dates went on a hayride before the dance.

"Snowbound" was the theme of the Chi Omega dance, and ski clothes were worn. The house represented a ski lodge, with a cheery fire in the fire-place and skis, and sleds lining the walls. The windows were frosted to add to the effect of a cold winter night. Tables in the dining room were covered with red and white checked tablecloths, and apples and pop corn were served.

The couples danced the Raspa and Schottish, which highlighted the evening.

The Alpha Gamma Deltas danced in an "Enchanted Forest." The living room was decked with gold trees and silhouettes of deer. Little pixies and pixie houses decorated the entrance hall. A four-piece orchestra furnished the music. This was a formal affair.
