

AWS Schedules Bunion Derby

Reviving an old tradition, AWS has scheduled Saturday night for the once-annual Bunion Derby, from 8 to 11 p. m.

Men's living organizations will attend women's houses, staying approximately fifteen minutes at each group. Men will start out on a schedule to be published later this week.

General chairman is Flo Hansen. Shirley Hillard is in charge of collections; Donna Buse, flying speeches; and Ann Gillenwaters, publicity.

The Derby replaces the AWS Nickel Hop, formerly held during spring term on AWS weekend.

Carson Maze Requires Wily Femmes

By Kay Johnson

Living in the new girl's dorm is no cinch.

The girl who finds her bearings in relation to that pile of lumber she turns left by may soon find herself floundering in a pool of concrete. For as soon as you have oriented yourself by heaps of lumber and cement, the entire arrangement has been redistributed with wicked intent.

It's rumored that some girls were standing on the front porch talking during the early days of Carson and by the time they finished, concrete had been poured, bricks laid, and the steps ready for them to descend in true lady-like fashion. It was not determined whether the girls were extremely talkative or the workmen fast.

However, talking is not without difficulty. Many a conversation has been drowned and doubtless many reputations spared by the well-timed rat-a-tat-tat of a jack hammer.

Boyfriends present a unique problem. When an old flame drops in you can hardly say "Darling, pull up a slab of concrete in front of this pool of asphalt and make yourself at home." No matter how much he thinks of the girl, he won't relish the idea of ruining his just-back-from-the-cleaners suit by relaxing on cold concrete or floor freshly frosted with that black sticky substance known as "plastic."

Entering the building is a major decision. Many girls have been known to stand wringing their hands in indecision for hours. Best way is to steel yourself for the ordeal and with eyes straight ahead pick your way through the obstacle course toward the stairway. Wandering from the beaten path is at your own risk.

March purposefully upstairs, never casting a backward glance and go immediately to your room. When the door is bolted against marauding workmen you can be alone, at last, in your color-harmonized room with natural wood-paneled doors and fluorescent light above the built-in washstand.

There in the sanctity of your own room you can have your nervous breakdown, accompanied by cement mixers and diesel engines.

YM Sets Outing For Saturday

Timber Carnival, billed as an afternoon of food and fun for freshmen men is planned by the YMCA for this Saturday, Oct. 1. Moose Park at Fern Ridge lake will be the scene of the first "Y" outing of the year.

Transportation will be furnished from the YMCA bungalow, on Kincaid between 12th and 13th, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, according to Bill Wise, publicity assistant. The outing will end about 9:30.

The Rev. Wesley G. Nicholson, minister of the Congregational church, will speak to the group in the evening, following a picnic supper and an afternoon of recreation. The event will be free.
