Foreign Students Explain British, Chinese Outlook

By Herb Weiss

Britain and China envy and resent American supremacy in the world, according to foreign students speaking at a meeting of the Young Progressives at the YMCA Thursday night.

John Martin, graduate assistant in journalism, discussed British imperialism, comparing it to American expansion into the West. He pointed out that Americans "colonized" the west, but either killed all the natives or put them on reservations, while the British simply conquered peoples, doing little for them, but also little against them.

Martin stressed the importance and necessity of the Marshall Plan. The majority of the people in England are primarily interested in peace. They do not have to wait until the Russians have the atomic bomb to feel terribly insecure, because they are only 300 miles away now, said Martin.

Tells of China

Shyun Daw Shaw, graduate student in political science, spoke about China. He maintained that the Chinese Communists had used a "revolutionary chance" by giving the people land and other reforms they needed. The Nationalists, once the hope of modern China, did not do anything for the people

Leeper Chosen Oral Examiner

Dr. Robert W. Leeper, now studying at Duke University, on sabbatical leave from Oregon, has been invited by Swarthmore college in Pennsylvania to serve on its board of examiners in giving oral examinations to major and graduate students.

Swarthmore has a system whereby it invites professors from other institutions to act as examiners.

Dr. Leeper will return to the University of Oregon next fall as associate professor of psychology.

French Books, Periodicals on Display at Libe

An exhibit of 150 French books and periodicals published since the end of the war are now on display in the circulation room of the University library. The exhibit is being shown in an effort to demonstrate the recovery of printing in France, after the curtailment of the industry during the war.

Since the previous showings at the University of California at Berkeley and Stanford, the collection has been increased by the addition of several new volumes recently received from France.

Twelve different fields are represented in the display, including works on physics, chemistry, medicine, international law, history, political science, art, music, and literature.

In connection with this exhibit, the browsing room will feature on Thursday, May 26, at 4 p.m., a talk on the French National Press by Jean de LaGrde, consul general of France, who is stationed in San Francisco.

after Chiang Kai-shek succeeded Sun Yat Sen in the leadership of the Kuomintang, he said.

"If you feel that the Chinese Communists are an instrument of Russian expansion," Shaw said, "I say it is absolutely wrong."

Shaw was asserted that all the people in China by now hate the United States—the Kuomintang, because they feel that the United States did not give them enough aid, and the ordinary people because they are convinced that the United States has prolonged the civil war.

Negro Position

George Boyd, Negro graduate student from Augusta, Georgia, described the position of the Negro in America. He pointed out that he was not qualified to speak for his entire people, as such he added that "The Negro people are not free in America, and therefore cannot express an opinion as a whole."

In answering a question as to whether Paul Robeson's statement regarding Negro refusal to fight in another way would do the Negro people any harm, Boyd claimed that, for the great majority of the Negro people, "it would be impossible to injure their place," because their place is so low now that any change, with the exception of death, would have to be for the better.

Commenting on American influence abroad, Boyd said, "Before America can go abroad to teach democracy, it must have democracy at home."

Journalist Gets Minnesota Post

Robert F. Karolevitz, University graduate student in journalism, has received notice of his appointment to the University of Minnesota summer school faculty as instructor in journalism.

Karolevitz, a native of Yankton, South Dakota, will begin his work at Minnesota on June 13.

The By-Line club of the National Publisher, magazine of the National Editorial association, recently named him as a charter member.

Last year the graduate student worked as public relations representative for the Curtiss Candy company.

There is nothing opened so often by mistake as the mouth.

Recently named by President Truman as U. S. high commissioner for Germany is John J. McCloy. McCloy is resigning as president of the World Bank in Washington, D. C., to take the assignment. (AP Wirephoto)
