

Veterans Need OK To Change Majors

Prior approval from the Veterans Administration is required, as of winter term, for veterans who desire to change their major from one school to another within the University, James D. Kline, assistant registrar, stated Wednesday.

To those changing majors within the College of Liberal Arts, the rule would not apply. A change from the School of Business Administration to the School of Journalism would require approval.

Any student who fails to comply with the ruling may be subject to full payment of all educational expenses for the period he enrolled in the new school without VA approval.

The Administration will not accept retroactive approval.

BLANKS AVAILABLE

Veterans contemplating a change in major are urged by Kline to obtain application blanks at the veterans' counter in Emerald Hall and fill them out immediately.

Students applying for their first change of major are assured of receiving approval, according to the VA. However, the Administration may do one of three things concerning those desiring to change for the second or more times:

- (1) It may give full approval,
- (2) require counseling and guidance to determine whether or not the student should make the change, or
- (3) refuse to approve the change.

LAW BROADENED

The change was announced during Christmas vacation at a special meeting in Portland attended by Kline. Previously such detailed attention regarding courses applied only to disabled veterans under Public Law 16. Now the law has been broadened to pertain to all veterans attending universities and colleges.

Two More Exec Spots Vacated

With the addition of two more positions to be filled on the ASUO Executive Council, petition deadline has been extended to Thursday, Jan. 12 at 5 p. m. at the ASUO office, Emerald Hall.

Ron Brown, USA, sophomore representative, has withdrawn from the University and Bill Lance, AGS, junior representative, was declared scholastically ineligible.

Other vacancies resulted from the resignation of Phil Patterson, AGS, senior representative, who graduated, and Anita Holmes, USA, junior representative, who withdrew from the University.

The Executive Council will meet Monday night, but selection of the new members will not take place until Monday, Jan. 16.

New Cards Needed

Winter term student athletic cards will be required for admittance to the Friday and Saturday basketball series with Washington State. They can be picked up at the ticket windows in McArthur Court by students who have paid their fees.

Movies, Reports Are Discussed By Union Board

By STAN TURNBULL

At its regular weekly meeting Wednesday afternoon, the Student Union Board considered six major items of business. The board:

1. Decided to limit attendance at Wednesday night movies to members of the "University family"—students and faculty members.
2. Slated election of a permanent chairman and secretary of the group for their next meeting.
3. Heard a report concerning letters sent to universities throughout the country requesting information on the functioning of their program committees and general information on the operation of their student unions.
4. Heard a report from the organization committee which is investigating possible methods of setting up permanent machinery for continuing the student union board and of getting help from students not on the board.
5. Discussed allocation of the filing, desk, and room space which will be available to some campus groups in the new Union Building.
6. Named Ed Peterson, junior in music, to head an orientation committee, which will take steps to acquaint the student body with the activities of the student union board.

Reason for limiting the attendance at the Wednesday movies is the overcrowding in room 207 Chapman, which has recently become acute. The board considered having simultaneous showings in Chapman and some other building, but this was considered impracticable, as it would require another room and running the reels from one building to another as they were completed.

ELECTIONS SET

The elections scheduled for next week will select permanent successors for Les Jones, who has been temporary chairman, and Olga Yevtich, assistant to the student union director, who is not a board member but has been serving as secretary of the group during its formative stages.

Jim Wallace, member of the program committee (headed by Antoinette Kuzmanich, who was absent), reported that letters had been sent to 36 representative universities throughout the country, inviting, and functions of the program committees of their student inquiring into the organization, acunions. The letters also solicited any general information which might aid the Oregon group.

Director Seeks Amazons For Casting of Comedy

A tape measure will be the casting judge for the University Theatre's production "The Warrior's Husband." Tryouts for the humorous story of the Amazon kingdom start tonight at 7:30 in Room 102 Villard.

Horace W. Robinson, director of University Theatre, will direct the Julian Thompson comedy which will play March 3, 4, 8, 9, 10, and 11.

Only girls 5 feet 6½ inches and over need apply for roles. Show girl types of Amazon proportions properly distributed are wanted. Director Robinson has very defininite ideas on what an Amazon should look like, admitting that the idea is personal rather than historical.

The few male roles will go to a hand-picked group of men fortunate enough to rate inclusion in a cast of shapely, strapping beauties.

Physical characteristics are not quite as demanding for the men. Assorted sizes of men are needed, including a Hercules, who has been sent on his Ninth Labor to win the girdle of Diana from Hippolyta, queen of the Amazons, Theseus, a tall, blond Greek god type, and a delicate, flirtatious Sapiens.

Wesley Group Plans New $100,000 Center

Wesley Foundation, Methodist student center on campus, will have a new $100,000 home by Mar. 1, 1952, to accommodate a growing religious work on the campus.

The new building, designed by Clare I. Hamlin, architect, will feature a student chapel which will accommodate 200 students. The chapel will be used for regular Sunday evening worship and will be available daily to all students for meditation and special services.

Second main section of the building is devoted to a large hall to be used for three functions: as an auditorium, a dining room, and recreation hall. The room will boast a fireplace, folding stage, and kitchen facilities.

Winter Term Jobs Open on Emerald

Opportunities for work on the Emerald Winter term will be outlined at a meeting tomorrow at 4 p.m. in room 105, Journalism, Managing Editor Glenn Gillespie announced yesterday.

All students interested in working on the paper may attend the meeting, whether or not they have had previous experience on the daily.

Workers are needed on business and editorial side. Jobs open include reporting, copy desk, night staff, ad soliciting, and office work.

On the second floor will be a student lounge designed to incorporate the "home away from home" atmosphere. Its facilities will include a fireplace and space for intimate discussion and seminar group gatherings.

Other rooms on the second floor are a library, music room, and study room. Folding partitions between these three rooms will allow them to be combined into one large room.

An entrance into the balcony of the chapel is also included, opening from the music room where the Wesley Singers will conduct their rehearsals. Storage space for robes and music will be ample in the music room.

A basement room will cover half the building area and will house permanent recreation equipment, furnace room, photographic dark room, woodworking shop, and storage room.

Construction of the new building will begin in the near future. Plans are being initiated for the solicitation of funds locally and throughout the state.

A sample weekly program of Wesley Foundation includes attendance at services, dinner-forum Sunday evening, chorus rehearsals on Tuesday, an informal "open house" on Wednesday evening, a married students' potluck dinner on Thursday, a party on Friday, and square-dancing and folk-dancing on Saturday night.

Enrollment Lines End For 4,245

Registration processes moved smoothly Wednesday with very little congestion as 698 students registered, bringing the winter term total to approximately 4,245. Tuesday 2,320 completed the procedure.

Another change in registration rulings was reported Wednesday by Registrar Clifford L. Constance. Students who feel they were unjustly assessed the $5 late fee for not completing steps 1 through 4 during advance registration may file petitions requesting waiver or refund of the fee.

No information is available at present as to what will constitute sufficient reason for waiver or how many will be granted.

LATE FEE LEVIED

A late fee of $5 will be assessed all students failing to complete registration by Saturday noon. If a student has already paid a late fee for failure to complete step 4 in advance registration no further charge will be made even if he does not complete the process Saturday.

All students are now registering in Emerald Hall. Registration ends Jan. 14.

IBM equipment, consisting of punching and sorting machines, is being used for registration as it has in previous years. Several pieces of new equipment have arrived at the University and more is scheduled.

DIRECTOR COMING

The new equipment will not be placed in operation until the arrival of W. E. Hinch, an experienced IBM man, sometime in the middle of January, Constance reported. Hinch is now assistant director of the campus tabulating service bureau at Washington State College in Pullman.

Whether or not this new equipment will effect registration is not yet known. "It depends on what we do to registration," Constance said. The machinery is under the jurisdiction of the Business Office.

Weather . . .

Cloudy today with occasional light rain or snow starting in the evening. A little warmer with a high of 40 and a low of 34.

71-Year-Old Alum from India Plans to Visit Oregon Campus

A letter from a 71-year-old former University of Oregon student from India who wants to visit the campus again after 42 years was received recently by President Harry Newburn.

Satya Dev Narihajah asked the president to contact the American Counsel General at New Delhi in order to aid him in traveling to the United States. He attended the University a year and a term—1907 and 1908.

He wrote President Newburn, "I have a great desire to visit my Alma Mater, the University of Oregon, where the students and professors were so good and kind to me that I have never forgotten those wonderful days when I was a student myself.

"Now I am 71 years old, and in the struggle of my country's freedom have lost my eyesight. Still my soul is longing to visit dear Eugene and the University grounds in order to tell the students the interesting story of my life—how I went back to my country, started the freedom struggle with Mahatma Gandhi and how the struggle was won by our people.

"I have decided to buy an airplane ticket from Calcutta to San Francisco."

President Newburn wrote the Counsel General in New Delhi and replied in a letter to the former student that he would have the opportunity to talk to students and faculty members when he arrives at the University.
