

Crockety Old Vet --- Number of Ways

Arts Museum. Why don't you grow up? Sure the dormitories have to be kept on a paying basis. Sure it's going to be tough on the Greeks. In spite of the good cooperation the independents have given the plan it's going to be tough on them too. It seems to me that "Young Don Smith" has been a little rough on the Greeks because they have been so stubborn in refusing to accept the inevitable. And another thing, no part of the Vets' Commons has been closed off.

I doubt if anyone disliked the manner the "DuShane plan" was shoved down our throats any more than I did. I felt from the start that the primary reason for the "plan" was to keep the dormitories full. Still, I think the fair thing to do is give the plan an honest trial, then if it doesn't work you will certainly have a lot more to argue with than just emotion.

Offhand Observations--- Equal Rights

It is said that we can sometimes learn from history. So if you want to take a look at the future, men, look to the past. Look at the current Alley Oop cartoon strip, and wonder—and worry a little. If ever a threat could unite Greek and Independent in a co-fraternity of man, this should do it.

In a recent edition of Editor and Publisher magazine there appeared the following typographical blurb, culled by some proofreader of the Pennsylvania Bulletin:

"Yet the sulfas and the antibiotics, among them, have taken the terror out of the pneumonias and have made the venereal diseases no longer the university plague."

Will this embarrass Harris? Due to a leak in the athletic office last year, some of the members of the ski team learned they had been invited to the Vanderbilt races. So they scraped up some money and paid their own way. And to provide a beautiful evening, they took two places. The only difficulty is that apparently no one realized Oregon had a ski team, so the cups were inscribed with the name of Oregon State College.

Louise Clouston to Play Spinster in 'Thunder Rock'

By NORMAN ANDERSON

If versatility is the mark of an actress, then Louise Clouston is "in."

When "Thunder Rock" opens Friday night, Feb. 3, Louise will be appearing in her sixth University Theatre production.

According to Louise, her present role, that of Miss Kirby, rebellious, old-maidish, and an agitator for equal rights for women, is not the most difficult nor the most interesting characterization in her experience. Nor is Miss Kirby a role that Louise easily fell into.

'Most Interesting Role'

"I think it's the most interesting of the three feminine roles in the play. She has such a definite characterization that it's easy to depict her." Inasmuch as Miss Kirby is the usual picture of a fiery old maid, Louise, physically, has had some trouble.

Most people think of a person of this type as rather tall, stringy, and shapeless individual. Louise has flaming red hair, grey eyes and is about two or three feet shorter than Gregory Peck.

However, it happens to be the least of her handicaps as far as she is concerned, and she hopes her performance will prove her right.

Played 'Puck'

Louise recalls that the part of Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" gave her the most pleasure. That was a role which was almost made for her. Gabby, in "The Petrified Forest," produced the same year, was another role Louise enjoyed. "She was sort of like Miss Kirby, in that Gabby was also caught in a situation which she couldn't do anything about. But Miss Kirby's problem is a little different. She's a very lonely person who is all tied up inside. Many times she'd like to loosen up but 40 years of being an old maid are against her."

Louise has found that trying to show the change in Miss Kirby as the action in the play continues has been a little difficult, pointing out that "it's a pretty subtle change in characterization."

Plans Secretarial Work

After graduation, Louise doesn't plan to go on into the theater. Instead she's continuing the secretarial work she started some time ago. During the summers she works for the Roundup committee in her home town of Pendleton where "they don't have much in the way of drama."

But Louise's college drama experience has been broad enough to carry her along for quite awhile. In addition to the previously mentioned plays, Louise has appeared in "The Yellow Jacket," "The Adding Machine," and "Dover Road."

She also is president of National Collegiate Players and is a member of Phi Beta, women's national music and drama honorary.

Sweater Bag Sale Aids Scholarships

Sweater bags made by members of Kwama, sophomore women's service honorary, went on sale Thursday in women's living organizations.

The bags, made of transparent yellow and white plastic material, sell for 20 cents each.

Proceeds from the sale will go toward scholarships annually awarded by Kwama during spring term. Last year's awards amounted to $200.

U. S. Education Commissioner estimates 32,671,500 students entered the nation's school this fall. That's a lot of mothers with peace and quit.

Dedication Program Schedules Governor McKay as Speaker

Governor Douglas McKay will be chief speaker for the official dedication of Carson Hall, the Music School addition, and remodeled Villard Hall with the University Theater, Feb. 10-11.

Complete program for the campus open house and dedication was adopted Wednesday by the student and faculty committee in charge.

Others participating in the program in the lobby of Carson Hall will be R. E. Kleinsorge, chairman of the State Board of Higher Education building committee; President Harry K. Newburn; Theodore Kratt, dean of the School of Music; Roy C. McCall, department of speech; and Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of dormitories.

Band to Play

Students taking part in the dedication will be Art Johnson, ASUO president; and Cherry Taylor, Carson Hall president. The Oregon band, directed by John Stehn, will play.

Following the ceremony, the buildings will be open to the public, with conducted tours planned.

The open house is to be held concurrent with meetings of the Oregon Broadcasters Association and Northwest Drama Conference.

Macbeth to Show

A special radio production of "Macbeth" will be given from 3-4 p.m. Saturday in Villard, while a complimentary production of "Winterset" is set for 8 p.m. in the new theater.

The home economics department, celebrating its 10th anniversary in its new facilities in Chapman Hall, will hold a tea from 4-5 p.m. Music School faculty members are planning a special program from 2-3 in the new addition.

A two-hour broadcast of the dedication and other events will be heard over KOAC, in Corvallis, Eugene stations, and other stations throughout the state.

The State Board building committee will make an official inspection of buildings Friday afternoon. Another Friday event is the Oregon-Oregon State basketball game in McArthur Court.
