afternoon, parade chairman Phil Patterson announced yesterday. Route of the parade will be to Willamette from the assembly point, up Willamette to 13th, out 13th to campus and up University to 18th. Here the parade will turn left and end by the ATO house.

Judges for the contest include Mayor Ed Johnson; Oren King, city manager; Ann Connell, society editor of the Register-Guard; Mrs. J. F. White, of Tiffany-Davis drug store; and faculty members R. D. Clark, assistant to dean of college of liberal arts, and R. R. Ferens, assistant professor of architecture.

The parade will be headed by a police car, the band, and the Junior Weekend Queen, who will be crowned at the All-Campus Sing tonight.

Remainder of the parade is as follows: 1, Tau Kappa Epsilon-Gamma Phi Beta; 2, Stitzer hall-Rebec house; 3, Delta Tau Delta-Gamma hall; 4, Orides-Pi Kappa Alpha; 5, Theta Chi-Alfa Chi Omega; 6, Nestor hall-Kappa Alpha Theta.

Free Prom Ticket To Lucky Student

Parachute warfare — junior size—will hit the campus this morning at 10:50 when Oregon students scramble to snatch the parachute from the flare released by the "Mad Arabians" between Chapman and Condon halls.

A free ticket to Saturday night's Junior Prom will go to the victorious student returning the parachute to Bill Lance at the Sigma Nu house, courtesy of the Junior weekend promotion committee.

Also featured between 10:50 and 11 a.m. will be a harem dance, a five-piece orchestra, and a seven-minute skit.

No Tyro She

Versatile Princess Boasts Talents

By Anne Goodman

She skis, knits, cooks, sews, and plays bridge. She is Phyllis Morgan, last of the candidates for queen of Junior weekend. The queen will be crowned at the All-Campus Sing Friday night.

Princess Phyllis likes her birthplace, Eugene. "It's big enough—yet you still know the people," she pointed out.

An enthusiastic skier, the 5-foot, 6-inch lass refrained from the sport last Sunday for fear she might break a leg. "Any other time I wouldn't care, but I couldn't see attending the coronation on crutches," she explained.

Not one, but seven pairs of finished argyles has she to her credit. The tanned, comely miss would not commit herself concerning their recipients.

The main reason for her interest in cooking is that she is a "persnickety eater and can draw up a list of foods a mile long that I don't like."

She was in the royal court at a Eugene high school Beaux

Arts ball, secretary of her high school student body, and a finalist in the campus Betty Co-ed contest last year.

Her travels include one trip out of Oregon—to visit friends in far-away New York.

Business administration is her college major and she loves to travel. This member of Oregon royalty expects to find herself working in the merchandising field after she graduates, perhaps in a "bigger town, since there are more opportunities.

All-Campus Sing, Coronation Headline Tonight's Activities

Arabian Picnic Will Feature Tapping, Music

Herb Widmer and his combo will provide music at the all-campus, "Feast of Scheherazade" tomorrow. Mothers, guests and students will see the old campus transformed to resemble an oasis on the Arabian desert.

Students from all organized living organizations will receive tickets through their houses. The admittances may be bought for guests and off-campus students at the Co-op or the picnic for 45 cents.

Houses under the Brezee Warner system may send representatives there to pick up their tickets.

Bob Nelson will emcee the event, at which the queen and her court will be honored guests. Seerving will be members of Kwama and Phi Theta, while Skull and Dagger members will take tickets. Schedule of the 12 to 2 p.m. affair is as follows:

- 12:00—Eight tables serving food.
- 12:50—Queen's procession
- 1:00—Mortar Board taps
- 1:20—Friars tap
- 1:30—Asklepiads tap
- 1:40—Scabbard and Blade taps
- 1:55—Recessional

Crowning of Queen Inaugurates '1001 Nights' Weekend Activities

Tonight will be "one night in a thousand" for two groups of singers and a campus queen.

They will share honors at Junior Weekend's all-campus sing and coronation. Starting time is 8 o'clock in McArthur court. Tickets are on sale at the Co-op, the educational activities office, and will be sold at the door.

Sally Waller and Lou Weston are co-chairmen of the sing. Dorothy Orr and Sue Michel are directing the coronation.

20 Groups Compete
Men's and women's choruses will compete with over 19 other groups in each division. For the first time, only one judge, Raymond Moreman of UCLA will pick the winners.

The five princesses will become four princesses and a queen after the coronation. Mayor Edwin Johnson of Eugene will crown the queen to open the sing.

Awards Given
Awards that will be given at intermission include:

- Josephine Evans Harpham cup, to be given by Carl Hintz, University librarian;
- Phi Theta Upsilon scholarships, by Marguerite Johns;
- Hazel P. Schwering scholarship, by Mrs. Perrie Dolph of Portland;
- Delta Delta Delta scholarships, by Gloria Stannard;

Registration Hours Set

Hours for registration of mothers today and Saturday have been announced by Margaret Wickenden, registration chairman.

Mothers arriving today may register at Johnson hall from 2 to 5 p.m., and Saturday's registration will be from 8:30 to 11 a.m. in Straub, 9 to 2 in Johnson, and 2 to 4:30 in Gerlinger.

A special section will be set aside in the east balcony of McArthur court Saturday night, for mothers who wish to attend the Junior Prom. Refreshments will be served by Eugene mothers.

Awards of Chesterfield cigarettes will be awarded to the living organizations with the largest percentage of mothers attending the weekend.

Canoe Fete Nationally Publicized

This is the last in a series of three articles tracing the development of Junior weekend.

By Bill Lance

It is hard to reconcile the present Junior weekend and the now-dry millrace. The magic and fame of that great water spectacle had for years been the envy of other colleges and universities.

Evidence that no other college had any comparable event was seen in the annual coverage of the fete by national magazines and newsreels. This year, however, Eugene looks forward to seeing the traditional parade in its mechanized version on downtown Willamette street, with the realization that next year the fete may come into its own.

All week splashes of spring weather and tasks of preparing decorations have cut wide swaths in study hours, giving the University all the earmarks of the movie-lot college setting for the Ritz brothers.

A great irregularity occurred last year when Snowbelle, the St. Bernard mascot of the Phi Psi fraternity, ran for queen. Snowbelle garnered 203 votes in the election placing her in second place to Nancy Swen, the lovely blonde who won the crown. The pup thus won herself a position in the royal court. However, heavy-jowled but frisky Snowbelle was disqualified on a technicality—she was a lowly second-term sophomore.

So, year by year, Junior weekend has become flavored with the joys of celebrations past. It has retained some of its original academic meaning in the awarding of scholarships and cups and the honorary tappings. It continues the keen rivalry of the early junior-sophomore conflicts in the tug-of-war and traditions rulings on the old campus. It maintains its air of sophistication with a comely queen and the gala Junior Prom.

The festival has continued to grow in the hearts of University students and friends. Today they look with pride at Junior weekend as the culmination of a year's activities and the symbol of the constructive attitude and loyal spirit which makes up a major part of University life.
