Fun Fest Slated Here Saturday

Some thirty foreign students from Oregon State College, members of the Cosmopolitan and Chinese student clubs, are expected for tomorrow's International Fun Fest on the Oregon campus.

Pat Williams Brooks and Dolores Jeppesen, co-chairmen of the YWCA International Affairs Committee, which is helping sponsor the event, estimated Thursday that 35 foreign students from the Oregon campus will attend.

After registration and get-acquainted coffee hour period from 2 to 3 p. m., foreign students from both campuses will put on an hour-and-a-half talent show.

The chairmen urged those who have not replied to their invitations to the 5:30 p. m. dinner to make reservations by calling the YWCA before 5 today. Charge is 50 cents a plate.

Other students interested in the program or foreign students who have not been notified may also call the Y for reservations.

The program for the talent show will include a version of the Oregon fight song as Mozart, Bach, and other composers would play it, by Ernst Lutz, Austrian music major.

dent is requested by Mountain to appoint a junior to represent the organization at the Monday meeting.

Positions Open

Positions open for juniors who wish to head and work on the various committees will be explained at that time, when Mountain makes the first call for petitions. Petitions will not be accepted until later in the week, after representatives have reported back to their houses.

"The class officers hope to give juniors the first chance at working on their weekend," the class of '51 president remarked. "We know there are many competent, qualified persons in our class who have not yet had the opportunity to work on an all-campus function."

Short Meeting Set

The meeting Monday will be a short one, Mountain said, in which he will explain to the representatives the procedure for petitioning. The representatives are then to carry this information back to members of the junior class in each living organization.

The importance of having each dorm and house represented was stressed by Mountain.

Other officers of the class helping with Weekend arrangements are Ed Peterson, vice-president; Anne Case, secretary; and Anne Goodman, treasurer.

Lemon-Orange Hop Set Tomorrow Night

It's fun, it's almost free, and it's Saturday night, following the Oregon-OSC basketball game at McArthur Court.

It's the Lemon-Orange Squeeze mixer dance, first all-campus informal dance of the year.

Tickets, at 25 cents each, are on sale at living organizations and the Co-op. They may also be purchased at McArthur Court Saturday night.

University foreign students will be guests of Junior Panhellenic and Junior Interfraternity Council at the dance.

Bloc Accepts Phi Sig Petition

The petition of Phi Sigma Kappa for re-entrance into the Greek Bloc was accepted Thursday by a unanimous vote at a meeting of AGS representatives.

The Phi Sigs will send a representative and may vote in the council, but may not submit their members as candidates for office on the AGS ticket for one year, according to the AGS constitution.

The fraternity left the Bloc in the spring of 1948, when the USA coalition party was formed. Five fraternities and sororities still remain outside the Bloc.

Results of the Freshman election were discussed at the meeting by Jim Hart, Pi Kappa Alpha. He revealed that 30 Greek ballots were invalid, and 60 Greek freshmen either did not vote or cast ballots outside the Bloc.

He urged representatives to encourage more complete participation in elections, and to eliminate the probability of invalid ballots.

Hob Deuel, AGS president, appointed a committee to consider an all-campus social function, sponsored by AGS, during spring term. Committee members are Jerry Meyers, June Fitzgibbons, Elwin Paxton, and Ann Gillenwaters.

Glen Holden, Beta Theta Pi, urged representatives to stimulate interest in council activities, in order to promote united action and cooperation among all Greek organizations.

Landscape Architecture Course Now Fully Accredited at Oregon

The University of Oregon becomes one of nine colleges in the United States to offer a fully accredited curriculum in landscape architecture, according to word received by the architecture school from the American Society of Landscape Architects.

The society is the national accrediting agency of landscape architecture.

Sidney W. Little, dean of the architecture school was notified that the University architecture school has adequate facilities, curriculum, and teaching personnel to become one of the few accredited schools in the country in that field.

The only other accredited west coast school is the University of California at Berkeley.

The other schools are Iowa State College, Cornell, Harvard, University of Illinois, University of Michigan, Ohio State University, and Rhode Island School of Design.

Dean Little said that accreditation was made possible by action of the State Board of Higher Education two years ago in the establishment of a full five-year unified professional curriculum at the University.

He added, however, that teaching in landscape architecture has always been above the standards of the ASLA.
