

Hall Organization: Tightness, Interest

done the group by a capable, energetic scholarship committee and chairmen.

In Carson Hall, it is recommended that unit presidents be made chairmen.

In Hendricks and Susan Campbell Halls, upper division women would be allowed to live off-campus when crowded conditions force placement of five girls in a room instead of the usual four.

Four changes are recommended for the vets dorms. First, the University should pour more money back into them in the form of double rooms set aside for relaxation and ladies' restrooms. Each floor of each hall would be organized separately to tighten the association in the dorms; this might be facilitated by dividing each dorm into four closed-off units. Also, non-freshmen would be encouraged to live in private rooms rather than crowding the dorms, as has been the policy in the past.

In John Straub, it is suggested that halls desiring to eat together on certain occasions be encouraged by partitions in the dining room.
