Annual 'Heart Hop' Dance Slated Tonight After Game

Win or lose, the Oregon-Oregon State game tonight will soon be forgotten in favor of the 14th Annual Heart Hop, scheduled to start immediately after the game.

Tubbing of the King of Hearts has been set for 11 p.m. on the Kappa Alpha Theta lawn, according to Joan Skordahl, head of the coronation committee. The Order of 'O' men will conduct the tubbing. Theta Chi has donated a tub for the ceremony.

Plans for the coronation have been changed. The king will be ushered onto the floor at McArthur court at 7:45 tonight by the 8-year-old Sanne twins, Darryl and Donald. Barbara Metcalf, chairman of the sophomore commission, will crown the winner. While he is seated on the throne, the band will play the Heart Hop theme, "With A Song In My Heart."

All ticket holder may vote for their candidate at the Co-op until 4 o'clock this afternoon. Tickets are on sale in all women's living organizations until noon and at the Co-op.

More Than 300 Delegates Register Thursday; Gathering Scheduled to Run Through Saturday

Over 300 delegates, with more expected today, registered Thursday as the third annual Northwest Drama Conference opened in Villard Hall. The conference, sponsored by the University speech department, continues through Saturday.

Horace W. Robinson, director of University Theater, stated that the conference is "without doubt" the largest regional meeting of the American Educational Theater Association, and the attendance has exceeded, in many cases, the number at several national AETA conventions.

DISCUSSION GROUPS TODAY

Thursday's program included the opening session and the production of "Thunder Rock" by the University Theater and "Yes, My Darling Daughter" by the Portland Civic Theater. Discussion groups will be held today. Topics will include various phases of the theater.

After a breakfast meeting of session chairmen, the editorial committee, and the resolutions committee at 9 a.m., the conference will divide to discuss the theater at its four levels.

The high school discussion group, led by John Lehman, on leave from the Portland City school system, and a graduate student at the University, will meet in 201 Villard.

UNIVERSITY, COLLEGE GROUP

The University and College groups will meet in the University Theater auditorium, with Cecil LEADING PLAYERS in the production of "Winterset" Saturday will be George Eriksen (top) and Barbara Pasquan (bottom).

Broadcasters' Meeting Opens Today

Approximately 60 Oregon broadcasters assembled today for the first Broadcasters' Conference will get a chance to inspect the University radio program through a special series of shows.

At 3 p.m. today, Mitch Mitchell of the Broadcast Advertising Bureau will begin the broadcasters-University schedule of events with a talk to students in Studio A of Villard Hall. He will discuss the future of advertising in radio.

CAREERS IN RADIO

At 10 a.m. on Saturday those interested in radio as a possible career will be afforded an opportunity to participate in a seminar-type discussion with men in all phases of broadcasting. Under the supervision of William McCready of KUGN, officials of various Oregon stations will answer questions of students concerning careers in radio.

The program of speakers as tentatively arranged will include:

Ted Cook, program director of KOIN, Portland; Mel Bailey, program director of KEX, Portland; Bob Holmes, manager of KAST, Astoria; and Bud Chandler, manager of KFLW, Klamath Falls.

INDEPENDENT SPEAKER

McCready said that a speaker representing an independent station would probably be included. The listed speakers all are from stations affiliated with major networks. They have been chosen mainly because all of them are concerned with hiring and personnel.

Three broadcasts are listed for Saturday. The first will come at 1:30 p.m. when Lee Jacobs, president of the Oregon Broadcasters' Association; Harry K. Newburn, University president; Art Johnson, ASUO president; and R. E. Kleinsorge of the State Board of Higher Education speak at the dedication ceremonies in the lobby of Carson Hall.

TO PRESENT "MACBETH"

A broadcast from the School of Music will go out at 2:30 p.m. and a student presentation of "Macbeth" will be heard from Villard Hall at 3 p.m.

Members of Kappa Rho Omicron, University radio honorary, will serve as guides for the delegates.

Religious Week Program Starts Sunday

Religious Evaluation Week built around the general theme, "First-Hand Religion," will go into full swing on the Oregon campus Sunday.

A fellowship dinner, scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Sunday at John Straub, will officially open the week's events.

University President Harry K. Newburn will introduce the main speaker for the week, Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, and Mrs. Gilkey, a noted worker in the YWCA and the National Council of Christian Church Women.

50 TICKETS AVAILABLE

Fifty tickets at 55 cents will be available for students at the door.

ASUO President Art Johnson will speak at the dinner. Singing and special music will be featured.

Dr. Gilkey's first major address is scheduled for the union city-campus worship service at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Music Auditorium. Topic is "How Long Will Cut Flowers Last?"

CHOIR TO SING

Eugene High School's acapella choir, under the direction of Russell Harrison, will sing at the service. The congregation will join in the singing of two hymns.

Dr. Wesley Goodson Nicholson, pastor of the Congregational Church, will introduce the speaker and pronounce the benediction.

The Rev. Mr. Thom Hunter, director of Westminster House, will give the call to worship and prayer. Dr. Beryl Ferris, minister of the First Methodist Church, will read the Scripture.

COTHRELL CHAIRMAN

Chairman for the union meeting is Frank Cothrell, assisted by Mary Cochrane and Natalie Beckett.

Dr. Gilkey will continue his series of addresses at 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Monday's lecture will be given in the new University Theater; Tuesday through Thursday, in Room 3, Fenton.

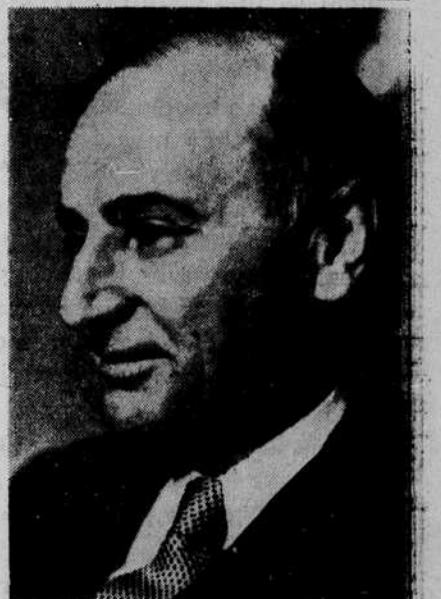

Topics will include Monday, "The Impotence of Second-Hand

Religion"; Tuesday, "Contemporary Religious Illiteracy"; Wednesday, "New Grain out of Old"; and Thursday, "The Roots of First-Hand Religion."

MORNING WORSHIP

Among other daily events of the week will be morning worship, 7:30 to 7:50 each morning in Gerlinger's Alumni Hall. An exception will be Wednesday, when the service will be held in the men's lounge, Gerlinger.

Monday noon the faculty will entertain Dr. Gilkey at the Faculty Club. Tuesday evening local ministers and youth leaders will conduct fireside discussions in campus living organizations.

MAIN SPEAKER in the coming Religious Evaluation Week activities will be Dr. Charles W. Gilkey.

Dedication of Buildings Set

Carson Hall, the University Theater with remodeled Villard Hall, and the new School of Music unit will become an official part of the Oregon campus at 1:30 Saturday when they are dedicated in the lobby of Carson.

Students, faculty, and townspeople are invited to the dedication and open house of the building from 2 to 5 p.m.

Participating in the dedication will be Gov. Douglas McKay; Dr. R. E. Kleinsorge, chairman of the State Board of Higher Education building committee; President Harry K. Newburn; Lee Jacobs, president of the Oregon Broadcasters Association, and students.

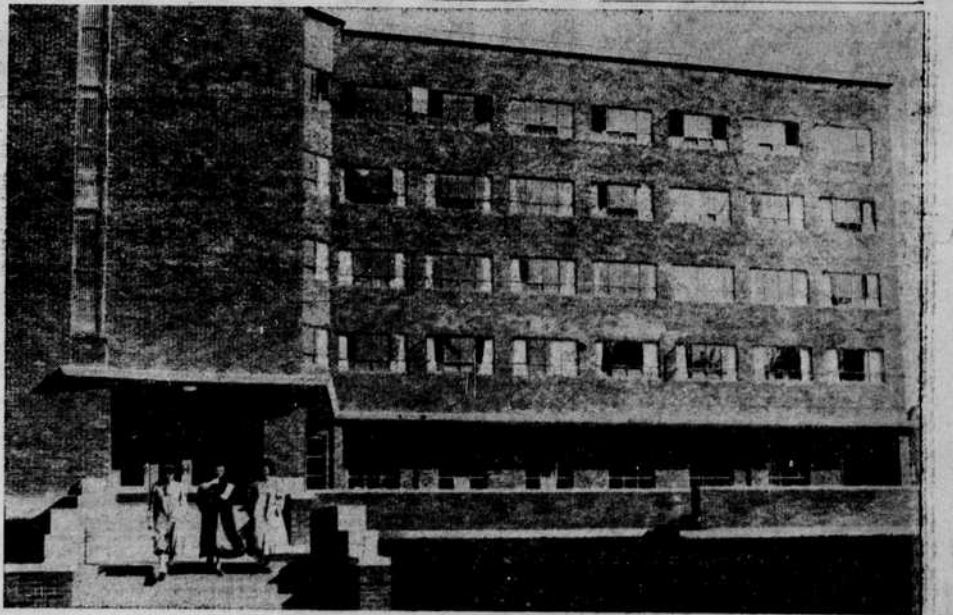

The U. O. band under the direction of John Stehn will play. A two-hour broadcast of the dedication and other events will be heard over KOAC from 2 to 4 p.m.

The tours, conducted by service honoraries, will show the public first-hand the completed part of Oregon's $6,000,000 expansion program.

Coeds will be on hand at Carson Hall to point out the facilities of the new women's dorm. At Villard and the University Theater, visitors may see the theaters, and departments of public speaking and radio. Open in the Music School will be teaching studios in the new building, practice rooms in the old building, and the recently re-decorated auditorium.

From 2 to 3 p.m. a special program of the School of Music faculty will be presented in the Music School Auditorium. The radio production of "Macbeth" by U. O. students will be broadcast from 3 to 4 p.m.

At 4 a tea will be held by the home economics department in Chapman Hall, celebrating its 10th anniversary in its present location.

CARSON HALL will be one of three University buildings dedicated Saturday.
