

Lawyers Take Over Zeta As Girls Retreat to Carson

Students dialing extension 445 no longer hear a feminine voice say "Zeta Hall." Law school students of the University have taken over the former women's dormitory.

For several years law students have wanted a place of their own. With the new women's dormitory now accommodating former Zeta residents, the hall was turned over to the future lawyers at the beginning of the term by Genevieve Turnipseed, director of dormitories.

SITUATION SATISFACTORY

Up to now, the situation has proven satisfactory despite men who still phone hoping to get dates, and female students who return to claim mail and other belongings. Recently Wallace Martin, the dormitory's sponsor received a copy of "Medemoiselle" magazine, sent to all women's organizations.

Newly elected house officers include Dick Bennett, president, and Bob Myers, social chairman, treasurer, secretary, vice-president, sergeant-at-arms, house librarian and ex-officio janitor.

BARRISTER INN

On the present house agenda is a proposed plan to change the name of Zeta Hall to Barrister Inn. The "boys" feel that since they are enrolled in the Law School their organization should have a name distinctive of Law.

Barrister is the old English name for lawyers and the Inns were what are now the modern courts.

Academy Gives Reduced Rates To U.O. Students

Students interested in joining the American Academy of Political Science and Social Science may now do so at a special rate of $3 per year.

Membership entitles students to receive copies of the Academy quarterly, The Annals, a symposium on important topics of world and national interest.

Students should submit their fee to the American Academy, 3817 Spruce street, Philadelphia 4, Pa. Applicants should include the name of the institution in which they are registered.

Founded more than 50 years ago, the Academy is one of the oldest and largest social science organizations in the world. Of the 14,000 members, 1000 are American college students.

Ad Scholarship Open to Juniors

Marketing research will be the theme for the second annual $250 Joseph R. Gerber Advertising Research Scholarship, R. D. Millican, assistant professor of advertising, announced yesterday.

The award will be made in the Spring to the student in marketing or advertising who submits the best research paper on the marketing of an agricultural or manufactured product. The student must be a junior with a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.7.

Although the deadline for the scholarship is April 1, 1950, students interested should contact Millican at 5 Journalism as soon as possible.

The scholarship is sponsored by the Gerber Advertising Agency of Portland.

New Instructors Get Directory

Instructors and officials new to the Oregon campus this year will be listed in a special faculty directory to be released this week.

Resulting from a suggestion made at the last faculty meeting, the directory will strive to help old and new faculty members become acquainted. Name, rank, former schools, degrees received, and marital status will be listed for each newcomer.

If the guide is a success, it will be continued in future years, according to Lyle Nelson, director of information.

New Russian Film Slated for Thursday

"People of the USSR," a recent Russian film, will be shown in room 20, Friendly Hall, at 3 p.m. Thursday. The picture is meant to help bring about greater understanding of the Russian people.

Sponsored by the Russian Club, the movie is free of admission charge.

Activity-Filled Year Scheduled By Allied Arts League Members

An active program for students enrolled in the Architecture and Allied Arts School is being planned by the Allied Arts League this year.

Warren Carkin, president of the Registered Associated Students of Architecture and Allied Arts, heads a steering committee which plans social and business events for the entire year.

PROGRAM ARRANGED

Carkin is striving for 100 per cent membership in the league within the art school.

A tentative program includes educational movies, lectures, seminars, and exhibits. Lectures will be open to the student body. Seminars are scheduled for art majors, though interested non-majors may attend.

In past years, such prominent professional men as Pietro Belluschi, Portland architect, and Ernest J. Kurp of San Francisco, have given lectures.

BALL PLANNED

A bigger and better Beaux Arts Ball and spring picnic are being planned. The picnic will be restricted to members of the league and dates.

The annual Arts Eazaar where student artists and craftsmen display and sell their examples of ceramics, weaving, sculpture, painting, and jewelry is scheduled before Christmas.

Clark Authors Study of Bishop

Robert D. Clark, assistant to the dean of the college of liberal arts, is the author of "The Oratorical Career of Bishop Matthew Simpson," a study appearing in the 1949 issue of Speech Monograph, annual publication of the Speech Association of America.

The article treats on the prominent orator of the Civil War period, and his participation in national and church affairs. Dr. Clark is currently engaged in writing a biography of Bishop Simpson.

Cancer kills more mothers of school age children than any other disease

● Once, not too long ago—Mom heard her prayers at night, dressed her in the morning and got her off to school. . . . But Mom went away and didn't come back.

No home is safe from cancer. Last year cancer killed more mothers of growing families than any other disease. Tragic—but even more tragic is the fact that many of these deaths need never have happened.

Many of the mothers who now die could be cured—IF they learned to recognize cancer's symptoms and seek medical advice immediately —IF sufficient money can be found for the cancer research needed to discover the causes of the disease, to perfect its treatment.

The American Cancer Society, through its program of public education and medical research, is dedicated to the conquest of cancer. Will you help?
