

Building Dedication

These are the Erb Memorial Student Union, the Library addition, and heating and power plant, and science building.

Construction on the Erb Memorial Union is now in the finishing stages, with workmen plastering, painting, and installing final heating units. It is hoped that the Union will be ready for occupancy this May.

Four Sections in Union

The Student Union building is divided into five principal functional sections. Recreational, eating, cultural, ballroom, and student offices. Bowling alleys and billiard and ping pong tables will be among recreational equipment found in the basement of the structure. A restaurant seating 450 people will be located on the first floor, along with special dining room areas for smaller groups.

Included in the second-floor cultural area will be the Browsing Room, two art exhibit rooms, and record listening rooms. A ballroom, planned to hold between 900 and 1000 dancing couples, will also be found on this floor. Movies and small concerts, in addition to dances, will be held in the ballroom.

Student offices will occupy third-floor space. Also housed in the building will be a barbershop and University postoffice.

Started in October, 1949, the total cost for the building will be $2,130,137.

Workmen Ready

Workmen are getting ready to plaster in the $755,000 University Library addition, which was started following the signing of contracts in January, 1949. The building shell is up and most of the windows are in place, although no doors are in evidence yet.

Officials expect the addition to be ready for use the beginning of next fall term. Completion will enable students to use stack areas, which are now closed. Additional reading room space will also be provided. The audio-visual department will be located in the addition's basement.

Electric power will be generated by the University for its own consumption upon completion of the $1,104,000 heating and power plant. At present the school buys electricity from the Eugene Water and Electric Board.

Construction began on the project around the first of December, 1949. Excavation work has been completed, piling driven, and footing poured on the latter since the starting date. Some of the fill material has also been put in place.

Three New Boilers

The plant will contain three new boilers. These will be large enough so that two will be able to fill sufficiently campus needs at one time.

Houses have been cleared from the land set aside for a new science building. Final plans and specifications for the building will be approved at the Jan. 31 meeting of the State Board of Higher Education. Bids will be opened at the March meeting of the board.

Construction is planned to begin not later than Apr. 1, and the building is expected to be ready for classes fall term, 1951. It will house science classrooms, laboratories, and faculty offices.

Recital, News Show Featured on KOAC

A piano recital by Madelin Adler, sophomore in music, filled the half hour on "Music for Better Listening" over KOAC last night from 8:30 till 9.

Popular throughout the state as a result of her many appearances in concert and recital programs, Miss Adler presented Schumann's "Novelette in F Major" and "Rhapsody in C Major" by Dohnany.

The program was under the direction of George Hopkins, professor of piano.

At 8, Donald D. Allton, assistant professor of organ and theory, continued his interpretations of the works of Johann Sebastian Bach. Last night he concentrated on several fugues.

"Campus News Review," information about Oregon and Oregon alums, was presented by radio journalism students from 8:15 till 8:30.

New Plan To Train Physicians

A new type of postgraduate program in industrial health techniques for young physicians who have completed their internships is being inaugurated by General Motors in cooperation with the University of Michigan.

Under the program the physicians will be employed by General Motors for 12 months. Eight months of the period will be spent at the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

Work With Veterans

The new physicians will familiarize themselves with the General Motors medical service programs, working with industrial physicians and technicians who have had several years of practical service in this field.

At the School of Public Health in Ann Arbor, they will study basic introductory courses in public health administration, environmental health, epidemiology, and health economics.

Begin After July

Those who have completed their internships in an approved hospital may apply for this training program through the General Motors Medical Director, General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich. Applications will be accepted beginning Feb. 1.

Physicians now serving their internship may begin the program after July 1.

Bruce Bishop was appointed chairman of a committee for revising the constitution and Wallace Benson was named publicity chairman.

'Y' Service Committee Works With Delinquents

By CORALEE NELSON

The Service Committee of the University of Oregon YWCA has been active since last spring in a "big sister" program sponsored by the Lane County Juvenile Department, in connection with its work on delinquency prevention.

"The purpose of the program," Beverly Buckley, co-chairman of the Service Committee, said, "is to give companionship and a sense of security which they have never had, to girls between the ages of 13 and 18 selected by the Juvenile Department as needing special attention."

Companionship Needed

Girls have come, through delinquency or dependency, to the attention of the Juvenile Department, which is working with the YWCA and the University sociology department on the project. They need companionship, according to Louis Sherman, county probation officer, to divert their interests from wrongful conduct to constructive behavior.

"Big sisters" are chosen by Miss Lois Greenwood, executive director of the YWCA; Jack R. Parsons, assistant professor of sociology, and Paul E. Eisner, assistant professor of education and psychology.

Qualifications

They must be juniors or seniors majoring in sociology, psychology, or education, and are selected according to their personality, ability, and interest in working with young people.

The girls who are chosen read case histories kept on file in Miss Greenwood's office before reading the actual Eugene cases filed in the office of Mrs. Lida Garrett, general chairman of the program.

From the Eugene cases, the "big sisters" choose the ones with whom they want to work, and organize their own program of activities—including dinner at some of the dormitories, concerts, church, movies, and luncheons. A few of them have arranged double dates or included the girls in family affairs.

It's nice to believe that you're only as old as you feel—unless you feel old.

Cartoon Contest Ends Wednesday

The Oregana cartoon contest, open to all University students, will close Wednesday, according to Editor Larry Davidson.

Members of the Oregana editorial staff will judge entries, selecting the six best cartoons for inclusion in the 1950 Oregana. Each participant may turn in as many cartoons as desired, with the stipulation that the subject of all cartoons must be "collegiate."

Cartoons must be pen-and-ink drawings, printed on smooth-surface white cardboard. They should be 8 inches wide by 6½ inches long; accompanying captions should be printed either on an accompanying sheet of paper or on the back of the cartoon. Captions are not required.

Past Oreganas have featured pages of cartoons. The present contest is a revival of that tradition. The cartoons may be turned in at the Oregana offices in McArthur Court before 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Theater Elects New Executive Board

The new University Theater Executive Board was elected at a party and meeting, Jan. 27.

Two representatives from each class were selected. They are Joan Landman, Larry Barsness, graduate representatives; Grace Hoffman, Terrence Roseen, senior representatives; Pat White, Don Smith, junior representatives; Pat Boyle, Bob Nelson, sophomore representatives; and Ellen Stephens, Dick Bent, freshman representatives.

A new camera has an exposure time of four-hundred-millionths of a second, but we'll bet it still couldn't catch Junior at some of his tricks.
