

Auto Club Picks New Name, Enlarges Business Activities

The Campus Automobile Club, begun locally spring term, has recently changed its name to the National Campus Club and is expanding into fields other than automobiles, according to Lewis C. Nickerson, local manager for the student cooperative.

The club has recently signed a contract with the Club Cleaners at 11th and Oak and has contacted other businesses in Eugene. Some businessmen are waiting to see how the Club Cleaners profits before joining the national cooperative.

STARTED LAST YEAR

Begun last year by Gordon L. Ness, a journalism student at Stanford University, the club has broadened to a national concern with over 500,000 students on 175 campuses, Nickerson said. Harvard, Tulane, Northwestern, Oregon, and Washington are some of the schools that have been organized. The club is run entirely by and for students.

Business establishments having contracts with the NCC agree to give discounts ranging from 10 to 20 per cent to student members of the group.

"We have a problem of convincing the merchants that they can benefit by giving students special rates," Nickerson said. "They can make a profit just as much as students can save money by joining the cooperative. In return for a discount, we promise that all members of the cooperative will trade with the merchants."

The club has approximately 1400 members at the University of Oregon.

Membership cards cost $3 a year and are good at any CAC or NCC store in the United States, according to Nickerson.

A partial scholarship program is being set up with the money received from fees. Members unable to finish school because of financial difficulties will be assisted. Nickerson emphasized that the cooperative is a non-profit organization.

An Emerald poll of businesses near the campus indicated that they would not sign agreements with the NCC. As one merchant put it, "I am open for the students nine months of the year. The other three months, I take a beating. I can't afford to give a discount and still give high grade service."

Dr. V.P. Morris Speaks in Coquille

Victor P. Morris, dean of business administration, addressed members and guests of Coquille's Rotary Club Wednesday at that organization's annual "Competitor's Day" meeting.

Each member brought a strong competitor to the noon meeting, emphasizing good-will among the city's business men.

Morris spoke on the "Economic Outlook," stressing today's economic and political framework, and its effect on business in the next two decades.

Oregon Holds Scoring Record

The University of Oregon broke an all time high score record in 1920 for intercollegiate football in the Northwest by walloping the University of Puget Sound 114 to 0.

The scoring system was different then, touchdowns were worth only five points. Captain Taylor was the spark of the team. This record has never been reached by any school while the touchdowns were worth five points.

Women! Looking For a Man? OSC Offers Abundant Supply

It's true. Oregon State College has one advantage over the University of Oregon, speaking strictly from the girls' point of view.

In fact the advice might be given, "To get your man, girls, go to Oregon State." Each girl at OSC is entitled to three and one-fifth men, and discounting a few who are married, that is a pretty good percentage.

A girl at the University of Oregon can only fairly claim 2.3 men, for there are 4078 men and 1755 women. OSC records this fall show 5146 men to 1617 women, a bigger ratio of men to women than at any other institution of the State System of Higher Education.

Coeds at the Colleges of Education have between one and two men as their share. At Southern Oregon are 485 men to 275 women (ratio of 1.8 to 1); Eastern Oregon, 325 to 245 (1.3 to 1); and Oregon College of Education, 318 to 274 (1.2 to 1).

Five years ago the ratios were the direct opposite, for most of the men were at war. Oregon State's was 3 to 1, with women outnumbering men 1541 to 468. But the 115 women at OCE didn't have a chance. The six men enrolled each had 19 women from which to choose.

Every woman always gets just what she wanted for her birthday—and can hardly wait to get downtown and exchange it.
