Frosh-Rook Series Split; Noe Gets 28

The Oregon Frosh Basketball team split contests with the Oregon State Rooks in games played the past weekend in the first half of the "little Civil War" series.

The Ducklings posted a very decisive 66-41 win in the Friday night meeting at McArthur Court in Eugene, only to have the Baby Beavers reverse the decision, 40-34, in the Corvallis fray Saturday evening. The Rook triumph marked the first Frosh defeat in ten official games this season.

Chet Noe, lanky 6 foot 7 inch forward for the Ducklings was the big gun in the first clash as he potted a total of 21 points. Noe set what must be a new record as he was awarded 17 trips to the free throw line and successfully sank 11 bonus shots. At the same time Noe held Bob Adrian, sky-scraping Beaver Center to a mere 2 points, although the Duck cause was aided as Adrian fouled out within two minutes of the second half. Nick Schmer followed Noe for point honors with 14 counters. Bill Storey, brother of OSC's varsity star Ken Storey, paced the Beavers with seven points.

Girl Cagers, Swimmers Set For Opening

Eighteen women's living organizations are practicing basketball techniques for the basketball intramurals, which start Jan. 30.

Each player is required to attend three practices and all games. Tournament games will be on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights.

Teams from Delta Delta Delta, University House, Ann Judson House, Alpha Gamma Delta, Hendricks, Alpha Omicron Pi, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Chi Omega, Gamma Phi Beta, Highland House, Zeta Tau Alpha, Delta Zeta, Alpha Delta Pi, Chi Omega, Rebec House, and Kappa Alpha Theta will be competing. Carson is entering two teams, the Hotshots and Hoopless.

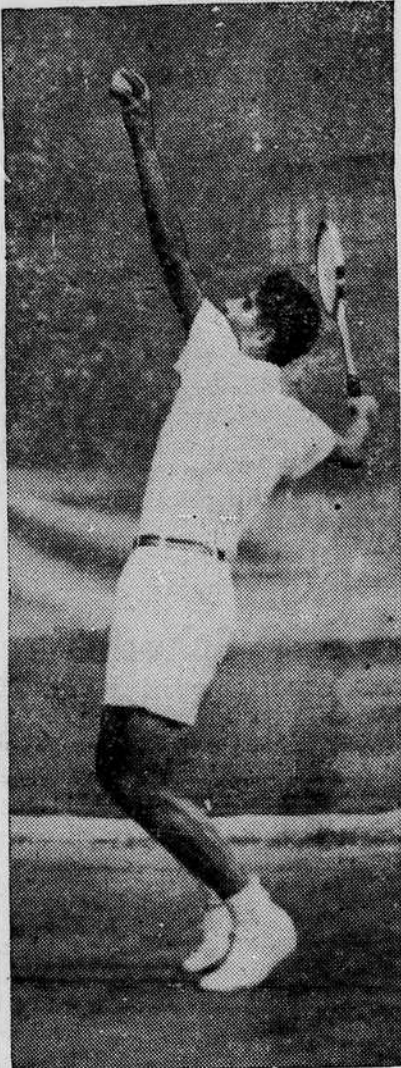

House athletic managers are requested to turn in the entrance blanks for swimming intramurals. Practices are now in session for the meets which will be held Feb. 16 and 22. Any one person or group of persons may enter the meet.

4:00 Alpha Hall vs. Chi Psi
Six more teams entered the second round of "A" basketball in intramural action Monday. The three winners on the abbreviated schedule were McChesney, Omega, and Phi Kappa Psi. Sigma Alpha Epsilon scored a "3-0" forfeit win over Sederstrom in the only handball match of the evening.

French Hall was no competitor for the hard driving McChesney five which tallied a 30-8 notch in the win-belt. Half-time score read 14-2. Leading point makers on the scoring machine were Wil Owens (10), John Elorriaga (8), and Don Kresse (6).

Omega, Phi Kaps Win

Omega joined the winner's circle with a 22-14 win over the Yeomen. The independent quintet couldn't hit the range in the initial half, trailing 12-4 at the intermission. Paul Engelmeier snared top scoring laurels with eight points. Bill Briot had six points for the losers.

The finale hoop tilt was one of the closest in IM history. The Phi Kaps took a 12-11 win over Sigma Phi Epsilon on a crucial foul shot dropped in by Jim Bocci in the waning seconds of the game. Sig Epsilon led 3-1 at the initial quarter and 9-7 at the three quarter mark although at half-time the score was knotted at 5-all. Don Provost and Don Bowman shared high point honors with four points apiece.

Three Teams Unbeaten

After a week's interlude of "junior varsity" B league action the "A" division hoop quints will again resume casaba activities in Intramurals.

In Friday's action a la "A" league, TKE lost 28-17 to Phi Sigma Kappa, Philadelphia dropped a 33-14 game to Minturn, Phi Kappa Sigma edged a 16-15 win over Campbell Club, the Agates tipped the Deltas 18-12, and Nestor spilled the YMCA 19-12. The only "B" game scheduled saw Beta Theta Pi topple French Hall 26-13. Kappa Sigma won a 2-1 handball victory over Stan Ray.

LOUIS SORIANO, chunky Washington guard who aided in the double drubbing given Oregon at Seattle last Friday and Saturday. Louie and fellow guard Frank Guisness are two good reasons why Art McLarney's crew now leads the Northern Division. Can Oregon stop them this weekend?

Art McLarney's amazing Huskies continued to run through the Northern Division, as they buried Oregon last weekend in a pair of basketball games at Seattle.

Oregon's John Warren tried every trick at his command in an effort to stop Washington, but it was like trying to plug a leak in a dike with a cork. On Friday it was a platoon system, and a new starting guard, Hal Webb. Saturday, Warren tried a zone defense. Both maneuvers bothered Washington only for a short while.

The play of the Huskies (now 15-2) was of division championship caliber. They hit from the floor with a variety of set and jump shots. On Friday night Frank Guisness displayed a driving, jumping, underhand shot that aided him in collecting 9 of 12 shots from the field. In addition, he made 9 for 9 at the free throw line.

HUSKY GUARDS SHINE

Louis Soriano, Keith Jefferson, and Marcus Metzger, all performed well at their guard posts, Soriano, frequent high point man for his club, was hampered on Friday by a couple of quick fouls. He was forced to spend much time on the bench. In the pinch, his replacement, Jefferson took up the slack. Balance like this has aided Washington all season.

The fine play of Washington's guards concealed the fact that Oregon was able to keep the front line of the Huskies under reasonable check. Jim Vranizan, the steadily improving Webfoot pivot man did a fine job in checking Duane Enochs, the Seattle squad's tall boy.

Of little consolation to Webfoot supporters was the activity of Will Urban and Jack Keller. These two boys who have shown the raw essentials that may some day make them top basketball players led the Oregon attack. On Friday night it was the tall, scrappy Urban pacing his teammates, while little sharpshooting Keller found his eye on Friday night, and retained it throughout the series. Keller came into Friday night's game when the decision to start Webb proved futile.

Paul Sowers, ace of the Oregons in earlier competition, continued to be bothered by his back. Reports from Seattle mentioned that it was back trouble that caused him to travel, breaking up several Oregon thrusts. The rest of the Eugene squad just didn't have it.

The two teams will meet again this Friday and Saturday in Eugene at McArthur court. Here, Washington will be facing one of the better home teams of the Con-
