

Gordon Desires Break With Major League

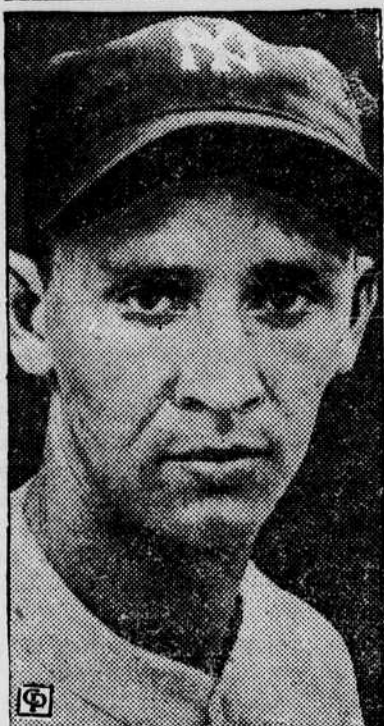

Joe Gordon, former University of Oregon baseball star, and one of the all-time great second basemen of the major leagues announced Monday that he has no desire to return for another season with the Cleveland Indians.

Gordon, who operates a hardware store in downtown Eugene, explained that there were no difficulties between himself and the Indians, but that he preferred to play with a Pacific Coast League Club in order to be nearer his home.

"The Portland Beavers would be my choice," the former Webfoot said, "But that would have to depend on what kind of offer they gave me. Sure I'll lose money in the exchange, but that doesn't enter into the situation," he said.

Portland General Manager Bill Mulligan said he definitely was interested in signing Gordon if the one time Yankee flash could get his release from Cleveland.

The Indians earlier expressed a desire to keep the Gordon-Lou Boudrou double play combo intact, and have not as yet taken action to release Gordon. The second baseman therefore is not free to make a deal with any club, and he is not interested in being swapped to some PCC Club.

If Cleveland is reluctant to release him, and since he does not want to be involved in a trade, Gordon's decision in such a case is not clear. When questioned Monday night, "Flash" had no comment on the matter.

The 34-year-old infielder paced Oregon diamond teams in 1934 and 1935, before joining the Oakland Aorns of the PCL. He went up to the Yankees in 1938 from Newark, where he anchored the keystone sack until the close of the 1946 season when he went to Cleveland in a swap for Allie Reynolds.

CORVALLIS, Ore.—(UP)—Ken Carpenter, ace Oregon State College halfback, said he will accept a bid to play for the West in the Annual Shrine East-West All-Star Game in San Francisco.

"It's a privilege to play football for such a worthy cause," said Carpenter, whose grid exploits helped the Beavers to one of their most successful seasons in many years.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28 — (UP)—Add the Press Club Bowl to the growing list of post-season football games.

The game, to be played Jan. 2 at Kezar stadium will match the College of Pacific and Villanova if present negotiations are successful.

Leo Lee, president of the San Francisco Press Club said he expected to hear from Villanova late tonight. Their board of athletic control was to vote on the invitation extended on behalf of COP.

Lee said COP is eager to play a representative "major" team in San Francisco since the Tigers apparently aren't going to get a bowl bid.

Lee said he didn't feel the game would interfere with the Shrine East-West game on Dec. 31 because it was already a sell out.
