

Teachers Mimic Pupils; Wear to Class Sloppy Clothes, Hi-Y Pins

SALEM, May 20—(AP)—The teachers at Parrish junior high school got tired of looking at all those loose shirttails and draggy skirts in their classrooms each day. So they decided to make the pupils stare at it for a change.

The usually neatly-groomed faculty scuffed into school this morning in baggy sweaters, drooping skirts, overalls—and bubble gum. The male teachers had their shirt-tails out. Principal Carl Aschenbrenner had his overalls fastened with rivets. He had trouble keeping them on.

The women teachers chawed bubble gum and sported Hi-Y pins on their bosoms. For a girl, a Hi-Y pin in the junior high school accolade: it means a popular boy likes her.

In between bubbles, the teachers simpered solely at their pins.

The point explained the faculty, was to let the kids know how the teachers think they look.

"They sure made us feel stupid," said young Pat Pease. "But the teachers were more fun than they have been for a long time."
