Prof Attacks Endowment Supremacy

Acceptance of a $50,000,000 endowment by a Mississippi school on condition that it teach white supremacy, would be definitely against the spirit of American education ideals, Dr. C. P. Schleicher, political science professor, said Friday.

Schleicher commented on the action of George W. Armstrong, wealthy oil man, who, in donating the money, demanded that the institution be under his control and that superiority of Anglo-Saxons and Latin Americans over Negroes and Asiatics be taught.

RACE SUPREMACY
"Can a person possibly teach the superiority of Anglo-Saxons, or any race, and at the same time conform to the Jeffersonian belief that all men are equal?" Schleicher asked.

"I regard this educational policy as bordering on the subversive and treasonable in that it not only weakens us in the eyes of those abroad but that it is contrary to popular belief here at home."

U.N. DECLARATION QUOTED
Schleicher pointed out that the proposed educational plan is contrary to all beliefs in a Christian democracy. For example, he said, Article 26, section 2 of the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights says:

"Education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. It shall promote understanding, tolerance and friendship among all nations, racial or religious groups."

The United Press reported Friday that a spokesman for the school Jefferson Military College, denied that it would teach white supremacy to qualify for the endowment.

Officials to Speak In Salem Tonight

Initial University Educational Tour for the year is scheduled for tonight when six University officials will speak at the alumni institute in Salem.

Attending from Oregon will be President Harry K. Newburn, Theodore Kratt, dean of the School of Music; R. T. Ellickson, associate dean of the Graduate School and professor of physics; Leo Harris, director of athletics; Les Anderson, alumni secretary; and James D. Gilbert, dean emeritus of the College of Liberal Arts.

Following dinner, each official or professor will speak on his field of education to inform the alumni and other friends of the University of what is being taught at Oregon.

Last year University groups of this kind appeared in nine cities throughout Oregon.

"Reaction from alumni and civic officials in all towns visited was so encouraging that we hope to expand the program this year," Lyle Nelson, director of information, said.

The tours are sponsored by the University of Oregon Federation, a group of businessmen interested in the welfare of the University.
