

Military Ball Tickets On Sale Today; Formal to Feature Little Colonel Vote

Tickets for the annual Military Ball will go on sale today at the Co-op. Glenn Henry's 15-piece orchestra will play for the annual dance, this Saturday night.

The dance will be formal, and tickets sell for $2.40 per couple. Scabbard and Blade members, who sponsor the Military Ball will also handle ticket sale for the remainder of this week.

Highlight of the dance will be the selection of a Little Colonel. The six little captains, are Bonnie Bressler, Betty Pollock, Margaret Nichols, Maxine Krisch, Judy Bailey, and Jackie Lewis. Last year's Little Colonel was Lois Heagle.

Ticket Holders Vote

The selection of the finalist will be by vote—one vote per ticket and the ballots can either be turned in at a box in the Co-op or at the dance itself.

An outstanding feature of the decorations will be a replica of the American flag as part of a false-ceiling effect. Tapping of new Scabbard and Blade members will also take place during the dance.

Featured vocalist of the Henry aggregation is movie starlet and model Maxine Elliott. This blues and ballad singer has appeared as a guest singer with Eddie Howard and Duke Ellington.

Called Glee Club

The entire Henry orchestra comprises the Glenn Glee Club, which performs either alone or as a background for the vocal solos. His "Impressions in Rhythm" music, is intended to avoid distortion of the classics and to serve as a reminder that some of the best melodies of all time were written many years ago.

Among highlights of the Henry orchestra are an appearance on the Coca Cola Spotlight Band show and engagements at the Trianon Ballroom, Seattle, the Mission Beach Ballroom, San Diego, and the Biltmore Hotel, Hermosa Beach, California.

Committee Listed

The committee in charge of the Military Ball are: patrons, Art Johnson; tickets, Jack Doyle; finances, Elwin Paxson; decorations, Curt Finch; invitations and guests, Seymour Gassner; Little Colonel selection, Mike Bond; orchestra and presentations, Jim Howard and Alan Hollowell; tapping, Norman Rhoades; publicity, Don Fair; and posters, Raymond Scofield.

'Squeeze' Planned As Annual Event

Plans to make the Lemon-Orange Squeeze an annual affair are under way as a result of a successful mixer last Saturday night, according to Bill Carey, president of the Junior Interfraternity Council.

The dance, sponsored by the Junior Panhellenic and the Junior Interfraternity Council, was presented at the University for the first time Saturday night. Some 700 persons attended.

Profits will go to the treasuries of the two councils.

Betty Pollock, Jackie Lewis First Of Little Captains to be Interviewed

Little Captains Betty Pollock and Jackie Lewis were interviewed yesterday in the first of a series of interviews to be run today, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Miss Pollock is a member of Alpha Chi Omega and Miss Lewis is affiliated with Pi Beta Phi.

Other Little Colonel candidates are Bonnie Bressler, Margaret Nichols, Maxine Krisch, and Judy Bailey.

BETTY POLLOCK interviewed By Gretchen Grondahl

Little Colonel finalist Betty Lou Pollock took time from her weaving at the art school Sunday to tell a little bit about herself.

"I'd never even seen a loom before I got into this weaving course," the 20-year-old art major laughed as she wove another thread into a professional-looking piece of red-white-and-green woolen plaid.

Betty Lou, who also sews most of her own clothes, plans to make a box jacket and skirt from the material when it is completed.

Contests Not New

Beauty contests are nothing new for the brown-haired, hazel-eyed sophomore. In 1947 she was a finalist for "Miss Oregon," entering as "Miss The Dalles."

She was chosen football queen of two high schools—Pendleton and Hood River; she was also yell leader at both schools. Last year she was a semi-finalist for Sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

Hood River Graduate

Born in Pilot Rock, near Pendleton, Betty Lou attended grammar, junior, and one year of senior high school in the Round-Up City. Leaving Pendleton, she was graduated from Hood River High School in 1948. She now claims Pendleton as her home once more.

JACKIE LEWIS interviewed By Coralie Nelson

Five-feet two (just about), eyes of blue, light brown hair, 117 pounds, and a merry laugh make Jackie Lewis, freshman, just right to be a candidate for Little Colonel of the Military Ball.

Jackie lived in Eugene, attending Eugene High School, until last summer when her family moved to Saratoga, Calif. Saratoga is very near San Jose, and Jackie enjoys living within driving distance of San Francisco, but claims she wouldn't want to live in the metropolis. "Large towns don't go very far with me," she laughed.

Loves California

But California does. Her exclamation was, "Oh, I love it! I think there's just nothing like the sunshine. There were only one and one-half days all the time I was there when the sun didn't shine."

Jackie's favorite activities are skiing, swimming, and dancing. She is a member of Amphibians, and took part in this year's pageant. Her chief ambition at the moment is to quit school for next winter term and spend the time working and skiing at some winter resort, preferably one which she has not yet visited. "It sounds too wonderful to do almost," she sighed.

Wants to Travel

Typewriter Drawing Date Set

The drawing for the gold-plated typewriter displayed last week in the Co-op window will take place on Mar. 3, Bob Carey, chairman of the foreign students service committee announced Sunday night.

The winner need not be present at the drawing.

Ticket sales will end at 4 p. m. Friday. At 50 cents each, tickets may be purchased in the Co-op and from representatives in living organizations.

Members of the YMCA, YWCA, and campus religious organizations will meet at 4 p. m. today at the campus YMCA to discuss final phases of the campaign to raise funds for foreign students. All profits from the drawing will go toward this purpose.

At the meeting, students will be assigned to reach off-campus residents between now and Mar. 3.

Recovery Program Called Successful By IRC Speaker

The European Recovery Program so far has actually succeeded, John F. Gange, director of the Woodrow Wilson School of Foreign Affairs at the University of Virginia, said Friday.

Gange spoke at a general meeting of the International Relations League conference held on the campus last week.

"Production has been brought back very quickly to pre-war levels, and in a number of countries above," Gange continued.

However, he said, this improvement is not enough. There is still a need for rebuilding of devastated areas, replacement of tools, and better equipment. Agricultural production is also inadequate, since population has increased faster than production.

Budgets Balanced

"A number of countries have been able to balance their budgets, which is more than the United States has been able to do," Gange commented. He added that there has also been improvement in trade and general exchange.

"The most important accomplishment brought about in the last two years is the habit of working together in a way Western Europe has never before worked in peace time," he emphasized. "If this process can be kept up for a few years, Europe integration will come about through day-to-day dealing with small practical problems."

Although people are still short of many things, some of which are critical, there has been a feeling that recovery is possible. There has also been a removal of the tendency to turn to communism or dictatorship, the speaker said.

Co-operation Important

"Working together on manageable, practical, and immediate problems, and extending the habit to larger things, through the meeting of minds and unanimity of action, rather than command authority, will bring about an understanding which will never come by widespread and sweeping economic or political organization," Gange declared.

"If the American people will be patient, calm, keep their sense of historical proportion, and realize that a program of this scope will take not years, but decades, the cold war can be halted by standing by these nations which want to better themselves and leave their old hand-to-mouth existence," he stated.

Functions Explained

In explaining the functions of the ERP Gange said the first step was a maximum of self help by the nations of Western Europe.

Secondly came mutual aid—the nations taking stock of what they had, what they needed, and what they could produce, and sharing as much as they could with other nations.

Only then would the United States consider stepping in to make up the deficit between what the countries could do for themselves and what had to be done to restore conditions to normalcy.

Conflict Main Problem

He described the chief problem in getting ERP started as the conflict in bringing about increased production, economic stability, and improvement of inter and intra-

Council to Hear Student Petition On Zoning Rule

Student-signed petitions asking that fraternities, sororities, and co-operatives be allowed to locate in single-family residence zones; and protesting East 11th St. parking meters will be heard tonight by the Eugene City Council.

The parking meter protest, signed by fraternities along East 11th St. and some residents in that area, springs from a recent city decision to prohibit parking on the north side of 11th and install parking meters in the Mayflower block on the south side. The meters are also to be installed on some East 13th blocks.

The zoning request is signed by "most campus organizations," according to Bill Davis, head of an Interfraternity Council committee to consider the problem. If accepted, it would permit student organizations not directly run by the University to locate in any of the city's single-family residence zones.

Davis indicated that no immediate decision on the zoning question is expected, as it will probably be referred to a committee for consideration.

Juniors to Form Weekend Plans

Junior class representatives from each living organization will meet to discuss petition procedure for this year's Junior Weekend this afternoon at 4 in room 3 Fenton.

House presidents have been notified to appoint a junior representative, according to Barry Mountain, class president, and the representative will be expected to attend this afternoon's meeting.

The representative will be responsible for carrying back the information secured at the meeting to his house. Mountain hopes that through this individual contact every junior class member will feel free to petition for any chairmanship, sub-chairmanship, or committee he may desire.

This afternoon's meeting will be brief, Mountain said, but important. He will announce at that time the deadline for turning in petitions, the jobs open, and the where petitions may be submitted.

No petitions will be accepted this afternoon.
