

Webfoots Battle Washington Tonight

LOUIE SORIANO is the top point-getter for the Washington Huskies, and the chunky howitzer artist will get special care from the Ducks when they clash with the Northern Division leaders tonight at Seattle. The Bremerton sparkplug tops his club in scoring, foul conversions, and personal fouls, and is second in shooting percentage with a .344 mark.

Huskies Leaders Of Division With 3-1 Win Record

Washington's Huskies will ready themselves tonight to meet the "unpredictable" Oregon Ducks, as they are called by Washington's own Bert Rose, director of the Purple and Gold Athletic News Bureau.

UW Coach Art McLarney will have his "Big Five" ready to go against Oregon.

This aggregation of net-swishers includes Hal Arnason, LaDon Henson, Duane Enochs, Louie Soriano, and Frank Guisness.

It's the last two men who have given Husky fans the biggest thrills so far this season.

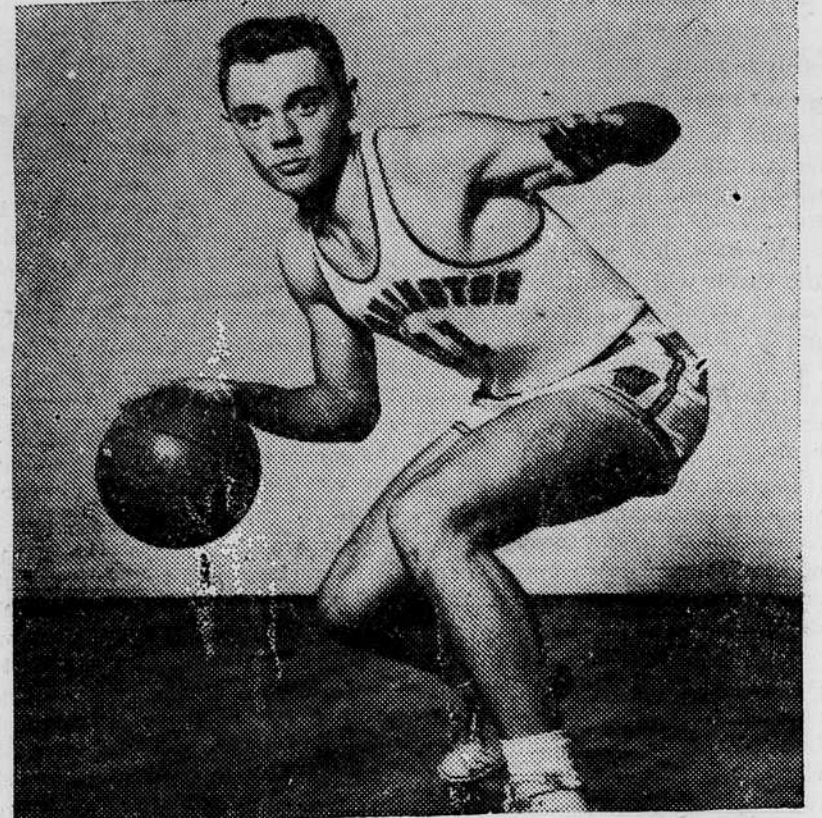

Soriano is the leading scorer of the season, with 167 points to his record. This mark puts him at second in the Northern Division, behind Washington State's Gene Conley.

The driving little guard is also the third highest man in the division in points per game, with a record of 12.8 markers.

The other guard, Guisness, is right behind Soriano in total points, with 146, to rank second on the Washington team. That also puts him at third place in the division records for total scoring.

Guisness, a sophomore from Vancouver, Wash., ranks sixth in the average-points-per-game column of division records.

Six-foot, five-inch Duane Enochs is also figured to give any opposition plenty of trouble under the boards. Just what Ore-gon's Jim Vranizan can do with him and against him is what fans will wait to see.

FRANK GUISSNESS boasts the second highest scoring average of Coach Art McLarney's surprising Husky quintet. The former Vancouver, Wash., boy is sixth in the Northern Division average scoring race with 39 points for a 9.8 average, and his 6-foot 3-inch frame is one reason why the Ducks will be at a height disadvantage when they attempt to return to a .500 mark tonight.

Vranizan is one inch shorter than Enochs, but a good jumper, and may keep up with the Washington ace.

The Ducks left for Seattle at 7 a. m. yesterday by bus. They held their last workout in McArthur Court Wednesday afternoon.

Coach John Warren gave his charges a session at one end of the floor, using alternately an Oregon offense against a Washington defense, and a Husky offense against the Duck defense.

In Wednesday's practice, Forward Dale Warberg started the afternoon with little trouble from his injured thigh, but the sore muscle weakened under the strain of heavy running. Warberg had to be benched for the rest of the session.

Will Urban gave fans who watched the practice a scare when he collided with Mel Streeter under the basket and suffered a slight gash on his right eye. Will was pronounced ready to continue a few minutes later by team physician Dr. George Guldager and Trainer Tom Hughes.

Reserves who looked good in the Wednesday practice were Mel Streeter and Paul Cooper. Streeter continually drove in under the basket to hook up seemingly impossible shots.

Cooper did some beautiful faking and netted several over-the-head hook shots from the key hole.

Theta Chi, Sammies, Chi Psi, Sigma Nu Win IMs

The first round of intramural "E" basketball competition was completed Thursday night except for one game which will be taken care of today.

Lop-sided contests were won by Theta Chi and the Sammies, while Campbell, Club, Sigma Nu, SAE, and the Chi Psis had to work a little harder for their victories.

CAMPBELL CLUB WINS

Campbell Club dropped Phi Kappa Sigma, 8-4, with both teams losing all but occasional contact with the basket. The two clubs played percentage basketball and took very few shots, although a lot of wild passes bounced off the backboards.

SIGMA NUS VICTORS

Sigma Nu defeated Delta Upsilon, 16-11, in another game that certainly didn't prove defensive basketball is gone forever. Neither did it prove the success of offensive basketball.

THETA CHI TRIUMPHS

Theta Chi came down off the hill to hand the Tekes a 25-7 walloping. The Little Reds coupled a fast break with a tight defense to frustrate all efforts of the toppled Tekes.

LAMBDA CHI DROPPED

The other runaway of the night was staged by the Sammies, who ran away from Lambda Chi to the tune of 20-8. The winners built up a comfortable halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way.

SAE TOPPLES DELTS

Sigma Alpha Epsilon took advantage of a loose Delt defense in the first half and built a big enough lead to carry them to a 20-13 win. The Delts plugged the holes somewhat in the last half and staged an offense of their own, but it was not enough.

Frosh-Rook Contest Set for Igloo Tonight

The Oregon Duckling basketball team will meet the Oregon State Rooks tonight in the first game of the annual "little civil war" at 8 p.m. in McArthur Court.

The Rooks will act as hosts for the second meeting, to be held Saturday night in Corvallis.

Coach Don Kirsch's Frosh hoopmen are especially keyed up to average the four straight defeats suffered at the hands of the Junior Beavers last season.

They will be slight favorites due to their undefeated status in seven official games played to date, while the Rooks have taken to the floor only once, producing an impressive 43-27 win over Hood River high school last Friday.

Chet Noe and Hank Bonneman, towering 6-foot, 7-inch scoring wizards, will give the Ducklings a slight edge in height over their opponents, although the Beavers boast three tall firs as starters in Center Bob Adrian and Forward Bill Storye, both of whom stretch to the 6-foot, 4-inch mark, and Irv Lahti, the other forward, who measures 6 feet 2 inches.

Rounding out the State starters are a pair of speedy guards,

Carlyle Staab, former Baker High flash, and Ben Potzer, second-string Allstate last year from Salem.

Kirsch has been working his charges overtime all week in an attempt to tighten the Duckling defense, one of the sore spots in early season games.

Vast improvement has been shown recently, as was evidenced in last Tuesday's 71-53 triumph over the Oregon Lumber Sales crew.

Probable starters for the Greenmen are Jim Livesay and Chet Noe, forwards, Hank Bonneman, center, and Bud Covey and Nich Schmer, guards.

Everyone's Doing It; Blue 'n' Gold Falls to Denver

DENVER — (UP) — Denver's Chevrolets, getting more than half of all the rebounds, scored a 53-50 National Industrial Basketball victory over the Blue 'n' Gold of Oakland here in the second of a two game series.

The Oakland five won the first game Wednesday night, 54-53.

Denver had to come from behind to notch last night's win as they failed to hit from the floor in the first six minutes. But once the Chevrolets got moving, they forged to the front and made Oakland play their game for the last 30 minutes.

Big Bill Tom, former Rice center, broke the Oakland quintet tonight. He was unstoppable with a jump shot from the pivot slot and took home second honors with 20 points. He was helped in the winning effort by Harold Howey, who collected seven counters and Thornton Jenkins who got eight.

Don Barksdale, Oakland's great center, didn't have the shooting eye that he did Wednesday night when he made 25 points. He was held in check by Gordon "Shorty" Carpenter, and was able to make only 12 points last night.
