Dixieland Band

Jazz Concert Scheduled For Mac Court on Dec. 5

A jazz concert by "Nappy" Lamare and the "Bob Cats," Dixieland band, will liven McArthur Court from 8 to 10 p.m. next Monday.

This will be the first event sponsored by the new Student Board. The group accepted a contract with the band at a special noon meeting yesterday. Les Jones, acting chairman, presided.

Artists in the jazz band include nine men instrumentalists and a girl vocalist. The girl, Patty O'Connor, is the sister of movie star Donald O'Connor.

General admission price will be 60 cents.

Lamare, formerly with Bob Crosby's musical group, plays the banjo and guitar.

His players and their instruments are Zutti Singleton, drums; Brad Gowans, valve trombone; Pud Brown, tenor sax; Stew Pletcher, trumpet; Johnny Costello, clarinet; Budd Hatch, bass horn; and Harry Gillingham, piano.

ID Council, U.O. Officials To Discuss Dorm Food

Four University officials will meet with the Interdorm Council tomorrow evening to discuss charges that food served at Veterans Commons is "sometimes inedible" and generally of poor quality.

The criticisms were made in an open letter written by Glenn Winklebleck, sophomore, and signed by 397 residents of the Veterans Dormitories.

Winklebleck, with William Leabo and Charles Mathias, also sophomores, presented the letter to Portland newspapers Friday.

NAMES OF OFFICIALS

Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of dormitories; H. P. Barnhart, dormitory foods director; J. Orville Lindstrom, University business manager; and Vigil S. Fogdall, director of men's affairs, will present the University's side of the picture.

Besides criticizing the quality of the food, the letter pointed out that a student living in one of the dormitories must miss 20 meals on seven consecutive days before he is given any refund.

EATING COMPULSORY

Eating in the dormitories is compulsory for students living in them, the letter stated.

The letter brought out that less than 300 of the 650 students in the Veterans Dormitories eat breakfast,

Touring Pianist To Give Concert On Wednesday

Grant Johannesen, American pianist, will give the first concert of his 1949 tour at McArthur Court Wednesday night. It will be the last performance this term in the Eugene and University Civic Music Association series.

Johannesen arrives in Eugene today after a European tour. He played in Paris at the Beethoven Festival, and at Lyon, Marseille, Brussels, Florence, Milan and Venice.

While in Europe he won first prize in the International Piano Festival, held under the auspices of the Belgian government.

WIDELY ACCLAIMED

Competing with 57 pianists from 32 nations, Johannesen was widely acclaimed by the judges and an audience which included the American ambassador and England's Queen Elizabeth.

Johannesen was discovered in 1939 by Robert Casadesus, French pianist, who was making an American tour. Under the latter's direction, he studied in the East. He also worked with Egon Petri, and studied composition with Roger Sessions.

News Analyst Speaks Tonight

Raymond Swing, news analyst, foreign correspondent, and former radio commentator, will speak tonight at 8:15 at the Eugene High School auditorium.

Swing's topic, "History on the March," will be a report of his recent tour of Europe. He will discuss present conditions in Europe and how they affect the United States' program.

"Tonight's talk will bring to Eugene perhaps the most outstanding message of years," C. P. Schleicher, professor of political science, said Monday.

Tickets to the lecture are available today at the Co-op at 75 cents each.

Senior Arrested By City Police

Gene G. Harlow, political science senior, was arrested Sunday night by Eugene city police and is being held in the Lane county jail awaiting arraignment by the circuit court on a charge of assault and battery.

Harlow, police records show, attempted to force one of the McDonald theater usherettes into his car against her will late Sunday.

Ira E. McAtee, Oakridge, was sitting in Harlow's car laughing during the assault, according to police records. McAtee is being held with Harlow on the same charge.

The original charge against Harlow was assault with intent to rape, but after hearing more details, the charge was reduced to assault and battery.

Barbara Pasquan, 'Winterset' Lead, Hopes To Portray Young Miriamne's Full Personality

By Marjorie Bush

I hope I can portray all the qualities of 15-year old Miriamne, said Barbara Pasquan, who has the feminine lead in "Winterset," a poetic drama which opens Dec. 2.

"Being in the first production of the new University Theater is a great thrill," Miss Pasquan declared. "Especially when having a prize-winning play and challenging part with which to work."

Miriamne, daughter of the old Rabbi Esdras, lives in a basement tenement in New York. Here amid poverty and the mystery surrounding a murder, she meets and falls in love with Mio.

Divided between her family loyalty and love for Mio, Miriamne is quite emotional and worried, Miss Pasquan explained. She seems older because of the importance she places on all matters that are dear to her.

"To try to express Miriamne's true character and still keep her 15-year old quality is perhaps the most interesting part of my job," Miss Pasquan said. "One may see Miriamne maturing during the course of the play."

"The beauty of the lines of 'Winterset' is also outstanding."

Small, dark Miss Pasquan, now

a sophomore in speech and drama, had leading parts in several high school productions in North Bend. She is especially interested in tap, toe, and ballet dancing, and after college would like to combine a dancing and acting career.

A member last year of Junior Orchestras, modern dance honorary, Miss Pasquan performed in the production "Marco Millions." In high school she combined singing and dance routines in a triple trio.

"Winterset" begins its run Dec. 2, continuing through Dec. 10. Tickets are now available at the boxoffice of the University Theater.

Committee of Nine Set To Work Out Problems

By KEN METZLER

Deferred living will undergo comprehensive study in the next few weeks by a special committee of nine appointed yesterday by ASUO President Art Johnson.

Membership in the committee includes leaders of the living organization groups and the Emerald Editor. Johnson will act as temporary chairman.

The first meeting is scheduled for Wednesday evening where organization and plans will be discussed, Johnson said.

The committee was formed to work out plans for deferred living suitable to all living groups concerned.

INVESTIGATE PROBLEMS

Johnson declared that the committee will attempt to find out what problems face the fraternities, dormitories, sororities and co-operatives, with the idea of reaching cooperation among the groups.

Johnson emphasized that the conclusions reached by the committee would not be binding on any of the living organization groups represented.

Final results of the study will be presented to the University administration.

"It is hoped that the committee is representative of all the factions on the campus and as such will be able to work out the problems facing them," Johnson commented.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Members of the committee are Dorothy Orr, president of Heads of Houses; Frances Robson, president of Panhellenic; Fred Van Horn, president of the Interfraternity Council; Victor Fryer, president of the Interdormitory Council; Clarence Naapi, president of the Council of Men's Dormitories; Anita Holmes, Executive Council junior representative; Emerald Editor Don Smith; Lilly Kearney, president of Highland House, women's co-op; and Johnson.

Thanksgiving weekend apparently put a damper on other activities either for or against the deferred living plan.

Sid Milligan, chairman of a committee appointed by the Alumni Interfraternity Council told the Emerald yesterday that he was still trying to confer with the University administration.

NEWBURN TOO BUSY

He said that University President Harry K. Newburn was busy when the committee had attempted to confer with him before Homecoming Weekend and that thus far the alumni group had received no other offers from the University to agree on a time of meeting.

He added that he "did not intend to chase Newburn all over the state—or around Johnson Hall, for that matter. I feel that it is their obligation to contact us."

(President Newburn is scheduled to leave for Eastern Oregon today and will return Friday.)

Milligan declared that his committee will probably meet within the next three weeks.

Many Students Fail to Obtain Enrollment Data

Several hundred sets of registration material still remain to be picked up in Emerald Hall, Registrar Clifford L. Constance reported Monday.

Constance reminded students that advance registration closes Dec. 2 as far as advisers and department clerks are concerned. Students who have not completed enrolling in courses by that time will not be able to do so until Jan. 3.

CONCLUDING STEPS

Concluding phases of registration, checking with Student Affairs, fee assessment, and fee payment, may still be completed up to 12 noon Dec. 10. Registration then will cease until Jan. 3.

All students now attending school must have completed the check with Student Affairs by Dec. 10 or they will be assessed the full $5 late fee when they complete registration in January.

Payments Due On Oreganas

Students who made $2 down payments on Oreganas during the past term must pay at least $4 more to the fee assessor at Emerald Hall, by Jan. 15.

The full $6 payment also may be made at that time. If a total payment of at least $4 has not been made by the deadline date, both the $2 payment and book reservation will be forfeited.
