

Hawaiian Eleven Heard Over KOAC Yesterday

If you heard some music around four o'clock yesterday that made you think of tropical moons, palm trees, and the surf rushing ashore at Wakikii, you probably were listening to the University hour.

Featured on the popular music section of the KOAC show were a group of Hawaiian singers, who are said to be just about the most talented eleven seen on the campus since Jim Aiken disbanded the Cotton Bowl football squad.

The group of eight boys and three girls goes under the name of Hui-o-Kamaaina, but their music is a lot easier on the ear than the name is on the tongue. Jack Vaughn, producer of the show, had little trouble in putting together 15 minutes of listenable music.

The recent newspaper strike in Portland as viewed by a graduate student in journalism was the subject of the campus interview from 4:15 till 4:30. Bob Karolevitz, the graduate student, discussed the current press scene with Hal Larsen as interviewer.

Francisco, where he played major roles in all the dramatic production and entertained at army hospitals with the USO and army special services.

Strangely enough, Fred isn't planning a dramatic career, but wants to be a free lance writer or a reporter. He wrote a daily column for the East Oregonian in Pendleton for two years and is now studying journalism at Oregon.

"Getting back to 'The Show-off,'" "I saw it years ago in San Francisco with Joe E. Brown portraying Aubrey Piper. I never dreamed I'd get a chance to try it.

"It's a very homey show," he continued, "and I'm sure the members of the audience will feel that they're sitting in an easy chair in a corner of the Piper living room."

Tickets for "The Show-off," which will play May 27, 28, 30, 31, June 1 and 2, are on sale now at the box office in Johnson hall.
