

Dads' Day Chairman Announced

Gerry Smith, junior in business, was named 1950 Dads' Day chairman by the ASUO Executive Council Monday night. Virginia Wright, sophomore in liberal arts, was chosen assistant chairman.

Smith was chairman of the Homecoming dance this year; Miss Wright was last year's freshman class secretary and is now organization manager of the Oregon business staff.

Dads' Day is set for Jan. 28. The Council also made a bid for recognition as the official voice for student opinion.

The Council's official statement follows:

"The ASUO Executive Council feels that as the body of elected representatives of the students of the University of Oregon, it should be considered the proper channel voicing student opinion and criticism concerning general student affairs.

"These expressions may be directed to the council through personal contact with student officers, ASUO question boxes, or personal appearance before the Executive Council.

"The Council also feels that certain suggestions which may relate to specific groups such as Interdorm Council, Interfraternity Council, or Heads of Houses, might primarily be directed to those groups for initial consideration and that the specific organization, after investigation, may then submit the problem to the Executive Council."

The group also approved mechanism for setting up the Student Forum program. Further information appears elsewhere in today's Emerald.
