

On the Air

By Marty Weitzner

Radio honorary Kappa Rho Omicron planning an Oregon broadcaster's meeting on campus? Here's a chance for someone to make some contacts . . .

Interesting drama coming up next Thursday on the Workshop series. Concerns a man who puts himself on trial to see whether he was justified in giving up his life during World War III. Written by an undergraduate student at the University of Wisconsin . . .

Speaking of Wisconsin, what would our radio division be without the "Big Ten"? The entire radio faculty, Dr. Alburey Castell (who broadcasts over KOAC), and Mrs. Zonda Montgomery (whose "Piano Portraits" are heard over the state station) have all been connected with Midwestern universities.

Trend is nothing new, since last year's faculty, Glenn Starlin and Bob Davy came from Iowa and Wisconsin respectively . . .

Here we go again, but there is action on the KDUK front! The department, afraid to commit themselves because of possible red faces, has set a deadline for either getting a solution of current problems, or giving the student body insight into the mysterious situation.

Big problem is one of engineering rather than of administration. Staff and program schedule have already been lined up . . .

Audiences are welcome at KOAC broadcasts. There's a chance you may be allowed inside the control booth (especially radio students) if you clear with members of the department beforehand . . .

Question—Might not conversations between the radio division and the I.F.C. and other campus groups result in a GOOD campus radio station?

Further question—With all the "talent" floating around this university, what are the possibilities for a variety show over KOAC? . . .

A writer asks, "What's become of the women who used to hook rugs?" Maybe their time isn't up yet.
