

Singers Will Give Show Tomorrow

Under the direction of Donald W. Allton, the University singers will present a four-part program Thursday, May 19, in the music school auditorium at 8 p.m. The faculty news bulletin has this program scheduled for tonight, Wednesday, May 18, but it is incorrect.

Today, the singers, a select group of forty, have gone to Portland where they will present a concert in Benson auditorium at 8 p.m. under the auspices of the Portland unit, University of Oregon Mothers. Music in the modern manner will be offered by a trio, which includes Miss Claire Lewis, James McMullen, and Wayne Sherwood. The trio has made its own arrangements and has a unique style.

The program is opened by two chorales by Bach from "The Ode of Mourning." This is to be followed by several 16th century works and a sacred anthem. Some of the composers represented on the program are Rimsky-Korsakoff, Thomas Morley, Orlando di Lasso, and Alexander Nikolsky.

This concert tour is scheduled from May 18 to May 26. The second in a series of twelve will be presented here Thursday, May 19, at 8 p.m.

Business Manager Picked for 'Guide'

Henry Panian has been named business manager of the 1949-50 Piggers' Guide, Dick Williams, educational activities manager, announced yesterday. The appointment completes the list of publication heads for next year.

Almost a straight four-point student in history, Panian is assistant advertising manager of the Oregana and a member of Campbell club. He replaces Mike Mitchell on the Piggers' Guide staff.

Dick Olson and Barbara Stevenson had also petitioned for the job.

Millrace Pledges Net 1400 Signers Profit From Veterans Sales Kept for Slump

All-City Drive Waits Highway Negotiations

Results of the ASUO millrace committee's drive for breakage fee pledge cards indicate success in meeting the $3500 quota, according to Warren Davis, drive chairman.

Approximately 1400 University students signed cards pledging their breakage fees to the millrace fund. If all these students had $5 in their deposit, a total of $7000 would have been pledged. However, many of the deposits will have been depleted by the end of the year.

"We can't tell how much money we have until the end of the year," explained Davis, "but I feel confident that we will get at least $3500 from the breakage fees."

With the end of the drive, the students of the University have fulfilled their pledge to the millrace drive. In addition, living organizations on the millrace will donate funds.

Still to be collected is a sum of $4000 pledged by alumni of the University of Oregon.

Meanwhile, an all-city drive for millrace funds is being postponed until negotiations with the state highway department have ended, according to Dr. M. V. Walker, president of the Millrace association.

The highway department is considering the possibility of taking part of the responsibility of landscaping the eastern approach to Eugene. The balance of the landscape project will be handled by the Eugene Gateways association, which is working with the Millrace group.

When the Gateways association has reached an agreement with the highway department, it will join in the millrace drive. Resultant funds will be used both for millrace restoration and the establishment of a scenic entrance into Eugene.

"The Gateways group has estimated that it will need between four and eight thousand dollars," stated Dr. Walker. "This amount will be added to the quota set by the Millrace Park association."

Dr. Walker expressed the belief that the drive will take place in the near future. Bill Tugman of the Eugene Register-Guard is handling negotiations with the highway department.

'49 Yearbook Late Strike Forces Publication Delay, Oregana Distribution by Mail

Oreganas will not be distributed until after graduation. Announcement was made yesterday by Dick Williams, educational activities manager, that because of a Portland printers' strike the 1949 year book will probably not be completed until late June or early July.

Tentative plans include setting up central distribution points where Eugene and Portland student can pick up the books. Other students will receive their Oreganas by mail collect.

The labor strike went into effect when the Oreganas were within six or eight days of completion, Williams said. The year-books have now been sent to Los Angeles to be finished.

"We are sorry that the Oregana will not be on time but there is no alternative. The staff has no control over the labor situation in Portland," Williams commented.

Orchesis Shows Skill In Modern Dance

Dancing skill will be displayed by members of Junior and Senior Orchesis, University modern dance honorary, in a concert of 13 different modern dances tonight in the Gerlinger hall dance room at 8 p. m.

Tickets for the colorful and different performance may be obtained at 60 cents at the door tonight, in the women's physical education office in Gerlinger hall during the day, or from members of Orchesis.

Members of the junior group will dance two of the 13 numbers, "Square Dance" and "Nursery Rhymes." The former is not actually a square dance, but the step patterns, gyrations, and movement of the dancers in hill-billy fashion are similar to those qualities of movement found in a square dance.

"Nursery Rhymes" depicts three different rhymes. Huge, awkward movements are found in "Humpty Dumpty," while lightness and giddiness are emphasized in "Hey Diddle Diddle." The final section of the dance takes the form of a lullabye danced to "Child's Prayer—Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

Among the numbers danced by the senior groups are "Cathedral," "Dance of Disaster," "Man and his Conscience," "Strike," and "Bergomask."

The majority of the dances were choreographed by the student dancers themselves. Two, "Lullabye" and "Bergomask," were presented in the 1946 spectacle production of "Midsummer Night's Dream."

"Strike," one of the most outstanding of the senior dances, was presented by the more advanced group on May 16 at the dance section meeting of the Northwest District Association for health, physical education and recreation in Portland.

University Student James Bullard composed and will play most of the accompanying music. Records will accompany the remaining dances.

Prospective members of Orchesis, chosen from service courses in physical education, are first taken into Junior Orchesis where they learn fundamental dance techniques and movements. When they attain a marked degree of skill they are initiated into the more select group of Senior Orchesis.

Auditions Slated For Radio Drama

Tryouts for roles in "The Mayor of Casterbridge," a half hour radio drama, will be held at 4 today at the extension building studios.

The play, to be presented as part of the University Hour, May 26, will be the fifth in the show's series of condensations of great novels. The "Mayor" was written by the English novelist Thomas Hardy.

Lazy Sun

WEATHER—Considerable cloudiness today. Slightly warmer this afternoon. High 63; low 47.

Profit From Veterans Sales Kept for Slump

Ten per cent will be the University Cooperative store's patronage refund to members this year, it was decided at a recent board meeting. The rebate will be paid in cash by June 13.

Members must turn in their cash register receipts, in the green and cream-colored envelope they received when they paid their membership fee, by May 31. Students should total their receipts on the space provided on the outside of the envelope. Those who have lost their folders may pick up another at the Co-op.

Acceptable receipts are those which were saved from July 1, 1948, to date.

According to Co-op board officials, this year's ten per cent return of profits amounts approximately in dollars to the profit on sales to non-veteran students. The veteran profit is being held in reserve for a possible decline in business during the next few years.

Last day to join the Co-op is June 1, Manager G. L. Henson said, and the membership fee of one dollar will be returned with the patronage refund.

The patronage refund last year also was ten per cent.

Theta Sigs to Honor Three

Three outstanding girls from Eugene high schools will be honored at Theta Sigma Phi's Matrix Table Thursday night, at 6, at the Eugene hotel. They are Mary Ellen Burrell, Kitty Lou Shaw, and Kathryn Ann Heidenreich.

Miss Burrell, from Eugene high school, is the daughter of O. K. Burrell, University professor of business administration.

Miss Shaw, of University high school, and Miss Heidenreich, St. Mary's, are both editors of their school papers.

University freshmen and sophomore women outstanding in pre-journalism will also be honored at the annual affair.

Miss Dorothy Carew, former Associated Press writer from New York, will speak at the formal banquet to be attended by all upper-division women in journalism as well as the outstanding senior from each women's house and prominent Eugene women.

For picnic days, for beach days, for party days, wear this smart trio in chambray.
