

Janet

—for one term during her freshman year—she was one of six finalists in a freshman beauty contest.

The 5 foot 5½ inch blonde thinks Oregon is "very beautiful" but "misses the bright lights." As of last summer, she is a resident of Roseburg, where her father owns a lumber company.

"I can hardly wait to get back to New York to see 'South Pacific,'" she said when speaking of a proposed trip back east next summer. While living in the east she made a point of seeing as many plays as possible.

Janet loves to knit, play bridge, and listen to "Dixieland." Proof of her knitting ability was shown in a white jacket she's currently knitting. She's made several knit dresses, but "not many pairs of socks."

Bridge is just a "favorite pastime" while sunning on the sun deck of the Gamma Phi Beta house.

She loves "Dixieland," but plays "strictly classical" music on the piano.

A newcomer to the University (she enrolled here last fall) Janet formerly attended Cornell and Hiram University in Hiram, Ohio.

Baseball is her favorite sport.

"I follow the Cleveland Indians religiously," she said. But, Janet was headed for the Oregon-Idaho game Thursday afternoon immediately after talking to this Emerald reporter.

lia," Bach's "Adagio" and "Fugue in A Minor," and Beethoven's "Sonata in A Major."

Following the intermission, the violinist will present Mompou-Szigeti's "Maidens in the Garden", Szymanowski's "Fountain of Arethusa," Cowell's "Ballad" and "Jig," and Stravinsky-Dushkin's "Russian Dance" from "Petrouchka."

Szigeti will be accompanied by Edward Rebner.

Margaret

interviewed after a rush trip to Portland to accompany at an ASUO program for Oregon Mothers.

Born in Portland 20 years ago, Margaret has always been a faithful Oregonian. "And just to be different, I went to Jefferson," she smiled.

College has been more than practicing and classes at the Music School for Margaret, for she was president of University House for the past year, and is now song leader. She is also a member of Phi Beta, music and speech honorary. For an extra activity, Margaret plays for dance classes in Gerlinger Hall.

"Next summer I'm going to combine a vacation with work and my favorite recreation—horseback riding," Margaret said enthusiastically.

However, she's worry about rattlesnakes, which she's been warned about.

"Traveling for me has been limited to trips along the coast and to Salt Lake City," Margaret said, "and Iowa. The Iowa trek was so long ago I can't remember it."

She expressed an ambition to study in Europe someday, but isn't sure just when. Now she is planning to combine education courses with her music major.

Frosh Picnic

pick up their tickets today, admission stubs will be sold in the co-op tomorrow morning.

Helen Jackson, freshman class treasurer, told committee heads in a recent meeting that the Freshman Picnic is a class mixer, not a concentration of small parties.

"Some groups," she said, "may think it is primarily an outing with the houses with whom they are paired. Actually, it is a social mixer between all living organizations."

Toinette

ing a Spanish and English teacher at the high school level.

But before that time, other plans are in the making. She and her roommates will travel to San Francisco the week after finals this term. They will go by train, and "see all the high spots of San Francisco."

Another jaunt she wants to make is a trip to Europe this summer after she graduates. A native Oregonian, she has visited Mexico, California, and Canada during her 20 years.

Toinette's summers since the age of 16 have been spent as a children's day camp counsellor. This summer she may help with camp work again, but some of her time will be spent attending summer session classes in Portland.

She likes to play softball and tennis. Both take up much of her spare time at school. She is third baseman for the Hendricks intramural softball team. "We're sensational!" she exclaimed, hazel eyes twinkling.

Other interests of the scholarship chairman of Hendricks Hall are a liking of books "which I read voluminously" and a great fondness for "Peanuts," the family dog.

Peanuts, a bull terrier ("he's a monster!"), is fine with the family, but can be allowed to see no visitors. He bites them, she stated.

Castle Jazz Band To Play Saturday

Portland's Castle Jazz Band will play a return engagement at Willamette Park Saturday night from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The group brought their Dixieland music to Eugene two weeks ago.

The band, which originated in Portland several years ago, has become a nationally famous jazz group. A special feature of the program will be a Charleston contest with winners selected by the audience.

"Martha" Opens

add color to the production.

An amusing description of a complex, romantic situation, "Martha" takes place in England during the reign of Queen Anne. Lady Harriet, maid-of-honor to the queen, becomes bored with life at court. With her companion, Nancy, she goes in disguise to a country fair at Richmond under the name of Martha.

There the two girls meet Lionel and his friend Plunkett, who fall in love with the two girls. The affair begins when Lady Harriet and Nancy return to court and Lionel and Plunkett attempt to find them.

Others in the cast are Treva Rice, Louise Leding, Leona Anderson, Ellen Stone, Myrna Blizzard, Elizabeth Waddell, Patricia Hartley, James Wolters, and Loren Bush.

The chorus and minor roles are taken by Kieth Oetting, Bill Findlay, Wayne Wagner, Lynn E. Sjolund, Roger Moore, Evan W. Skerries, Glen Lamb, Donald Laing, Ray Laing, Ray Bednoschek, Don Jordahl, William R. Smith, James P. Woodworth, Douglas Stobie, John Ogle, Richard Anderson, and Harold Long.

Also shown are William Gross, Roscoe Wright, Ken Olsen, Clyde Fahlman, Jean Young, Lyn Morgan, Sally Terril, Dolores Kletzing, Faye Schick, Sharon Anderson, Joan Cavey, Joan Sweet, Judy Fortner, Hildegard E. Wagner, Gerry Marsh, and Norma Terry.
