

Nation's Biggest Snoop Due This Week, Hunting For 150 Million People

By BILL FRYE

Here comes that man again! Yes, sometime this week University students will meet one of the country's most inquisitive characters—the census taker. Every ten years this pencil-armed representative of Uncle Sam goes out ringing doorbells and asking questions in order to bring America statistically up to date.

Apr. 1 the Bureau of the Census swung into action in an attempt to locate approximately 150 million people. When this ambitious nose-counting spree ends Apr. 30, the Bureau will know not only how many people live in the 48 states, but whether they prefer showers to bathtubs, how many television sets there are in the country, and how many American women have been divorced.

To Question Students

Within a few days, all living organizations will be visited by an enumerator from the district office in Eugene. Students will be queried in the same manner as any other resident.

Ten basic questions will be asked each member of every living organization. Every fifth student interviewed will be given one additional question concerning his education, and one question regarding employment. Every 30th one will be asked about his marital status.

Time to Be Set

To assure that every one of the more than 5,000 University students is included in the 17th decennial census, Ray M. Feeves, director of Oregon Census District No. 2, said that living organizations would be contacted and a time set when the enumerator would be on hand.

In order to facilitate easy coverage of the campus area, two former University students have been assigned to this sub-district.

Questions will not be confined to the status of students alone. Heads of houses will be queried on facilities in the house—running water, electricity, etc.

Includes Living Standards

For every fifth house the enumerator stops at, he'll want to know something about the standards of living—how many radios it has, does it have a refrigerator, electric stove, or television set.

When the campus questionnaire is completed, the statistics will be compiled along with those of the rest of the Eugene area and 5,000 Webfoots will be considered as residents of this city.

Cosmopolitan Club Ratifies Constitution

The newly-formed Cosmopolitan Club of the University met Thursday at the YWCA quarters in Gerlinger Hall to ratify the constitution and elect Leavitt O. Wright, professor of romance languages, as temporary adviser.

Students, faculty, and townspeople may join the club in either an active, associate, or alumni capacity. Dues are 75 cents a term. The purpose of the club is to interest American and foreign students in social times together.

The constitution committee was composed of Jim Oswald, Dirk Schepers, Carolyn Oleman, Madeline Michel, and Gunther Hermann. The constitution itself was based on that of the club at Oregon State, and is ratified temporarily until fall term.

Students interested in joining the club were invited to tea at Professor Wright's home Sunday afternoon.

The next meeting will be held Friday in Gerlinger Hall. Members will go to the All-Campus Vodvil in McArthur Court, and then return to Gerlinger to conclude the meeting.

Orides Plan Open Meeting for Tonight

Orides, off-campus women's organization, will hold an open meeting tonight at 7 in the third floor of Gerlinger. All independent off-campus women, who are not affiliated with Orides, may attend.

An informal party will follow the regular meeting. Campus clothes will be in order.

Last Monday night, the Orides were entertained by the Eugene alumni group.

Young Republicans Nominate Officers

In a reorganization meeting held Thursday night in 102 Oregon, the campus Young Republicans selected a nominating slate of officers for the Spring term.

Candidates nominated were Bill Lees for president and Leslie Tooze for secretary-treasurer. Bill Hempy, Doug King, Don Collin, Marjory Cardwell, Anne Fenwick, and Beldon Owens are candidates for the three directorships.

Election of new officers has been scheduled for 7 p. m. Thursday at a site to be announced later.

David C. Shaw To Talk April 17

David C. Shaw, Democratic candidate for the United States Congress, will address University students during a luncheon meeting at the Anchorage Apr. 17.

Shaw will discuss his platform for office and conduct a question-and-answer session.

The candidate was an instructor in the University law school in 1947.

He is a 1929 graduate of Harvard University, where he also received his degree in law in 1933. He later went into private practice and became connected with the National Labor Relations Board in 1935.

During the war, Shaw served with the Office of Strategic Services and did intelligence work with the underground forces in several European countries.

He now is practicing law in Gold Beach, Oregon.

Caves Interviews Set

A representative from the Oregon Caves will be at the Office of Student Employment at 9 a. m. Apr. 19 to interview students interested in summer employment.

The office requests interested parties to call in for appointments.

Six SU Office Members Work Amid Confusion of Construction

The noise of construction is music to the ears of a Webfoot—especially if that noise emits from construction crews at work on the new Student Union Building.

But how many Webfoots could work all day with a bulldozer churning away outside the window, or a concrete vibrator working on the floor above?

Staff Alone

To six staff members of the Student Union Office this is everyday routine. Neither the din of construction nor the fact that they have the spacious SU Building to themselves seems to hinder the work of that office staff or impart a feeling of lonesomeness to its members.

In fact, they all appear perfectly content, finding consolation in their views of the future when the modern plant will house other offices and the tile corridors will team with students and administrators.

Only One Finished

The room where the SU office has been since Feb. 20 is the only finished one in the building. It is located just inside the 13th and Onyx entrance.

Here, amid the noise and confusion, is where the administration of the Student Union is being carried on by SU Director Dick Williams and this staff. Currently sharing the two million dollar structure with Williams are Olga Yevitch, assistant to the director; Ruth Coffey, foods service supervisor; Louie Bellissimo, recreation manager; Emmagene Bailey, bookkeeper; and June Winkler, secretary.

Originally in McArthur Court, the SU Office still is not permanently settled. When the building is ready for complete occupation the SU staff members will pick up their typewriters and desks and move into their own offices.

David Craighead to Appear Thursday in Organ Concert

Organist David Craighead will present the third and final concert of the 1950 Chamber Concert Series at 8:15 p. m. Thursday in the Music school auditorium.

Admission to the concert will be by season tickets. Tickets may also be purchased for $1.20 at the door.

Craighead is from Southern California. The son of a Presbyterian minister, he has been playing in recitals since he was 13.

The organist won his Bachelor of Music degree from the Curtis Institute in 1946. Currently he is on the faculty of Occidental College, Los Angeles, and is organist for the Pasadena Presbyterian church.

His program will include works by Bach, William, Honegger, Mozart, and Messiaen.

The work of WSSF depends entirely on the contributions of students and faculty in American high schools and universities.

KOAC to Present Piano Selections

KOAC will present a recital of piano selections at 8:30 tonight. Featured soloists are Joyce Everson, Frances Baum, and Patricia Johnson. Miss Everson is a junior in music, Miss Baum is a sophomore, and Miss Johnson a freshman.

Miss Everson will play "Mazurka in C Major" by Chopin; "Delphic Dancers" by Debussy; and "Cadiz" and "Leyenda" by Albeniz. Miss Baum will present "Fantasia in C Minor" by Mozart.

Selections by Miss Johnson are "La Plus Que Lent," a slow waltz by Debussy, and "AD 1620" by McDowell.

The program is part of the "Campus Recital" series presented regularly by the School of Music.
