

Retailers Open Meet Tomorrow

Business Men, UO Students Gather for Annual Conference

Some 500 to 600 Oregon businessmen and University students are expected to attend one or more sessions of the annual Oregon Retail Distributor's Institute conference which will begin with a banquet tomorrow at the Osburn Hotel.

Of this number, approximately 200 are businessmen. Four hundred invitations have been sent.

Dr. N. H. Comish, professor of business administration and secretary of the organization, stressed that all merchants are welcome to attend the banquet Sunday or the general sessions Monday.

"All types of merchants in the state are invited to attend, as in the case of all past conferences," he said.

Newburn to Address Group

University President Harry K. Newburn is scheduled to deliver the welcome address at the Sunday banquet. This will be followed by a speech on "Problems in the Business Expansion of Oregon," by Victor P. Morris, dean of the business school.

Problems to be discussed by Morris include the greater increase in population than economic activity, and the shortage of power resources in the Pacific Northwest.

On Monday morning the conference will resume with an informal breakfast at 8 a. m. in the Osburn Hotel. Peter G. Cosovich, proprietor of the Astoria Stationery company in Astoria, will preside.

Registration at 9

Registration of merchants will begin at 9, followed by a welcome address by ORDI president Reese Dooley in the reception room of Gerlinger Hall. Election of officers will be held at 9:45.

At 10 a. m., M. K. Lucas of the M. K. Lucas Furniture company in Klamath Falls will preside, and the conference will hear addresses by W. L. Swearingen of Portland and Paul Lafferty, Eugene.

Panel Discussion

A panel committee of four will hash over the speeches. Members of the first committee are Harry Wright, of Wright's Furniture, Springfield; H. J. Iredale, assistant manager, J. C. Penny company, Roseburg; C. E. Hall, proprietor, Waldport Public market; and Keith Fennel, proprietor of the University Pharmacy here.

Presiding at 11 a. m. will be A. L. Green, manager of Bedell's in Portland.

The address will be made by G. Vandenynde, manager of the R. L. Elfstrom company, Salem.

Members of the panel committee are Harold Wendel, manager, Lipman Wolfe, Portland; C. E. Snell, merchandising manager, Home Furnishing division Meier and Frank company, Portland; Raymond L. Miller, proprietor, Forest

Four More Days Till 'Mysties' Sale

Just four more days remain before the secret of the "mysties" will be revealed.

Booths will be opened at 8:45 Wednesday morning. Bernice Gartrell and Tekla Arthur, co-chairmen of decorations, are putting finishing touches to the booths in preparation for the midweek sale.

Plans are progressing in good form, according to Georgie Ober-teuffer and Betty Simpson, general chairmen. Committee heads will meet at the Pi Beta Phi house Monday to discuss final procedures for Wednesday and Thursday.

UWF Seek 75 New Members During Drive

The Student World Federalists on the campus began a membership drive yesterday aiming at the goal of signing 75 new members, according to Chairman Bob Miller.

A booth was placed in the Co-op yesterday to distribute UWF literature and the campaign will resume next week. The booth will be set up again on Monday.

"We will try to use every means at our disposal to acquaint University students with the United World Federalists and particularly what we can do here to further world peace," Miller said.

The organization is offering to make speeches putting forth the principles of the United World Federalists to any other interested organization or any group of individual students on the campus. Herb Weiss, phone 3672-J may be contacted on this.

"Further literature including books written by Cord Meyer, national president of the UWF, Vernon Nash, both of whom have appeared on the campus will be at the disposal of students in the browsing room of the library," Weiss said.

Wesley Chorus

The Wesley chorus will present a concert Sunday evening May 15, at 7:30 in the First Methodist church. The proceeds from the concert will go into the Wesley fund for sponsoring a foreign student on the campus.

Soloists for the concert will be Barbara Detrich and Lynn Sjolund.

Wright Explains Restricted Parking

By Martin Weitzner

The physical plant truck pictured in the Emerald as a violator of the ordinance against parking in restricted areas, was an exception rather than the rule in his department, said Irwin I. Wright, superintendent of the physical plant.

A photo featured on page one of an Emerald of two weeks ago, showed the truck parked in an alleyway in direct violation of a regulation issued by Mr. Wright's department. Kirk Braun, Emerald columnist, charged that while others were being penalized for disregarding the edict, physical plant vehicles were proving the chief violators.

In refutation, Wright claimed that the regulation had not been strictly enforced. "We have not tagged cars found parked on sites other than those designated for this purpose," he said. Wright added that car owners were not using space provided for parking, but rather were blocking driveways, sidewalks, and even going up on nearby lawns.

The chief complaint parking in alleys was that cars parked there blocked the road for physical plant trucks engaged in their daily business.

"Our trucks are forced to go out of their way, and are often unable to come up to our building to load up, because of cars parked in their path," said Wright.

"As far as I am concerned," he added, "the issue is a closed affair."

Judging from lack of student response to Braun's disclosure, Mr. Wright seems to be "wright."

Campus Millrace Drive Ends With $3500 Goal in Sight

Plans Told For Rating Of Faculty

'Opinionnaire' Slated To Sample Opinion On Faculty Members

Letters to deans and department heads were sent out yesterday by the faculty rating committee explaining the procedures to be used in obtaining student rating of faculty members. An opinionnaire has been drawn up by the committee and will be handed out in all classes on June 1 and 2, according to Laura Olson, chairman.

On those two days, members of campus service honoraries will visit every class where the professor has requested the rating and hand out the opinionnaires to all students at the beginning of the period. The professor is asked to be absent from the room while the sheets are being filled out.

When the opinionnaires are collected they will be sealed in a designated envelope in the presence of the class and the professor. The committee will keep the sealed envelopes until after final exams at which time the professor's envelopes will be returned to him. The committee decided in a meeting Thursday that only the professor will see the results of his own rating.

The opinionnaires will contain questions on all phases of the classroom, including organization and presentation of subject matter, examinations, and grading.

The faculty rating committee has been working this term under the auspices of the ASUO executive council. According to present plans, another committee will be formed next fall term to carry on the work of faculty rating.

The present group is composed of Miss Olson, Trudi Chernis, Olga Yevtich, Shirley Lukins, Bobolee Brophy, Warren Webster, Bob Goffard, and Herb Kariel.

Official All-City Canvass Starts Next Week to Match City Funds

By Bob Funk

Against a background of music, canoes, and pledge cards, the campus millrace fund drive ended yesterday with a strong possibility that its $3500 goal was met.

"I think that we came near making our quota," Warren Davis, campus drive chairman, declared. Actual outcome of the drive will await the final count of breakage fee pledge cards.

"The drive ends today," said Davis, interviewed yesterday afternoon, "but any pledge cards which have not yet been turned in may be left at the Co-op or with me." Davis explained that most of the cards would have been collected as of last night.

Thursday evening there was still approximately $1000 lacking in the fund, but campaigning during all of Friday was vigorous, and many cards were signed—"I think everyone who is going to turn over their breakage fee has done so," was Davis' comment.

City Drive Monday

Officially, the all-city drive for millrace funds does not begin until next week. However, by that time the fund will have been augmented by the results of the campus drive, individual donations from persons in and around Eugene, and funds already in the Millrace Park Association treasury.

A grand total of $25,000 must be amassed to match funds voted by the Eugene city council. Of this, $4000 was pledged last year by University alums and $3500 by the student body. The pledge-card drive has been an attempt to fulfill the student pledge.

Park Project Planned

A master plan for beautifying the millrace area has been made, and this will be carried out to the greatest possible extent after the restoration. It includes the construction of bleachers, bandstand, waterways adjacent to the main race, and cultivation of park area.

Weather . . .

Partly cloudy with little change in temperature today and Sunday. Light showers or possible thunder showers during the afternoons. High today, 78 degrees; low tonight about 50 degrees.

Discussions Start Aesthetics Confab Friday

By Marge Scandling

The reading of three formal papers followed by discussions yesterday opened the first day of the annual meeting of the west coast division of the American Society for Aesthetics. Fifty were present at the opening session, presided over by Bertram E. Jessup of the University department of philosophy.

Papers by Barnett Savery, University of British Columbia, Kurt Baer, University of California at Santa Barbara, and Ernest Mundt, California School of Fine Arts, were heard.

Afternoon Session

Delegates lunched at a downtown hotel and then attended the afternoon session. Two papers, "A Psychological Note on the Theory of Art as Play," and "Dream Paintings by Children," were read by their authors, Catherine Rau of the Dominican College of San Rafael, and Rachael Griffin of the Museum Art school, Portland. Chandler Beall, professor of Romance languages, presided.

A program of contemporary music was heard at the music school late in the afternoon. Two one-act experimentalist dramas at Guild theater by the University players closed the day's schedule.

Today's Program

Today's session will be held at Gerlinger's men's lounge at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Jessup will read a paper, "Aesthetic Size," at the morning session. Karl Aschenbrenner, University of California, will discuss "Normative Aesthetics."

Aschenbrenner will preside at the closing session at which William B. Holther, University of California, will present his paper, "On Communicating Taste." Another California delegate, Marguerite Foster, will present "Some Questions of the 'Artist's Intention' and the Work of Art."

Boy Scout Circus Opening Tonight

Over 1200 boys will participate in the twelfth annual Boy Scout circus in McArthur court tonight.

Lloyd Payne, chairman of the event, reports that a special camping and pioneering exhibition will be featured along with the usual circus clowns, tumblers, and wall scalars.
